

Movants for a protective order must show substantial personal or financial harm before the Court will seal any documents.⁶ Here, the parties fail to meet that standard.

The proposed stipulated protective order is overbroad, unspecific, and not accompanied by a motion. The parties have asked the Court for blanket authority to designate documents as “CONFIDENTIAL – SUBJECT TO PROTECTIVE ORDER.”⁷ The proposed order would allow overbroad discretion, limited only by a promise to “mak[e] a good faith determination that the documents contain information protected from disclosure.”⁸ The proposed order also fails to identify the specific information the parties seek to protect or show how public disclosure of wage and hour information would unfairly impact Defendant's competitive position.

The parties are, of course, free to privately contract to limit disclosure of documents and information. Additionally, any party or non-party may move to seal individual documents—provided that they make the requisite particularized showing.

The Court thus DENIES the parties’ proposed protective order.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
