Subject: RE: I/P Engine v. Google

David,

We would like to discuss, among other things:

- logistics for a source code inspection and the nature of any source code produced (including, among other things, the quantity and which components and/or directories would be included);
- Google's productions (including why some of the produced documents are redacted but are not listed on the privilege log, and why there are no emails or other correspondence in the production); and
- who at Google is the most knowledgeable about the modified system.

Meg,

Is counsel available for a teleconference later today to discuss I/P Engine's source code inspection as it relates to Google's alleged modifications to AdWords?
