CASE MANAGEMENT ORDER

Pursuant to Rule 16.01(d) of the Local Rules of the Court, the Parties have conferred and have submitted this proposed initial case management order:

I. Jurisdiction

Plaintiff submits that the Court's jurisdiction in this case is predicated on Title 28 U.S.C. § 1332.

II. Parties' Theories of the Case

A. Plaintiff's Theory

On or about April 8, 2010 at approximately 2:00 p.m., Plaintiff RANDELL RIPPETOE purchased 135 fencing boards from the Lowe's Home Improvement Store located at 3060 Mallory Lane in Franklin, Tennessee.

On said date, time and place, Plaintiff was instructed to proceed to the contractor's loading area of the property at 3060 Mallory Lane in Franklin, Tennessee.

On said date, time and place, Plaintiff positioned his pickup truck in the assigned area and began to prepare to secure the lumber he bought.

On said date, time and place, Lowe's Home Improvement employee, JOHN DOE, in the scope and course of his duties, approached Plaintiff's vehicle with the aforementioned lumber on a forklift.

At said date, time and place, JOHN DOE, negligently lifted the load of lumber to an unreasonable height in the air with the forklift he was operating.

At said date, time and place the lumber fell from that height and struck Plaintiff causing serious bodily injury.

As a proximate result of Defendant JOHN DOE's negligence in the operation of said forklift, the Plaintiff has suffered serious and permanent physical injuries, pain and suffering, incurred medical treatment and expenses, disability, and other damages and expenses, for all of which the Defendant JOHN DOE is liable and Plaintiffs deserve to be compensated.

Upon information and belief, Defendant, LOWE'S HOME IMPROVEMENT, LLC, knew of, or in the exercise of reasonable care, should have known that Defendant, JOHN DOE, who was the operator of the forklift that was involved in the accident referenced herein, was not properly trained, skilled and/or supervised and should not have been entrusted with the control of this dangerous heavy machinery for use in the course and scope of its employer/employee relationship with Defendant, JOHN DOE.

Defendant, LOWE'S HOME IMPROVEMENT, LLC, was negligent in its failure to train and/or supervise Defendant JOHN DOE.

The negligence of Defendant, LOWE'S HOME IMPROVEMENT, LLC, was the proximate cause of the injuries sustained by Plaintiff.

B. Theory of the Defendants- Lowe's denies any and all allegations of negligence, fault and liability, including those above, and including those asserted in the Complaint, as well as any other allegation of fault, liability and negligence as against Lowe's or it's employees. Lowe's denies that it or it's employee negligently operated the subject fork lift, negligently worked with the subject lumber, or in any way acted negligently. Further, Lowe's denies that either Lowe's or their employee caused the subject lumber in question to fall, and instead, it is asserted that it was the Plaintiff, Randell Rippetoe whom caused the lumber to fall. This constitutes no negligence on the part of Lowe's, and further, the Plaintiff's claims are barred, or shall be proportionally reduced, pursuant to the Doctrine of comparative fault and comparative negligence, due to Mr. Rippetoe causing the lumbar to fall, and due to any other fault or negligence of the Plaintiff, Randell Rippetoe. Any fault and negligence of Randell Rippetoe is imputed to Laura Rippetoe. Further, the Defendants do not have sufficient proof that the Plaintiff suffered any significant injury as a result of this, in that discovery is not yet completed. As such, the Defendants deny the allegations of injuries and damages as asserted by the Plaintiffs. Likewise, to the extent (if applicable after the discovery process is completed) that the Plaintiffs have failed to mitigate their damages, the Defendants rely upon same as well. Additionally, the Defendant's have pled in their Answer failure to join an indispensable party, insufficiency of process and insufficiency of service of process, due to the wrong Lowe's entity being sued, and due to a John Doe employee being stated in the Complaint, and any said applicable defenses are relied upon in that regard as well. The Parties have, however, submitted an order to the Court agreeing to substitute in the correct Lowe's entity, Lowe's Home Centers Inc. Additionally, the Plaintiff has filed this case in Federal Court, however diversity of citizenship is not present if the John Doe employee is a Tennessee Resident.
