

ObamasNext.com - Are Republicans preparing to escalate political terror tactics?

 November 11, 2010 - 05:36 |  luaptifer

The poisoned waters of American political 'discourse' are a legacy of Karl Rove's take-all tactics including character assassination and smashmouth rancour.

It is truly difficult to imagine that Americans once actually debated political differences and that bipartisanship, in fact, meant what it sounds like. But the good old days were long before Americans For Prosperity and Freedomworks introduced the on-demand terror now trademarked for Tea Party townhalls.

The violence and increasingly racist-expression of tea party astroturf-mobilizations intended to move policy where reason dares not to tread seems to be going well beyond 'too far'..

It's an old habit that I survey the IP-address territory that is controlled by the official Internet services provider of the Republican Party, SmartechCorp.net physically based in Chattanooga Tennessee.

Some folks will recall that SmartechCorp was involved in the mysteriously shifted-hosting of Ohio election night results servers on the same computer systems where GeorgeWBush.com and the RNC email servers were also hosted when Mike Connell's boss beat John Kerry in November 2004.

This question cannot be asked in a delicate way.

Do the special law enforcement teams that protect President Obama know that SmartechCorp or the GOP or Americans for Prosperity have registered domain names that seem to imply physical threat and danger to the American President?

Three domain names were registered using anonymous proxy during the last week of October 2010. It appears that the three domains shown below are not yet assigned to IP addresses although the associated who is lookup records indicate that SmartechCorp name-services will be ready to route Internet traffic if the domains are ever assigned to IP addresses.
