A Look Ahead

2010 BUCKEYE FOOTBALL SEASON PREVIEW

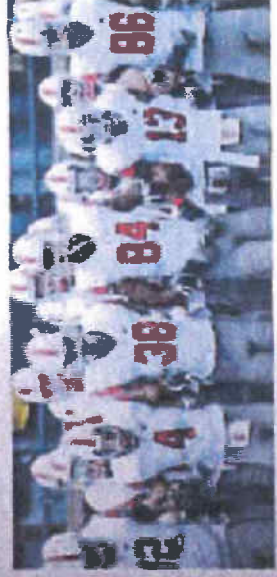

Replacing the seven Buckeyes who were drafted in the first five rounds will be no easy task, but this is OSU we're talking about... so being in contention for a Big Ten title is the goal.

The Ohio State offense is in good hands with the addition of the Pro Bowl wide receiver, Devin Taylor. Although his pass attempts were limited last year, expect him to be hearing some field time this year. How that works out will be determined if this team wins another Big Ten championship.

PROBABLE: Tavell Pryor (over 1,000 yards as a freshman and averaged 651 yards rushing last year). We all know he can run, but will he be leading game progress without Blake? He is around, but expect to be forced to get the ball in the air more often. Pryor is not, without the team's top three targets including two receivers and a tight end.

PROBABLE: Even leading his three starts on defense, the Buckeye "D" will be one of the best in the conference. Proline players include Thaddeus Gibson, Cameron Murray and Matt Worthington. In the secondary, Pat Chung and Channing Crowder are solid cornerbacks and Antonio Escribano and Anderson Russell will both be three-year starters. The two quarterbacks for Ohio State will be up the middle as Ross Homan is the team's starting quarterback and the backup.

THE UNDERDOG: Sept. 12 vs. USC - After being outscored last year, the Buckeyes can't escape. And this one is at home.
