Attorneys for Defendant

HUBEL, Magistrate Judge:

Plaintiff Dave Kallio brings this employment-related action against his former employer, defendant Columbia County Department of Roads. Defendant moves for summary judgment against plaintiff's

1 common-law wrongful discharge claim, and against the constructive
2 discharge portion of plaintiff's statutory disability
3 discrimination claims. Defendant also moves to strike two exhibits
4 submitted by plaintiff in opposition to defendant's summary
5 judgment motion.

6 Both parties have consented to entry of final judgment by a
7 Magistrate Judge in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
8 73 and 28 U.S.C. § 636(c). For the reasons explained below, I 9 grant the summary judgment motion. I deny the motion to strike as 10 moot.

11 BACKGROUND

12 Plaintiff was employed by defendant as a road maintenance 13 worker, beginning in August or September 1997. Before applying for 14 the position, plaintiff had the opportunity to review the job 15 description. At the time plaintiff took the job, he believed he 16 could perform all of the essential duties and responsibilities of 17 the position. He did not believe he needed any type of 18 accommodation to perform his job duties.

19 In his declaration, plaintiff states that he provided 20 defendant with a letter from the Veteran's Administration (VA), 21 stating that he was forty-percent disabled for a service-related 22 disability. Pltf's Declr. at ¶ 4. He further states that this was 23 reviewed with him during the interview process. Id. He cites to 24 Exhibit 1 to his Declaration which is an April 23, 1997 letter from 25 the VA to plaintiff informing him that he had a service-connected 26 disability rating of forty-percent. Exh. 1 to Pltf's Declr. The 27 April 23, 1997 letter from the VA contains no information about the 28 type of disability or any limitations plaintiff may have as a

1 result of the disability. Id. In deposition, plaintiff stated 2 that he did not mention that he had Gulf War Syndrome, but 3 mentioned only that he had the VA rating. Pltf's Depo. at p. 79.

4 At the time plaintiff was hired, he worked four ten-hour
5 shifts. He knew when he was hired that the job required four ten-6 hour shifts in the summer and early fall. Plaintiff's job duties 7 involved patching roads, road grading, sanding, plowing snow, and 8 cutting brush. Although plaintiff admitted in deposition that he 9 had no trouble performing these duties, he states in his 10 declaration that as a result of suffering from Gulf War Syndrome, 11 he became very fatigued after working more than eight hours.
12 Pltf's Declr. at ¶ 5. He also submits two letters written by a co-13 worker to the VA, in 2005, relating concerns about his health and 14 at least in the first of the two letters, particularly mentioning 15 his fatigue and the four ten-hour shifts he works in the summer
16 months. Exh. 3 to Pltf's Declr.¹

17 Plaintiff's supervisor for the first nine months was Donny
18 Titus. Plaintiff states in his deposition that he mentioned 19 several times to Titus that he could not tolerate the four ten-hour 20 shifts. Pltf's Depo. at p. 48. Plaintiff's supervisor changed to 21 Mike Johnstun after about nine months, when plaintiff transferred 22 to the Clatskanie shop from the Vernonia shop. Id. at p. 60.
23 Plaintiff also complained to Johnstun that he had problems with the 24 four ten-hour shifts. Id. at p. 68.

26 ¹ Defendant separately moves to strike these two exhibits 27 because they are hearsay. I deny the motion as moot because even 28 without striking the exhibits, I grant defendant's summary judgment motion.

1 Plaintiff told Johnstun that the long hours were getting hard 2 and he wished they could go back to the five eight-hour shifts
3 permanently. Id. While plaintiff told Johnstun he had Gulf War
4 Syndrome and the long hours made it hard to maintain the job,
5 plaintiff admits that he never made a direct request to Johnstun
6 for accommodation. Id. at pp. 68-69.

7 Ryan Allen was plaintiff's work crew leader, presumably 8 sometime after Johnstun, although the record is a bit unclear in 9 that regard. Plaintiff raised the schedule change issue with 10 Allen. Allen suggested that plaintiff write a letter to Dave Hill, 11 the County's Director of Public Works and Parks. Allen Depo. at p.
12 21.

13 On December 8, 2003, plaintiff wrote a letter to "Dave," 14 requesting that the County stay with a five, eight-hour shift 15 schedule the following year. Exh. 2 to Pltf's Declr. In the 16 letter, plaintiff explained that he has Gulf War Syndrome and that 17 while there are a variety of symptoms, the worst is fatigue. Id.
18 He stated that he gets very tired in the afternoons and feels that 19 his production may start to fall off as well. Id. He then offered 20 how it would be beneficial to the County to have plaintiff work a 21 non-overtime day and noted that allowing him to stay on a five, 22 eight-hour day schedule would provide the County with someone at 23 work on Fridays in case of a call from the office or "C-COM," the 24 County's 911 agency. Id.

25 Plaintiff states that Hill ignored this request. Pltf's 26 Declr. at ¶ 6. In his deposition, plaintiff acknowledged that he 27 did not recall following up with Hill and asking Hill about the 28 letter or if Hill had had a chance to consider plaintiff's request.

1 Pltff's Depo. at p 84. Hill states that he did not consider the 2 letter a request for accommodation for a disability, but rather 3 thought plaintiff desired to reduce fatigue for himself and to save 4 the County money. Hill Depo. at pp. 23-24, 27, 41, 42. Hill 5 states that he discussed the request with Allen and asked Allen to 6 let plaintiff know that the request would not work. Id. at p. 28.

7 Plaintiff also states in his declaration that from December 8 2003 onward, he made requests for accommodation to Allen and Human 9 Resources Director Jean Ripa. Id. at ¶ 8. He contends that his 10 requests were left unanswered. Id.

11 Allen states that plaintiff raised the scheduling issue with 12 him several times in 2004 and 2005. Allen Depo. at pp. 28-29.
13 Allen referred plaintiff to Hill. Id. at pp. 27-28. Hill states 14 he heard nothing more from plaintiff about his scheduling request, 15 until after plaintiff left employment with the County. Hill Depo.
16 at p. 28; see also Pltff's Depo. at pp. 83-84 (no recollection of 17 returning to Hill about request).

18 In his deposition, plaintiff admits that he went to see Ripa,
19 but it was "after a lot of time had passed" from when he gave Hill 20 the letter. Pltff's Depo. at p. 84. Later, he indicates that the 21 meeting with Ripa was in May 2005. Id. at p. 104.

22 In his deposition, plaintiff states that throughout 2003 and 23 2004, he worked four ten-hour shifts, but he was always allowed to 24 go home or call in sick if he was fatigued. Pltff's Depo. at pp.
25 92-93. In his declaration, he states that during the summer of 26 2004 and 2005, he worked "four, eight hour days" without 27 accommodation which caused a great amount of fatigue and a 28

1 worsening of his condition. Pltf's Declr. at ¶ 7.²

2 Plaintiff met with Ripa in approximately May 2005 and 3 discussed his accommodation request to work five eights instead of 4 four tens. Pltf's Depo. at p. 104-05. Ripa's notes from that 5 meeting reveal that plaintiff brought up many issues at the time, 6 only one of which was the schedule request. Exh. 4 to Lackey Sur-
7 Reply. In his deposition, plaintiff stated that he wanted to ask 8 Ripa if she had heard anything about his accommodation request 9 (made in the December 2003 letter to Hill). Id. at p. 105. In his 10 declaration, he states that Ripa told him that the ADA issue would 11 be looked at carefully, but he never heard from her again. Pltf's 12 Declr. at ¶ 9; see also Exh. 4 to Lackey Sur-Reply Declr. (Ripa's 13 notes from meeting indicating that she told plaintiff ADA issue 14 would be looked at).

15 In his deposition, plaintiff states that Ripa suggested that 16 she, Hill, and the union president meet to try to work something 17 out. Pltf's Depo. at p. 105. Ripa's notes indicate that the 18 meeting was to address several of plaintiff's work complaints, 19 particularly his feeling that Hill disliked him, showed favoritism
20 to other workers, and the lack of advancement opportunities. Exh.
21 4 to Lackey Sur-Reply Declr.

22 In her deposition, Ripa testified that when she met with 23 plaintiff in May 2005, he mentioned that he had sent a letter to 24 Hill requesting a schedule accommodation. Ripa Depo. at p. 23.
25 She does not recall what plaintiff said about needing the schedule

26
27 ² Plaintiff's counsel confirmed at oral argument that the 28 reference to four, eight-hour days should have been to four, ten-hour days.

1 accommodation. Id. She understood that he had made a similar 2 request a couple of years ago. Id. She states that she told 3 plaintiff that if he was renewing the request, he needed to provide 4 some medical clarification or information to document his diagnosis 5 and need for accommodation of some type. Id. at pp. 23-24. She 6 later testified that she left the ball in plaintiff's court and 7 since he never followed up with providing information, she did not 8 follow up any further. Id. at p. 32. Plaintiff testified that he 9 did not recall Ripa asking for medical documents, but that "[s]he 10 may have." Pltf's Depo. at p. 123.³ He also testified that at 11 some point during his employment, his physician offered to write a 12 letter to "get [plaintiff] off those long hours[,] " but plaintiff 13 declined to have the physician write the letter. Id. at p. 124.

14 Ripa also states that she participated in a meeting with 15 plaintiff and his union representative in June 2005, but that 16 neither plaintiff, nor the union representative, raised the issue 17 of ADA accommodation at the meeting. Id. at pp. 24-25.

18 On December 8, 2005, plaintiff resigned from his employment 19 with the County. He accepted a position as a landscaper with the 20 Clatskanie School District.

21 In his deposition, plaintiff explained that he applied for the 22 landscaper job with the school district because he "felt that there 23

24 ³ I reject plaintiff's contention that plaintiff's 25 deposition testimony regarding his inability to recall whether 26 Ripa had asked for medical documentation of his disability and 27 his need for accommodation creates a material issue of fact as to 28 whether Ripa did indeed ask for such documentation. Ripa's testimony is unequivocal. Plaintiff's testimony does not contradict Ripa's testimony and does not create an issue of fact.

1 wasn't much chance of getting to stay on five eights in the 2 summer." Pltf's Depo. at p. 150. He stated that his disability 3 was getting worse, he was getting "tired" in the afternoons, and 4 after "repeated attempts to reconcile the situation," he started 5 looking for a job with fewer hours. Id.

6 Plaintiff talked to Hill about his resignation. Hill told 7 plaintiff it would be acceptable for plaintiff to leave early 8 without giving two weeks advance notice. Plaintiff then went to 9 work for Clatskanie School District for nine months. He left after 10 he received a 100% disability award from the VA which plaintiff 11 believed precluded him from working.

12 At the time plaintiff resigned from the County, in December 13 2005, the work schedule was five, eight-hour shifts. Little 14 overtime was required. Plaintiff was concerned, however, that the 15 county would go back to four, ten-hour shifts and overtime in the 16 summer.

17 When plaintiff gave his letter of resignation to Hill, he said
18 nothing to indicate that he was resigning because plaintiff's 19 request for accommodation was not granted. But, plaintiff "figured 20 [Hill] knew that well enough." Pltf's Depo. at p. 200.

21 No one at the County ever asked plaintiff to resign and no one 22 ever told plaintiff that his job was on the line. One county 23 employee, Kelley Lundburg, once told plaintiff he should find 24 another line of work. Id. at p. 202. The context of the comment 25 was that plaintiff had expressed unhappiness to Lundburg about 26 having been "written up," and Lundburg stated, during a coffee 27 break, while they were "chewing the fat in general," that maybe 28 plaintiff should find another line of work. Id. at p. 203. During

1 the deposition, plaintiff stated that Lundburg seemed to be joking
2 and laughing when he made the comment. Id. Also at deposition, 3 plaintiff stated that other than that comment, he had no evidence 4 that anybody at the County wanted him to be gone. Id.

5 STANDARDS

6 Summary judgment is appropriate if there is no genuine issue
7 of material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a 8 matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). The moving party bears the 9 initial responsibility of informing the court of the basis of its 10 motion, and identifying those portions of "'pleadings, depositions, 11 answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with 12 the affidavits, if any,' which it believes demonstrate the absence 13 of a genuine issue of material fact." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 14 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)).

15 "If the moving party meets its initial burden of showing 'the 16 absence of a material and triable issue of fact,' 'the burden then 17 moves to the opposing party, who must present significant probative 18 evidence tending to support its claim or defense.'" Intel Corp. v.
19 Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 952 F.2d 1551, 1558 (9th Cir. 1991)
20 (quoting Richards v. Neilsen Freight Lines, 810 F.2d 898, 902 (9th 21 Cir. 1987)). The nonmoving party must go beyond the pleadings and 22 designate facts showing an issue for trial. Celotex, 477 U.S. at 23 322-23.

24 The substantive law governing a claim determines whether a 25 fact is material. T.W. Elec. Serv. v. Pacific Elec. Contractors 26 Ass'n, 809 F.2d 626, 630 (9th Cir. 1987). All reasonable doubts as 27 to the existence of a genuine issue of fact must be resolved
28 against the moving party. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith

1 Radio, 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986). The court should view inferences
2 drawn from the facts in the light most favorable to the nonmoving
3 party. T.W. Elec. Serv., 809 F.2d at 630-31.

4 If the factual context makes the nonmoving party's claim as to 5 the existence of a material issue of fact implausible, that party 6 must come forward with more persuasive evidence to support his 7 claim than would otherwise be necessary. Id.; In re Agricultural 8 Research and Tech. Group, 916 F.2d 528, 534 (9th Cir. 1990);
9 California Architectural Bldg. Prod., Inc. v. Franciscan Ceramics, 10 Inc., 818 F.2d 1466, 1468 (9th Cir. 1987).

11 DISCUSSION

12 In his Complaint, plaintiff brings three claims for relief.
13 In the first, he contends that defendant violated the Americans
14 with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 12101-12213 ("ADA") by (1) 15 failing to engage in an interactive process for identifying and 16 implementing his request for a reasonable accommodation; (2) 17 failing to reasonably accommodate his disability, including, but 18 not limited to, failing to grant his request for a modified work 19 schedule; and (3) taking adverse employment actions against him, 20 including, but not limited to, constructively discharging him from 21 his employment because of his disability. Compl. at ¶¶ 21-23.

22 In his second claim, he contends that defendant violated
23 Oregon Revised Statutes § (O.R.S.) 659A.100 - 659A.145, Oregon's 24 Disability Discrimination Law, in the same manner as the ADA claim.
25 Id. at ¶¶ 24-26.

26 In his third claim, he contends that defendant wrongfully, 27 constructively discharged him by "intentionally denying his request
28 for a modified work schedule because Defendant knew that Plaintiff

1 would quit, or was substantially certain that Plaintiff would quit,
2 because Plaintiff had a disability that made working ten or more 3 hours per day an intolerable working situation." Compl. at ¶ 28.

4 In this motion for partial summary judgment, defendant moves 5 for summary judgment on the third claim (common law wrongful, 6 constructive discharge), and against those portions of the first 7 and second claims for relief alleging constructive discharge as the 8 adverse employment action.

9 At oral argument on the motion, plaintiff's counsel expressly 10 stated that plaintiff was not asserting a constructive discharge 11 component to his adverse employment action statutory claims.
12 Relying on that statement, I could simply grant defendant's motion 13 as to that part of each of the statutory claims.

14 Nonetheless, because the Complaint indicates that plaintiff 15 does indeed base his statutory claims in part on an adverse 16 employment action theory consisting of an alleged constructive 17 discharge, and there has been no motion to amend or dismiss those 18 claims, and because the briefing on the summary judgment motion 19 from both parties comprehensively discusses an alleged constructive 20 discharge claim as part of the statutory claims, I address them 21 here.

22 I. Preclusion of Common Law Wrongful Discharge Claim

23 Defendant moves for summary judgment on the wrongful discharge 24 claim because the statutory claims provide an adequate remedy, 25 precluding the ability to bring a common law wrongful discharge 26 claim. As Judge Stewart explained in a 1998 Opinion, wrongful 27 discharge is designed to "serve as a narrow exception to the at-28 will employment doctrine in certain limited circumstances where the

1 courts have determined that the reasons for the discharge are so 2 contrary to public policy that a remedy is necessary in order to 3 deter such conduct." Draper v. Astoria Sch. Dist. No. IC, 995 F.
4 Supp. 1122, 1127 (D. Or. 1998), abrogated in part on other 5 grounds, Rabkin v. Oregon Health Sci. Univ., 350 F.3d 967 (9th Cir.
6 2003). The tort "never was intended to be a tort of general
7 application but rather an interstitial tort to provide a remedy
8 when the conduct in question was unacceptable and no other remedy 9 was available." Id. at 1128.

10 Thus, generally, under Oregon law, a common law wrongful 11 discharge claim will be precluded by a statutory claim providing an 12 adequate remedy. E.g., Walsh v. Consolidated Freightways, Inc., 13 278 Or. 347, 351-52, 563 P.2d 1205, 1208-09 (1977) (presence of 14 adequate federal statute redressing termination for reporting 15 unsafe working conditions precluded wrongful discharge claim); 16 Anderson v. Evergreen Int'l Airlines, Inc., 131 Or. App. 726, 734, 17 886 P.2d 1068, 1072 (1994) ("availability of an adequate statutory 18 remedy precludes an otherwise sufficient common law wrongful
19 discharge claim.").

20 Plaintiff does not appear to contest that the remedies
21 provided under Oregon's statutory disability discrimination laws 22 include economic, noneconomic, and punitive damages, as well as 23 attorney's fees. O.R.S. 659A.885 (providing for injunctive relief, 24 other appropriate equitable relief, back pay, costs and attorney's 25 fees, compensatory damages, punitive damages, and a jury trial in 26 actions alleging a violation of O.R.S. 659A.100 to 659A.145).

27 Other judges in this Court have concluded that the remedies
28 provided under the state statute are adequate and thus preclude a

1 common law wrongful discharge claim based on the same conduct.
2 E.g., Bellingham v. Harry & David Ops. Corp., No. CV-07-3033-PA, 3 2008 WL 339411, at *5 (D. Or. Feb. 5, 2008) (Judge Panner granting 4 summary judgment to defendant on plaintiff's wrongful discharge
5 claim because Oregon disability statutes provided an adequate 6 statutory remedy); Bailey v. Reynolds Metals Co., No. CV-99-1418-7 HA, 2000 WL 33201900, at *2 (D. Or. Sept. 11, 2000) (Judge Haggerty 8 concluding that Oregon's disability statutes preempted a claim for 9 wrongful discharge because the remedies provided by the legislature 10 are adequate); Robinson v. U.S. Bancorp, No. CV-99-2723-ST, 2000 WL 11 435468 (D. Or. Apr. 20, 2000) (Judge Stewart concluding that the 12 availability of an action under former O.R.S. 659.436 (now 13 659A.112) preempts a wrongful discharge claim); Underhill v.
14 Willamina Lumber Co., No. CV-98-630-AS, 1999 WL 421596 (D. Or. May 15 20, 1999) (Judge Ashmanskas concluding that former O.R.S. 659.425 16 (a statute providing a cause of action for discrimination on the 17 basis of disability by employment agencies) preempts a wrongful 18 discharge claim).

19 I reach the same conclusion here. Moreover, whether or not 20 plaintiff actually brings a statutory claim based on the adverse 21 employment action of a constructive discharge, is irrelevant. It 22 is the availability of the adequate statutory remedy in the law 23 that precludes the common law wrongful discharge claim based on the 24 same conduct, not whether plaintiff actually brings a claim under 25 the statute. See Walsh, 278 Or. at 351-52, 563 P.2d at 1208-09 26 (although plaintiff did not bring a claim under relevant statute, 27 his common-law wrongful discharge claim was nonetheless precluded 28 because the existing statutory law provided a remedy for an

1 employee who is discharged for complaining of a safety violation).

3 I grant summary judgment to defendant on the common-law
4 wrongful discharge claim.

5 II. Constructive Discharge Component of Statutory Claims

6 As noted above, if plaintiff does not assert a constructive 7 discharge as a basis for the adverse employment action prong of his 8 statutory claims, defendant's motion as to that prong of the 9 statutory claims is granted without further need for discussion.

10 To the extent plaintiff does assert such a claim, however, I 11 conclude that no reasonable juror would find a constructive
12 discharge based on the facts in the record, and thus, I grant 13 defendant's motion.

14 A. Legal Standards

15 Under Oregon law, a discharge is "constructive" if a 16 resignation is forced by unacceptable working conditions. Bratcher 17 v. Sky Chefs, Inc., 308 Or. 501, 503-04, 783 P.2d 4, 5 (1989).
18 More specifically, to prove constructive discharge, a plaintiff 19 must show that (1) the employer intentionally created working 20 conditions that (2) were so intolerable that a reasonable person 21 would have resigned; and (3) the employer created these conditions 22 because it wanted the employee to resign; and (4) the employee left 23 because of those conditions. McGanty v. Staudenraus, 321 Or. 532, 24 557, 901 P.2d 841, 856-57 (1995). The test is an objective one, 25 not a subjective one. Id.

26 In order to prove constructive discharge under federal law, 27 plaintiff must show that the working conditions were so intolerable 28 that a reasonable person in the employee's position would have felt

1 compelled to resign. Poland v. Chertoff, 494 F.3d 1174, 1184 (9th
2 Cir. 2007). The constructive discharge occurs when the working 3 conditions deteriorate as a result of discrimination to the point 4 that they become sufficiently extraordinary and egregious to 5 overcome the normal motivation of a competent, diligent, and 6 reasonable employee to remain on the job to earn a livelihood and 7 to serve his or her employer. Id.

8 B. Discussion

9 Defendant notes that at the time plaintiff voluntarily
10 resigned, he was working five, eight-hour shifts which caused him 11 no difficulty. Plaintiff acknowledged that if he needed to leave 12 early or was tired while working a four, ten-hour shift week, he 13 was allowed to do so. He admitted that he was never threatened 14 with termination or told he was going to be fired. He failed to 15 follow-up directly with Hill after giving Hill the letter in 2003 16 and after Allen told him to talk with Hill, and he waited until 17 spring of 2005 to meet with Ripa, about a host of issues, not just 18 the schedule. Even after meeting with Ripa, he failed to provide 19 her with the requested medical documentation and worked another 20 season of the four, ten-hour shift schedule, before resigning.

21 Plaintiff contends that it is not the four, ten-hour shifts 22 that were intolerable, but defendant's failure to engage in the 23 interactive process and the failure to accommodate his disability 24 that created the intolerable conditions. He argues that a 25 reasonable jury could conclude that defendant repeatedly ignored 26 plaintiff's accommodation requests and could conclude that this was 27 intentional, evidencing defendant's intent to force plaintiff to 28 resign. He suggests that the failure to engage in the interactive

1 process and the failure to accommodate, with the resulting 2 worsening of his condition, amount to intolerable working 3 conditions for a person with his disability.

4 Plaintiff's argument is inconsistent with a statutory scheme
5 that recognizes distinct theories of violation. That is, plaintiff 6 would have every failure to accommodate or failure to engage in the 7 interactive process, without more, support a claim for adverse 8 employment action as long as the employee resigned without 9 receiving an accommodation. I see no support for this in either 10 statute.

11 I do not mean to suggest that a failure to engage in the 12 interactive process or the failure to accommodate can never be 13 relevant to a disability discrimination claim based on a theory of 14 adverse employment action. But, it simply goes too far to conclude 15 that a failure to accommodate or failure to engage in the 16 interactive process is, by definition, and without more, an 17 intolerable working condition capable of supporting a constructive
18 discharge claim.

19 The facts of each case must be considered. And, while the 20 merits of the failure to engage and failure to accommodate claims 21 are not at issue in the motion, it is relevant to note, in 22 assessing whether the working conditions were so intolerable as to 23 support a constructive discharge, that the interactive process 24 "requires participation by both parties[,]" Beck v. University of 27 required when the employee fails to provide requested documentation 28 of his or her medical condition. See Kratzer v. Rockwell Collins,

3 failed to provide requested updated physical evaluation); Allen v.
4 Pacific Bell, 348 F.3d 1113, 1115 (9th Cir. 2003) (absent 5 additional medical evidence from plaintiff regarding a change in

7 interactive process); Templeton v. Neodata Servs., Inc., 162 F.3d

21 Furthermore, the facts on this record, even when coupled with 22 success on the failure to engage in the interactive process and 23 failure to accommodate claims, cannot support a conclusion that 24 defendant's actions in this case amount to intolerable working 25 conditions.

26 CONCLUSION

27 Defendant's motion for summary judgment (#18) is granted, 28 resulting in the dismissal of plaintiff's common-law wrongful

1 discharge claim and the portion of the plaintiff's statutory claims 2 asserting an adverse employment action based on constructive
3 discharge. Defendant's motion to strike (#33) is denied as moot.

4 IT IS SO ORDERED.
