John,

Let me know when you can discuss. I thought we were discussing AEO information not confidential information. I assume you read the case that we submitted on litigation counsel so we are probably at an impasse on that issue.

I recall that you were going to propose an alternative on source code in terms of protecting Apple's interests in securing the information and making sure that it knows where all copies of the source code are and are appropriately restricted while also addressing our concern that Apple should not know in advance what source code our experts or attorneys intend to use.

Also, do you have a specific location at Apple for the meeting or a contact person?

Thanks.

Stan –

Apple doesn't want Mr. Gottfurcht to have access to its confidential information since he will inevitably be involved in prosecuting claims in continuation apps. Apple also doesn't want EMG's litigation counsel to participate in drafting claims in reexams. If I understand EMG's positions, I think we'll end up litigating these issues, but please let me know if there is any middle ground.

As to the source code provisions, I don't exactly remember where we left off, but I'm hoping we can work something out. I can do a call tomorrow to discuss.

John

John,

Do you know when we can expect to hear back on finalizing the protective order? Thanks.
