3. All references to "Plaintiff(s)" throughout this Complaint are made on behalf of the named Plaintiff(s) and the proposed plaintiff class(es), and vice versa.

5. Defendant, Carrier IQ, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as "CIQ") is a citizen of California as defined by 28 U.S.C. § 1332(c) with its principal place of business in California.

6. Defendants HTC, Inc. and HTC America (collectively referred to as "HTC") are citizens of Washington, with their principle place of business in Bellevue, Washington.

7. Defendants are residents of the Eastern District of Texas as they have ongoing and systematic contacts with residents of the Eastern District of Texas. STATEMENT OF FACTS

9. Defendant, CIQ is the leading provider of mobile services intelligence solutions to the wireless industry.

10. Defendant, CIQ claims on their website “As the only embedded analytics company to support millions of devices simultaneously, we give wireless carriers and handset manufacturers unprecedented insight into their customers mobile experience.”

11. Defendant, CIQ uses software in mobile phones to measure performance and user experience with no visible notice or impact to the user.

12. Defendant, CIQ’s data processing center collects the data for near real-time monitoring and intelligence.

13. Defendant, CIQ is the only company in the industry embedding diagnostic software in millions of mobile phones, having done so in over 130 million phones globally.

14. Defendant, CIQ captures and records every keystroke entered on the mobile device, as well as location and other data.

15. Defendant, HTC produces mobile phones and handsets, including “Android” smart phones.

16. The CIQ software is embedded in HTC Android phones.

17. The information collected by CIQ is transmitted to various service providers, including Sprint and AT&T.

18. Plaintiff, Joseph Cosme owns an HTC Android phone using the AT&T network. At all relevant times Plaintiff used His phone to electronically send over His cell phone network various types of private data. This data was not readily accessible to the general public. He did not know that Defendants were surreptitiously monitoring and collecting this data, nor did he give them permission to do so.

19. Defendants intercepted, recorded and collected information concerning the substance, purport, or meaning of the electronic communications transmitted without the authorization of the parties to those communications.

20. During all times relevant herein, Plaintiff used and maintained a cellular phone on the AT&T wireless network.

21. Plaintiff and Class Members, as defined below, were unaware of Defendant’s wrongful conduct, and unable to discover it until December 2011, as Defendants conduct by nature was secret and concealed.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

22. This action is brought as a class action by Plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and on behalf of all those similarly situated pursuant to Rule 23(a) and 23(b)(1), (2), and (3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The proposed class is defined as follows:

All United States residents who operate a cellular phone device manufactured by HTC, Inc. and/or HTC America, Inc. and from which Carrier IQ, Inc. collected electronic communications. (the “Class” or “Class Members”).

Specifically excluded from the class are: any Judge conducting proceedings in this action and their parents, spouses and children as well as any other member of their family residing in the judge’s household; counsel of record in this action; the legal representatives, heirs, successors and assigns of any excluded person.

23. The exact number of the members of the class (or sub-classes) is not presently known, but is so numerous that joinder of individual members in this action is impracticable. The exact number of the members of the class (or sub-classes) can only be ascertained through discovery, because such information is in the exclusive control of Defendant. However, based on the nature of the activities alleged herein, Plaintiffs believe that the members of the class (or sub-classes) number the millions and are geographically dispersed throughout the United States. The addresses of the members of the class (or sub-classes) are readily obtainable from the Defendants and their agents and on information and belief are maintained in the computer database of Defendants and are easily retrievable.

24. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class (or sub-classes) and have retained counsel that are experienced and capable in class action litigation. Plaintiffs understand and appreciate their duties to the class (or sub-classes) under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23 and are committed to vigorously protecting the rights of absent members of the class (or sub-classes).

25. Plaintiffs are asserting claims that are typical of the claims of each member of the class (or sub-classes) they seek to represent, in that the claims of all members of the class (or sub-classes), including Plaintiffs, depend upon a showing that the Defendants violated federal law. All claims alleged on behalf of the class (or sub-classes) flow from this conduct as well. Further, there is no conflict between any Plaintiff and other members of the class (or sub-classes) with respect to this action.

26. There is a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented. Questions of law and fact arising out of Defendants' conduct are common to all members of the class (or sub-classes), and such common issues of law and fact predominate over any questions affecting only individual members of the class (or sub-classes).

27. Common issues of law and fact include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a. Whether the data collected from Plaintiffs' cellular phone devices are electronic communications protected by the Federal Wiretap Act.;
- b. Whether Defendants' interception of data collected from Plaintiffs' devices was intentional within the meaning of the Federal Wiretap Act;
- c. The proper measure of damages under the Federal Wiretap Act;

28. The relief sought is common to the entirety of the class (or sub-classes).

29. Defendants have acted on grounds generally applicable to the class (or sub-classes), thereby making final injunctive relief or corresponding injunctive relief appropriate with respect to the class (or sub-classes) as a whole.

30. This action is properly maintained as a class action in that the prosecution of separate actions by individual members would create a risk of adjudication with respect to individual members which would establish incompatible standards of conduct for the Defendants.

31. This action is properly maintained as a class action in that the prosecution of separate actions by individual members of the class (or sub-classes) would create a risk of adjudications with respect to individual members of each class (or sub-classes) which would, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the other members not parties to the adjudication, or would substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests.

32. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the claims asserted herein given that, among other things:

- (i) significant economies of time, effort, and expense will inure to the benefit of the Court and the parties in litigating the common issues on a class-wide instead of a repetitive individual basis.
- (ii) the size of the individual damage claims of most members of the class (or sub-classes) is too small to make individual litigation an economically viable alternative, such that few members of the class (or sub-classes) have any interest in individually controlling the prosecution of a separate action;
- (iii) without the representation provided by Plaintiffs herein, few, if any, members of the class (or sub-classes) will receive legal representation or redress for their injuries;
- (iv) class treatment is required for optimal deterrence;
- (v) despite the relatively small size of the claims of many individual members of the class (or sub-classes), their aggregate volume coupled with the economies of scale inherent in litigating similar claims on a common basis, will enable this case to be litigated as a class action on a cost effective basis, especially when compared with respective individual litigation;

- (vi) no unusual difficulties are likely to be encountered in the management of this class action;
- (vii) plaintiffs and members of the class (or sub-classes) have all suffered irreparable harm and damages as a result of Defendants' unlawful and wrongful conduct;

33. Concentrating this litigation in one forum would aid judicial economy and efficiency, promote parity among the claims of the individual members of the class (or sub-classes), and result in judicial consistency.

COUNT I

34. Plaintiffs incorporate the allegations contained in Paragraphs 1 through 33 as if fully set out herein.

35. The Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, also known as the Federal Wiretap Act, 18 U.S.C. § 2510 et seq., provides:

[A]ny person who-- ... intentionally intercepts, endeavors to intercept, ... any wire, oral, or electronic communication; ... shall be punished as provided in subsection (4) or shall be subject to suit as provided in subsection (5).

18 U.S.C.A. § 2511.

36. At all times relevant hereto, Plaintiffs, and Class Members were persons entitled to the protection of 18 U.S.C. § 2511 as they were individuals who were party to electronic communications.

37. On information and belief, Defendants intercepted information concerning the substance, purport, or meaning of Plaintiffs' electronic communications on more than one occasion.

38. The Federal Wiretap Act also provides that:

[A]ny person whose wire, oral, or electronic communication is intercepted, disclosed, or intentionally used in violation of this chapter may in a civil action recover from the person or entity ... which engaged in that violation such relief as may be appropriate.

In an action under this section, appropriate relief includes -- ... (2) damages under subsection (c) and punitive damages in appropriate cases; and (3) a reasonable attorney's fee and other litigation costs reasonably incurred ... [T]he court may assess as damages whichever is the greater of -- (A) the sum of the actual damages suffered by the plaintiff and any profits made by the violator as a result of the violation; or (B) statutory damages of whichever is the greater of $100 a day for each violation or $10,000.

18 U.S.C. § 2520

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs and the Class pray that the Court enter judgment in their favor and against Defendants as follows:

- a. Ordering that this action be maintained as a class action pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and
- b. Declaring that Defendant's collection of electronic communications violates 18 U.S.C. §2511; and
- c. Awarding Plaintiffs and Class Members statutory damages pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 2520, including punitive damages, costs of suit, and attorneys' fees; and
- d. Injunctive and declaratory relief as deemed appropriate.

Respectfully submitted
