OPINION AND ORDER

Before the Court are the plaintiffs’ Complaint [Doc. No. 1] and Motion for Leave to Proceed In Forma Pauperis and Supporting Affidavit [Doc. No. 2]. Plaintiffs Rosemary and Fred Lollis (“Plaintiffs”), proceeding pro se, have filed numerous lawsuits in this Court apparently related to allegations their children were improperly taken into custody by Child Protective Services (“CPS”). In this action, Plaintiffs have sued Sergey Dezhnyuk, who is alleged to be a supervisor at CPS. [Doc. No. 1 at 1]. Plaintiffs have not alleged specific causes of action or provided detailed allegations with regard to Dezhnyuk. Plaintiffs’ factual allegations are as follows:

Never checked into if Sharron threatened me. Never produced [evidence] the allegation is true. Failure to protect my kids. He wasn’t caring that our 12 year has depression. Failure to make sure Sharron informs me of my Civil Rights & Constitutional Rights. For allowing kidnapping because of no warrant or court order.

[Id. at 1-2].

Plaintiffs seek to commence this action without prepayment of fees pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(1), which provides that “any court of the United States may authorize the commencement, prosecution or defense of any suit . . . without prepayment of fees . . . by a person who submits an affidavit that includes a statement of all assets such prisoner possesses that the person is unable to pay such fees.” Despite use of the word “prisoner,” this statute applies to all persons applying for in forma pauperis status. Brown v. Eppler, 725 F.3d 1221, 1229 n.6 (10th Cir. 2013).

This statute “is designed to ensure that indigent litigants have meaningful access to the federal courts.” Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324 (1989). “Congress recognized, however, that a litigant whose filing fees and court costs are assumed by the public, unlike a paying litigant, lacks an economic incentive to refrain from filing frivolous, malicious, or repetitive lawsuits.” Id. To prevent such frivolous litigation, the statute authorizes federal courts to dismiss a case sua sponte that is filed in forma pauperis if: (1) the allegation of poverty is false, (2) the action is frivolous or malicious, (3) the action fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, or (4) the action seeks monetary relief against a defendant who is immune from such relief. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2); see also Stafford v. United States, 208 F.3d 1177, 1179 n.4 (10th Cir. 2000). Dismissals based on § 1915(e)(2) are often made sua sponte prior to the issuance of process “so as to spare prospective defendants the inconvenience and expense of answering such complaints.” Neitzke, 490 U.S. at 324.¹

While pro se pleadings must be liberally construed and must be held to less stringent standards than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers, Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520 (1972), a district court should not assume the role of advocate. Hall v. Bellmon, 935 F.2d 1106, 1110 (10th Cir. 1991); United States v. Pinson, 584 F.3d 972, 975 (10th Cir. 2009); Garret v. Selby Connor Maddux & Janer, 425 F.3d 836, 840 (10th Cir. 2005). Moreover, even pro se plaintiffs are required to comply with the “fundamental requirements of the Federal Rules of Civil and Appellate Procedure” and substantive law, and the liberal construction to be afforded does not transform “vague and conclusory arguments” into valid claims for relief. Ogden v. San Juan County, 32 F.3d 452, 455 (10th Cir. 1994). The court “will not supply additional factual allegations to round out a plaintiff’s complaint or construct a legal theory on a plaintiff’s behalf.” Whitney v. N.M., 113 F.3d 1170, 1173-74 (10th Cir. 1997).

The Court has an obligation to consider whether subject matter jurisdiction exists, even if the parties have not raised the issue. Image Software, Inc. v. Reynolds & Reynolds Co., 459 F.3d 1044, 1048 (10th Cir. 2006). Plaintiffs assert that this Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. 42 U.S.C. § 1983 does not provide an independent basis for subject-matter jurisdiction. However, Plaintiffs could be alleging a claim for violation of their federal constitutional rights which could support the exercise of federal question jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Generally, the “well-pleaded complaint” rule requires that the federal question appear on the face of the plaintiff’s complaint. See Garley v. Sandia Corp., 236 F.3d 1200, 1207 (10th Cir. 2001). “The complaint must identify the statutory or constitutional provision under which the claim arises, and allege sufficient facts to show that the case is one arising under federal law.” Collins v. Cnty. of Johnson, Kan., 2001 WL 950259, at *1 (D. Kan. July 12, 2011) (quoting Martinez v. U.S. Olympic Comm., 802 F.2d 1275, 1280 (10th Cir. 1986)).

Plaintiffs allege their civil and constitutional rights were violated and appear to cite Section 1983 as the basis for the relief they seek. Although Section 1983 provides a cause of action against state actors for violation of constitutional rights, Becker v. Kroll, 494 F.3d 904, 913 (10th Cir. 2007), Plaintiffs’ allegations do not support a finding that Dezhnuyuk violated

Plaintiffs' constitutional rights. While Plaintiffs have generally alleged violations of their civil and constitutional rights, the facts that they have alleged in their Complaint do not state any colorable claim under Section 1983. Importantly, the Complaint does not identify "Sharron's" relationship to Dezhnuyuk, what was the alleged "threat" or "allegation," how Dezhnuyuk "failed to protect" Plaintiffs' children, or Dezhnuyuk's alleged involvement in a "kidnapping." [See Doc. No. 1 at 1-2].

Other judges of this Court have dismissed related cases upon determining that similar allegations did not state colorable federal claims. See Lollis v. Kunzweiler et al., No. 15-CV-245-CVE-PJC [Doc. No. 3]; Lollis v. CPS/DPS et al., No. 15-CV-247-JED-FHM [Doc. No. 3]; Lollis v. City of Bixby, No. 15-CV-249-JED-FHM [Doc. No. 3]; Lollis v. Wells, No. 15-CV-251-JED-PJC [Doc. No. 3]; Lollis v. Tulsa Police Dept., No. 15-CV-279-CVE-TLW [Doc. No. 3]; Lollis v. Judge Doris Fransein et al., No. 15-CV-280-TCK-PJC [Doc. No. 3]; and Lollis v. Torres et al., No. 15-CV-290-JED-PJC [Doc. No. 3]. Likewise, construing the Complaint in this case liberally in light of Plaintiffs' pro se status, the allegations do not state a colorable federal claim against Dezhnuyuk. As a result, the Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over this case. Arbaugh v. Y & H Corp., 546 U.S. 500, 513 n.10 (2006) (stating that federal courts cannot exercise federal question jurisdiction over a case without the existence of a colorable claim arising under federal law). The case should be dismissed under § 1915(e)(2) for failure to state any federal claim upon which relief can be granted.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Plaintiffs' claims are dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Plaintiffs' Motion for Leave to Proceed In Forma Pauperis and Supporting Affidavit [Doc. 2] is denied as moot.

SO ORDERED this 26th day of June, 2015.
