2 DISTRICT OF PUERTO RICO

GEORGE A. MILLER,

Plaintiff,

v.

COMMONWEALTH OF PUERTO RICO,
et al.,

Defendants.

Civil No. 13-1347 (JAF)

6 OPINION AND ORDER

7 We consider the defendants' motion to dismiss on Eleventh Amendment immunity
8 and absolute immunity grounds.

9 I.

10 Background

11 George Miller, a disabled veteran, alleges that the defendants conspired with his 12 former landlord to discriminate against him based on the eviction case his landlord filed
13 against him in Commonwealth court. Miller also claims his former landlord
14 discriminated against him on account of his disability. (Docket No. 2.)

15 Miller filed a pro-se complaint under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and Title VII of the Civil 16 Rights Act seeking redress for alleged constitutional violations against multiple
17 defendants, including the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Puerto Rico Office of Court
18 Administration, the Judicial Center of Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, the Puerto Rico Police
19 Department, and Superior Court Judge Carmen Lugo-Irizarry. (Docket No. 2.) The 20

1 Commonwealth defendants, including Judge Carmen Lugo-Irizarry, moved to dismiss.
2 (Docket No. 17).

4 Legal Standard

5 A. Motion to Dismiss Standard

8 A plaintiff's complaint will survive a motion to dismiss if it alleges sufficient facts
9 to establish a plausible claim for relief. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(6); Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556
10 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (citing Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007)). In 11 assessing a claim's plausibility, the court must construe the complaint in the plaintiff's
12 favor, accept all non-conclusory allegations as true, and draw any reasonable inferences
13 in favor of the plaintiff. Rodríguez-Ramos v. Hernández-Gregorat, 685 F.3d 34, 39-40
14 (1st Cir. 2012) (citation omitted).

15 B. Claims Raised Under 42 U.S.C. § 1983

16 Section 1983 creates a cause of action against those who, acting under color of 17 state law, violate a plaintiff's constitutional or federal rights. See 42 U.S.C. § 1983;
18 Maine v. Thiboutot, 448 U.S. 1, 4(1980).

20 Discussion

21 Defendants argue that because the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has not
22 consented to be sued they are entitled to Eleventh Amendment immunity in their official
23 capacities. (Docket No. 30 at 17-18.) We agree.

1 The Eleventh Amendment of the United States Constitution bars suits in federal
2 courts by private parties seeking damages that would be paid from the state treasury.
3 Quern v. Jordan, 440 U.S. 332, 337 (1979). Unless the state consents to be sued, the
4 Eleventh Amendment proscribes suits against a state or one of its departments. Pennhurst
5 State School & Hospital v. Halderman, 465 U.S. 89, 100 (1984). Immunity extends to 6 state agencies and their officials when the agency or institution is characterized as an arm
7 or alter ego of the state or when it should be treated instead as a political subdivision of
8 the state. Mt. Healthy City School Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 280
9 (1977); see also Frensenius Medical Care Cardiovascular Resources, Inc. v. Puerto Rico
10 and Caribbean Cardiovascular Center Corp., 322 F.3d 56, 63 (1st Cir. 2003) (twin goals
11 of the Eleventh Amendment—protection of the state's treasury and of its dignitary
12 interests—explicitly govern the arm-of-the-state analysis.). The Commonwealth of 13 Puerto Rico enjoys the protection of the Eleventh Amendment. See Maysonet-Robles v.
14 Cabrero, 323 F.3d 43, 53 (1st Cir.2003).

15 Furthermore, the Supreme Court has decided that neither a state nor its agencies
16 are “persons” susceptible to being sued under Section 1983. Will v. Michigan
17 Department of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 71 (1989); Quern, 440 U.S. at 339–42.

18 Here, because the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, including its instrumentalities,
19 has not consented to be sued, we dismiss Miller’s claims with prejudice.

20 In addition to the claims brought against the Commonwealth, Miller has also
21 asserted claims that Respondent Irizarry, a Commonwealth superior court judge, engaged
22 in a conspiracy to deprive Miller of his rights. The violations that Miller alleges against

1 Defendant Irizarry are judicial in nature and were made in conjunction with her role in
2 his Commonwealth case.

3 It is well settled that when judges are performing judicial functions they are
4 absolutely immune from civil liability. Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349, 363-64
5 (1978); see also Francis v. Crafts, 203 F.2d 809, 811 (1st Cir. 1953) (Judicial immunity
6 from civil liability for acts done in their official functions is firmly and deeply rooted in
7 traditions of Anglo-American Law). Even where, as here, judges are accused of deciding
8 a case due to improper motives, they are entitled to absolute immunity. Guzman-Rivera
9 v. Lucena-Zabala, 642 F.3d 92, 96 (1st Cir. 2011); Pierson v. Ray, 386 U.S. 547, 554
10 (1967) (“[I]mmunity applies even when the judge is accused of acting maliciously and 11 corruptly”).

12 Judicial immunity is overcome in only two sets of circumstances: For actions not
13 taken in the judge’s judicial capacity; and for actions taken in complete absence of all
14 jurisdiction. Mireles v. Waco, 502 U.S. 9, 11 (1991).

15 Here, Miller fails to allege any conduct that would defeat absolute immunity.
16 Therefore, we dismiss Miller’s claims against Respondent Irizarry with prejudice.

17 Finally, the defendants argue that Miller has failed to state a claim. (Docket
18 No. 17 at 6-7.) We see no need to address this since the reasons stated above foreclose
19 Miller’s claims.

1 IV.

2 Conclusion

5 For the foregoing reasons, the defendants' motion to dismiss, (Docket No. 17), is 6 GRANTED. The plaintiff's federal law claims are DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.
7 IT IS SO ORDERED.
