THIS MATTER is before the Court on the Defendants' motion for stay pending appeal. [Doc. 52].

On March 9, 2016, the Court entered an Order granting in part and denying in part Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment. [Doc. 50]. In their summary judgment motion, all of the law enforcement Defendants had argued that they were entitled to judgment as a matter of law based upon their assertion of qualified immunity. As stated in the Order, the Court denied Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment as to Defendants Price and Beasley on Plaintiffs' First, Third, Fourth, Sixth and Eight Causes of Action and as to Defendants The Ohio Casualty Insurance Company and West American Insurance Company on Plaintiffs' Seventh Cause of Action. [Id.]. The Court granted Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment as to all of Plaintiffs' claims asserted against Defendants Suttles, Bryson, and Mitchell as well as to the Plaintiffs' Second Cause of Action asserted against all Defendants. [Id.].

Defendants filed a notice of appeal on March 18, 2016. [Doc. 52 at 3]. Defendants are seeking appellate review of this Court's Order denying their summary judgment motion on qualified immunity grounds. [Id.]. The defense of qualified immunity is designed not only to protect government officials from liability for money damages, but also to allow officials to avoid the burdens attendant to a lawsuit. Qualified immunity, therefore, “is immunity from suit rather than a mere defense to liability.” Mitchell v. Forsyth, 472 U.S. 511, 526 (1985). As such, questions of law pertaining to qualified immunity are immediately appealable. Johnson v. Jones, 515 U.S. 304 (1995); Parrish v. Cleveland, 372 F.3d 294, 301 (4th Cir. 2004). But here, whether Defendants Price and Beasley are entitled to qualified immunity is dependent upon factual findings which ultimately must be made by a jury. Even though Defendants Price and Beasley are appealing the Court’s qualified immunity ruling, they concede as much: “Defendants do not challenge the Court’s findings [sic] as to [the] Factual Background but rather contend that the findings and the evidence of record do not support the legal conclusions made by the Court.” [Doc. 53 at 4].¹ As such, at least part of this case is clearly not subject to such appeal. However, staying this matter pending the Fourth Circuit’s resolution of the appeal by Defendants Price and Beasley will best serve the interests of judicial economy by this Court having to conduct only one jury trial and otherwise avoiding piecemeal litigation. Defendants represent to the Court that Plaintiffs do not oppose their motion to stay. [Doc. 52 at 4]. For these reasons, the Court will grant the Defendants' stay motion and hold this case in abeyance until the resolution of their appeal by the Fourth Circuit.

Accordingly, IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that this action is hereby STAYED until further Order of the Court.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
