H.R. No. 1001

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, The Texas House of Representatives is proud to pay tribute to the Dublin Dr Pepper Bottling Company on the historic occasion of its 100th anniversary, June 7, 1991; and

WHEREAS, Now the oldest Dr Pepper bottling plant in the world, the company was founded in 1891 by Sam Houston Prim, a Dublin entrepreneur who also operated a local icehouse, feed store, and coal business; though soda pops were considered something of a luxury at the time, the demand for Dr Pepper quickly grew, and Mr. Prim eventually sold a portion of his business to devote more time to bottling the popular soft drink; and

WHEREAS, Following Mr. Prim's passing in 1946, management of this successful enterprise was carried on by his daughter, Mrs. Grace Lyon, who ably piloted the business through a period of considerable growth and expansion; during these years, older machinery was replaced with the most modern equipment available, enabling plant workers to dramatically increase production to an unprecedented rate of 180 cases an hour; and

WHEREAS, Today, the Dublin Dr Pepper Bottling Company is still a family enterprise, skillfully overseen by veteran general manager Bill Kloster and his grandson, sales manager Mark Kloster; under their capable guidance, the plant has continued a proud tradition of growth and prosperity, as evidenced by the recent expansion project that added more than 12,000 square feet to the original facility; and

WHEREAS, The Klosters have also insisted on faithfully retaining the original Dr Pepper recipe, the only one of the company's bottlers to do so; though other plants switched to corn syrup sweeteners in 1979, Bill Kloster has continued making his blend with pure cane sugar, a more expensive choice but one that has earned him the undying gratitude of true Dr Pepper fans across the nation; and

WHEREAS, As befits a family business, the festivities surrounding the company's centennial celebration will overlap with a more personal occasion when Mr. Kloster and his wife, Iona, celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary a few days later, accompanied by their son, William Edward Kloster, and grandsons, Mark and Jeff; a vital part of the business herself, Mrs. Kloster has contributed her expertise as the plant's accountant and office manager for approximately 15 years; and

WHEREAS, For the past century, the Dublin Dr Pepper Bottling Company has exemplified the strength and value of our state's family businesses, producing a soft drink that has provided refreshment and enjoyment for generations of appreciative customers; on the occasion of its 100th anniversary, it is indeed fitting that this fine company receive special legislative praise and recognition for its exceptional contributions in carrying on a proud Texas tradition; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the House of Representatives of the 72nd Texas Legislature hereby honor the Dublin Dr Pepper Bottling Company on the occasion of its centennial celebration, June 7, 1991, and extend warmest best wishes to all who have contributed their time and energies to the success of this worthy enterprise; and, be it further

RESOLVED, That an official copy of this resolution be prepared for the Dublin Dr Pepper Bottling Company as an expression of esteem by the Texas House of Representatives.
