one another. We loved one another. We were mutually loyal, even as we were mutually competitive, with an intensity that would never let up. There is no more dominant. These values formed me as the energies of Joseph and Rose Kennedy. They helped to form bonds among one another, and to develop personalities based on those bonds, to an extent that remains to this day underappreciated by the characters of my family. They remain in me still. They lie at the heart of the story I wish to tell.

I was nine years old in that summer of 1941, the final summer of the familiar world into which I was born. I was not clear why we had all come back home from England, but I was happy that we had. I was too young to fully understand that my father had resigned his ambassadorship. I was certainly too young to comprehend that he'd resigned because he had offended some people in England by saying that the British might not be capable of fighting a war against Germany. It would have been news to me that Dad had displeased President Roosevelt with these same remarks. Or that when he was away from the Cape house that summer, in New York and Washington, he was trying to persuade other people to join his effort at keeping America out of the war. Or that, despite these differences, Joseph Kennedy continued to support Franklin Roosevelt as president.

I just knew that on weekends, he and I would ride horseback together on the Cape, and that was all I really cared to know.

It's hardly surprising that these facets of my father's life were unknown to me as a child. If my father were alive
