

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

KRIS L. WEINSCHENKER,

Plaintiff,

v.

ELECTRONICALLY FILED

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Defendants.

Memorandum Opinion and Order of Court

May 10, 2006

Plaintiff Kris L. Weinschekner has filed another lawsuit naming the United States of America as defendant, but it is really against this Court (“defendant is The United States of America, acting through and empowering Federal District Judge Arthur J. Schwab and the Western 3rd Federal district court”), based upon this Court’s Order of April 6, 2006. Specifically, plaintiff’s complaint “challenges the Constitutionality of the Orders of the Court by Federal Judge Arthur J. Schwab to summarily dismiss with prejudice the plaintiff’s civil actions # 06-Cv-405 and #06-Cv-519.” Complaint (Document No. 1) at ¶ 1 and ¶ 5.

On April 6, 2006, the Court dismissed plaintiff’s frivolous complaint by Memorandum Opinion and Order, pertinent portions of which are repeated below:

Plaintiff Kris L. Weinschekner paid his filing fee and filed a pro se complaint pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 alleging amorphous civil rights violations against a host of mostly public officials, which occurred “from February 2003 until the present.” In his complaint, plaintiff claims that his constitutional rights were “systematically usurped by the defendants” by a series of events related to his criminal prosecution in the Court of Common Pleas of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. In general, plaintiff alleges that, in his criminal trial in that Court, his retained and court appointed attorneys and the prosecutors conspired to suppress evidence about his religious faith which would have been exculpatory, that the district justice and two judges of the Court of Common Pleas “were complicit in this degradation of the plaintiff’s Constitutional rights,” and that the Warden “subjected [plaintiff] to cruel and unusual punishment as a result of his religious faith while incarcerated at Westmoreland County Prison.” Complaint, ¶ 1.

In addition to the judicial officers, attorneys and warden, the other defendants are an officer of the Pennsylvania State Police who arrested plaintiff, an employee of Westmoreland County Adult Probation Office, and the “34 year old female who is the alleged victim” of the offenses with which plaintiff was tried and convicted. (Plaintiff does not enumerate the nature of offenses with which he was charged and convicted.)

This complaint is legally insufficient and is incurable, based upon the affirmative allegations contained in the complaint and well established legal precedent, and, therefore, this Court will dismiss the complaint sua sponte.

Although the public officials and plaintiff’s victim, who are the subject of plaintiff’s claims, have not yet been put to the expense of time and resources to file their inevitable motions to dismiss, the Court will gauge this complaint by the above standards - therefore, the Court has accepted all of plaintiff’s facts as true (but this assumption is made only for purposes of testing the legal sufficiency of the complaint), has given him the benefit of all reasonable inferences from the facts as he alleges, and has resolved all doubts in plaintiff’s favor. Having done so, the Court holds that all of plaintiff’s claims are without legal merit, based upon the affirmative allegations of his complaint.

The specifics set forth in plaintiff’s complaint are as follows: he was arrested and never “Mirandized;” the arresting state trooper swore out a criminal complaint containing false information; the district justice should never have held him for trial nor set bail at $50,000; a probation officer testified falsely against him; the District Attorney and his assistants falsely prosecuted him on two charges (at Court of Common Pleas of Westmoreland County docket numbers 883C2003 and 5129C2004); his lawyers failed to advance his cause of religious persecution and otherwise aided the prosecution; the judges were complicitous in securing an unlawful conviction; one of his convictions was upheld in post conviction proceedings, which were just completed in December 2005, when one of the judges dismissed his PCRA petition at 5129C2004 and granted an appeal nunc pro tunc at 883C2003, which appeal is still pending. The claim against defendant Walton, the Warden at "Westmoreland County Prison," is, apparently, that the warden denied plaintiff his right to freely exercise his religion by preventing him from committing suicide by means of a religiously-motivated hunger strike. There are no specific claims against the victim, other than the implicit complaint that she complained about him and that her father allegedly works in the Westmoreland County Coroner's office.

Discussion

The judges, including the district justice, are absolutely immune from suit, since all of the complained of acts were committed in their judicial capacities. See Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349, 356-57(1978) (citation omitted) . . . .

The prosecutors are all entitled to absolute immunity in this case. In initiating prosecutions and in presenting the State's case, prosecutors are completely immune from civil suit for damages under section 1983. Imbler v. Pachtman, 424 U.S. 409, 430 (1976); Kulwicki v. Dawson, 969 F.2d 1454, 1463 (3d Cir.1992). . . . Thus, plaintiff's claims against the District Attorney and his Assistant District Attorneys are foreclosed by prosecutorial immunity.

As to plaintiff's lawyers, it is "well-established that defense attorneys, no matter whether they are privately retained, court-appointed, or employed as public defenders, do not act under color of state law." Harmon v. Delaware Secretary of State, 154 Fed.Appx. 283, 284-85 (3d Cir. 2005), citing Polk County v. Dodson, 454 U.S. 312 (1981).

Plaintiff's claims against these and the other public officials are also barred by the existence of his criminal prosecution in state court, which has not been resolved favorably to him, because these claims "would necessarily imply the invalidity of his conviction or sentence," and hence are barred by Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477, 487(1994). See Gilles v. Davis, 427 F.3d 197, 208- 210 (3d Cir. 2005). To the extent Plaintiff seeks federal review over the judgment of a state court, he also is barred by the Rooker-Feldman doctrine. See Exxon Mobile Corp. v. Saudi Basic Indus. Corp., --- U.S. ----, 125 S.Ct. 1517, 161 L.Ed.2d 454 (2005); District of Columbia Court of Appeals v. Feldman, 460 U.S. 462(1983); Rooker v. Fidelity Trust Co., 263 U.S. 413 (1923). Similarly, the doctrines of claim and issue preclusion prevent plaintiff from suing any defendant, including the victim of his proven criminal wrongdoings for which he has been convicted in Pennsylvania courts.

Plaintiff's claims against the warden, presumably First Amendment - Freedom of Exercise of Religion, but perhaps the Eight Amendment too, are frivolous. See Grand Jury Subpoena John Doe v. United States, 150 F.3d 170, 172 (2nd Cir. 1998) (reviewing district court's force-feeding order, court holds that "we, like the majority of courts that have considered the question, hold that such an order does not violate a hunger-striking prisoner's constitutional rights. . . .

For all of the foregoing reasons, this Court deems it appropriate to sua sponte dismiss plaintiff's complaint now, without putting defendants to the time and expense of responding to his frivolous complaint with inevitable motions to dismiss, because his own affirmative averments therein and the well established law demonstrate that he has no legitimate claims and that any amendment to his complaint would be futile. Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, this 6th day of April, 2006, that plaintiff Kris L. Weinschknor's complaint is DISMISSED in its entirety, with prejudice.

The Clerk of Court shall mark this case closed.

Plaintiff thereafter filed a complaint against the United States of America, but, like the current complaint, the real defendant was this Court. Plaintiff claimed that this Court's Order of April 6, 2006 dismissing his first suit sua sponte, was unconstitutional. The Court denied the second complaint, again sua sponte, on the basis that a court is absolutely immune from civil suit for its rulings against a litigant in a matter before the Court, citing Stump. See Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349, 356-57 (1978) (citation omitted) ("A judge will not be deprived of immunity because the action he took was in error, was done maliciously, or was in excess of his authority; rather, he will be subject to liability only when he has acted in the 'clear absence of all jurisdiction.'" ); Gallas v. Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, 211 F.3d 760, 768-69 (3d Cir. 2000).

The Court advised plaintiff in its Memorandum Opinion and Order of April 22, 2006, that he “may appeal this Court’s dispositive rulings to the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit and attempt to convince them that the Court erred in dismissing his complaint.” Instead of exercising his right to appeal the Court’s rulings to the Court of Appeals within 30 days of the adverse decision, plaintiff has filed another frivolous complaint against this Court, alleging that it erred in dismissing his complaints without waiting for a response by defendants, without addressing some of his issues, and because the second opinion “merely regurgitates the same vapid opinion issued in 06-Cv-0415 which the plaintiff challenged.”

Because this complaint is related to the previous two complaints, it was assigned to this Court. In it, plaintiff seeks to have “both orders of the Court . . . overturned” as well as “unspecified monetary damages for further degradation of his Constitutional Rights by a Federal Judiciary . . . .” This complaint will also be dismissed, sua sponte. If there had been any conceivable merit to it, the Court might have considered whether it was appropriate to recuse and have it reassigned to another federal district court judge, but because it is so obviously without merit, that would be a waste of judicial resources. This Court deems it appropriate to sua sponte dismiss plaintiff’s complaint now, because his own affirmative averments therein and the well established law demonstrate that he has no legitimate claims, and that any amendment to his complaint would be futile.

Any request for money damages is squarely foreclosed by the doctrine of judicial immunity, and to the extent plaintiff is seeking to have this Court’s orders overturned, his remedy is an appeal to the Court having authority to review this Court’s final decisions, namely, the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit pursuant to 28 U.S.C.A. § 1291 and the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure.

For the foregoing reasons, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, this 10th day of May, 2006, that plaintiff Kris L. Weinschkner's complaint is DISMISSED in its entirety, with prejudice. The Clerk of Court shall mark this case closed.
