However, the parties disagree about the extent to which, if at all, the plaintiff may conduct discovery. The plaintiff contends that case law and ERISA permit discovery if the defendants have failed to provide a complete response to requests for information made during the pre-litigation appeal by the plaintiff and/or to the extent any conflict of interest by the defendants affected the decision making process in the case. Defendants contend that this case should be decided on the administrative record without any supplementation. By entering into this report, the parties do not waive their right to object to any discovery or designation of witnesses on these grounds.*

In the event there is a dispute as to the completeness of the administrative record and/or the necessity for or permissibility of discovery, a party may bring a motion with the court within 45 days of the production of initial disclosures (which shall include the entire administrative record) to have such issues determined by the
