Overlawyered

Chronicling the high cost of our legal system

Archives; welcome Google News readers; tags

by Walter Olson on May 19, 2008

I've now succeeded in transferring the site's pre-2003 archives to the new WordPress platform, which means they'll be indexed along with more recent posts; no more having to do separate searches in each of two indexes. Moreover, I've gotten the old URLs of those archives to redirect seamlessly to the new. Coming up soon: getting the old URLs of the MT-based 2003-2008 archives to redirect to the new, as much as possible.

One unexpected result of the archive changeover: Google News interpreted the arrival of the archived files on WordPress as if they'd been newly published, which has (temporarily) much expanded our presence on that site. Fortunately, the archives are prominently marked as such, which should keep readers from mistaking them for recent reportage.

Also, Ted and I have been busy "tagging" a selection of recent and older posts. Tags display on the post itself, and those most used appear in a "tag cloud" toward the bottom of the rightmost column. Bear in mind that we've only made a small start toward tagging past posts, so if you follow the "California" tag, for instance, it will lead you to only seven California-related posts as of the moment.

Finally, the little gavel favicon in the navigation bar is back.
