Re: AdvanceMe, Inc. v RapidPay LLC, et al. (No. 6:05-cv-00424) (E.D. Tex.)
Reach Financial's Initial Disclosures

Dear Ms. Preston:

We are in receipt of Reach Financial, LLC's (hereinafter "Reach Financial") Initial Disclosures and write to request a telephonic conference – on Wednesday, July 19, 2006, at 1:00 p.m.(EST) – to discuss apparent deficiencies in your document production. This letter and the proposed telephonic conference constitute good faith attempts to resolve the dispute as to the deficiencies in your document production without Court intervention, as provided for under Local Rule CV-7(h).

As you are aware, Judge Davis' February 24, 2006, Discovery Order requires your client to produce to us a copy of all documents, data compilations, and tangible things in the possession, custody, or control of Reach Financial that are relevant to the pleaded claims or defenses in this action. The information contained in Reach Financial's initial disclosure of documents strongly suggests that First Funds is in possession, custody, or control of a significant number of documents that are relevant to the claims and defenses in this matter that were not produced to us. Accordingly, we do not believe that Reach Financial has met its disclosure obligations imposed by Judge Davis' Discovery Order, the Local Rules for the Eastern District of Texas, and the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

To assist Reach Financial in its efforts to produce documents relevant to the pleaded claims and defenses in this action, we provide you with the following list that sets forth the types of documents that AdvanceMe expects to receive from Reach Financial. We use the terms merchant, processor, and guarantor as these terms are used in the documents produced by Reach Financial (See, e.g., Reach Financial's Purchase Agreement (RF_00043-RF_00047)). The term "Merchant Financing Program" and "Cash Funding Program" refer to the cash advance programs referred to in the documents produced by Reach Financial, or any similar service offered by Reach Financial. Reach Financial should understand that this list is not exhaustive or exclusive; Reach Financial is obligated
