Tim – I hope all is well. Attached is the rest of the document that Chase Paymentech found from Museum Publications of America. Paymentech's attorney references "Hanover Direct" in her cover letter, do you know if Museum Publications of America was the predecessor to Hanover Direct? If not, the relationship between the two companies?

Based on the documents here – was NPC the "processor" and Litle & Co the "ISO" as it would relate in "today's world" – meaning Litle & Co did the underwriting, risk and customer service and/or outsourced any of these functions and NPC handle the authorization, capture and settlement (through First National Bank of Louisville) similar to how Global, First Data, Paymentech, NPC/Bank of America do today for ISOs?
