II. LEGAL STANDARD

The touchstone of any award of attorney fees and expenses is reasonableness. SunTrust Mortg., Inc. v. AIG United Guar. Corp., 933 F. Supp. 2d 762, 769 (E.D. Va. 2013) (quoting E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Co. v. Kolon Indus., Inc., Civil Action No. 3:09cv058, 2013 WL 458532, at *2 (E.D. Va. Feb. 6, 2013)). The fee applicant bears the burden of demonstrating the reasonableness of its fee request, Kenney v. A Touch of Patience Shared Hous., Inc., 779 F. Supp. 2d 516, 525 (E.D. Va. 2011), and of “providing sufficient detail in [its] records to explain and support [its] requests for fees and costs.” Andrade v. Aerotek, Inc., 852 F. Supp. 2d 637, 645 (D. Md. 2012). Indeed, “the party who seeks payment must keep records in sufficient detail that a neutral judge can make a fair evaluation of the time expended, the nature and need for the service, and the reasonable fees to be allowed.” Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 441 (1983) (Burger, C.J., concurring).

To calculate an attorney fees award, the Court must determine a “lodestar fee.” Grissom v. The Miller Corp., 549 F.3d 313, 320-21 (4th Cir. 2008); Brodziak v. Runyon, 43 F.3d 194, 196

(4th Cir. 1998). The United States Supreme Court (“Supreme Court”) has stated that there is a “strong presumption” that the lodestar figure represents a reasonable attorney fee award, which may be overcome only “in those rare circumstances in which the lodestar does not adequately take into account a factor that may properly be considered in determining a reasonable fee.” Perdue v. Kenny A. ex rel. Winn, 559 U.S. 542, 553–54 (2010).

The lodestar fee is calculated by multiplying the number of reasonable hours expended times a reasonable rate. Id. The United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit (“Fourth Circuit”) has held that the twelve factors must be applied in determining the reasonable hourly rates and hours expended. See Daly v. Hill, 790 F.2d 1071, 1077 (4th Cir. 1986). These factors include:

- (1) the time and labor required;
- (2) the novelty and difficulty of the questions;
- (3) the skill requisite to properly perform the legal service;
- (4) the preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case;
- (5) the customary fee;
- (6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent;
- (7) time limitations imposed by the client or the circumstances;
- (8) the amount involved and the results obtained;
- (9) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys;
- (10) the “undesirability” of the case;
- (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and
- (12) awards in similar cases.

Id. at 1075 n.2 (citing Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-19 (5th Cir. 1974) Blanchard v. Bergeron, 489 U.S. 87 (1989); Barber v. Kimbrell’s, Inc., 577 F.2d 216, 226 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 439 U.S. 934 (1978)).

In addition, district courts “should exclude from [the] initial fee calculation hours that were not ‘reasonably expended.’ ” Hensley, 461 U.S. at 434 (quoting S. Rep. No. 94-1011, at 6 (1976)). Further, “[h]ours that are not properly billed to one’s client also are not properly billed to one's adversary pursuant to statutory authority." Id. at 434 (quoting Copeland v. Marshall, 641 F.2d 880, 891 (D.C. Cir. 1980)). The Fourth Circuit has held that, "[a] fee based upon reasonable rates and hours is presumed to be fully compensatory without producing a windfall." Daly, 790 F.2d at 1078. Ultimately, it is within the court's discretion, upon consideration of the lodestar factors, to alter the lodestar figure in accordance with its analysis. Lyle v. Food Lion, Inc., 954 F.2d 984 (4th Cir. 1992).

In determining "what constitutes a 'reasonable' number of hours and rate," the Court need not address all twelve factors independently, because "such considerations are usually subsumed within the initial calculation of hours reasonably expended at a reasonable hourly rate." Freeman v. Potter, No. 7:04cv276, 2006 WL 2631722, at *2 (W.D. Va. 2006) (citing Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 434 n. 9 (1983)).

III. DISCUSSION

(1) Factors One, Five, and Six: Required Time and labor; Customary fee; and Fixed or Contingent Fees

Defense counsel seeks $50,131.50¹ in attorney fees, and $653.25 in costs ($100 for service of out-of-town witness subpoena on John Rybarczyk); $35 in courier expenses; and $518.25 for 2073 copies made in connection with depositions and discovery). Defense counsel supported her motion for attorney fees with billing statements showing that she completed 178.3 hours of work in this case. ECF No. 57-1. Defense counsel submitted a declaration, on her own behalf, attesting that her fees were reasonable and that she "reduced [her] standard hourly billing rate of $325 per hour in 2016 and $315 per hour in 2015." ECF No. 55-8 at 2. Defense counsel also attested that she did not submit hours for paralegal or support staff time, or any internal costs through January 1, 2017. Id. at 3.

¹ Defendant has paid this amount in full, with the exception of defense counsel's most current statement.

Because the affidavit for attorney fees is submitted to provide the court with a survey of the legal market in the relevant practice area, and to determine the range of fees charged, an affidavit, submitted on one's own behalf, does not provide the court with a relevant survey of the market. See Spangler v Colonial Ophthalmology, 235 F. Supp. 2d 507, 511 (E.D. Va. Dec. 18, 2002); see also United States ex rel. Ubl v. IIF Data Sol., No. 1:06cv641, 2010 WL 1726767, at *8 (E.D. Va. Apr. 28, 2010) (“[M]erely relying upon an attorney’s own affidavit is [typically] insufficient to establish an acceptable market rate for attorney’s fees under this factor.”). As a result, the Court ordered defense counsel to submit an affidavit, from an attorney who was not a party to the matter, to attest to the reasonableness of defense counsel’s fees. See ECF No. 59.

Defense counsel submitted an affidavit from attorney Raymond L. Hogge, Jr. ECF No. 60. Attorney Hogge, who has practiced law for twenty five years, and whose primary area of practice is employment law, attested that Defense counsel’s “hourly rate of $325.00 is lower than the hourly rates charged by employment law practitioners in Hampton Roads having similar qualifications for litigation of this kind, and is reasonable.” Id.

Pursuant to the foregoing, the court finds that defense counsel’s rate, along with the number of hours worked in this case, are a reasonable basis for determining defense counsel’s attorney fee award. See Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433 (1983) (“The most useful starting point for determining the amount of a reasonable fee is the number of hours reasonably expended on the litigation multiplied by a reasonably hourly rate.”).

In that same vein, defense counsel’s attorney fee motion was not based upon a fixed rate or contingency fee agreement. Instead, defense counsel relied upon an hourly rate. As a result, the Court need not analyze this factor. For these reasons, the Court finds that defense counsel’s customary fee is reasonable.

(2) Second Factor: Novelty and Difficulty of the Questions

This case was a relatively straightforward ADEA case, and required minimal filings. See also Spangler, 235 F. Supp. 2d at 511. As a result, the Court finds that the issues presented in this case were neither novel nor difficult.

(3) Third and Ninth Factors: Skill Requisite to Properly Perform the Legal Services and Counsel's Experience, Reputation, and Ability

In light of Defense counsel's experience in employment law, as well as the case revolving around issues that were neither novel nor difficult, this case did not require a heightened level of skill to properly perform the legal service in this case. Accordingly, Defense counsel's experience, reputation, and ability also support defense counsel's hourly rate and fee. For example, defense counsel has more fifteen years of experience working in the employment and labor law field. See ECF No. 55-8 at 3; ECF No. 60 at ¶ 17. Prior to establishing defense counsel's own labor and employment private practice, Defense counsel practiced Labor & Employment law with Williams Mullen; formerly ran Bowman Green Hampton & Kelly's Labor & Employment Department; and formerly practiced labor and employment law with the Jackson Lewis law firm. Id. Defense counsel is also the current president of the Chesapeake Bar Association, and has received a numerous accolades such as being chosen as a Virginia Super Lawyer from 2014-2017 in Labor and Employment, and being selected as a "Top Litigation Lawyer Under 40" by the American Society of Legal Advocates. Id. at ¶ 20. According to attorney Howell, defense counsel is also known "as one of the best employment law practitioners representing both employers and employees in employment law litigation in Hampton Roads. ECF No. 60 at ¶ 22. Pursuant to the foregoing, the Court finds that this factor is favorable for a finding that defense counsel's hours and rate are reasonable.

(4) Fourth Factor: Preclusion of other employment by the attorney due to acceptance of the case

This case lasted approximately one year. During that period, Defense counsel spent between 0.1 hours and 7.0 hours working on this case per day. While defense counsel consistently worked on this case, in one instance, for example, defense counsel halted all work on this case for approximately five months. Additionally, defense counsel rarely worked on this case every day. For these reasons, defense counsel was not precluded from taking on other employment as the result of accepting this case. Accordingly, this factor is not favorable for a finding that defense counsel's hours and rate are reasonable.

(5) Eighth Factor: Amount Involved and Results Obtained

As noted earlier, defense counsel has moved for $50,131.50 in attorney fees, and $653.25 in costs.

In the Fourth Circuit, “[t]he most critical factor in calculating a reasonable fee award is the degree of success.” Brodziak v. Runyon, 145 F.3d 194, 196 (4th Cir.1998), (citing Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 436 (1983)); Farrar v. Hobby, 506 U.S. 103, 114–15 (1992). Plaintiff's degree of success is “entitled to great weight in the attorney's fee calculation.” Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Emp. Res. Mgt., 176 F. Supp. 2d 510, 536 (D.S.C.2001). While Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 41(d) does not provide for an award of attorney fees as a matter of right, a district court may, “. . . within its discretion, award attorneys' fees where it makes a specific finding that the plaintiff has acted ‘in bad faith, vexatiously, wantonly, or for oppressive reasons[.]’” Andrews v. Am. Living Ctr., LLC., 827 F.3d 306, 311 (4th Cir. 2016). Accordingly, “[a] determination of bad faith, vexation, or forum shopping is ‘a finding of fact underlying the district court's discretionary decision to award fees,’ and we review that finding for clear error.” Id. at 312 (quoting Hyatt v. Shalala, 6 F.3d 250, 255 (4th Cir. 1993) (citing Mut. Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Richards & Assoc., Inc., 872 F.2d 88, 93 (4th Cir. 1989)). Pursuant to the clearly erroneous standard, an appellate court should affirm a district court's determination unless the appellate court is "left with the definite and firm conviction that a mistake has been committed." Andrews, 827 F.3d at 312, (quoting Mallory v. Booth Refrig. Supply Co., 882 F.2d 908, 909 (4th Cir. 1989)).

Here, Plaintiff voluntarily dismissed, and noted that the case was dismissed because "it became too expensive for Plaintiff to continue to pursue the matter." ECF No. 61 at 6. While the Court generally disallows attorney fees in such instances, as the Court noted in its previous Order, attorney fees are warranted in this case because Plaintiff's counsel was on notice that the claim was insufficiently pled at the motion to dismiss stage. As a result, the Court found that Plaintiff was, at a minimum, vexatious, because Plaintiff's counsel was on notice, at the motion to dismiss stage, that Plaintiff's claim was insufficiently pled. ECF No. 65; see also Davis v. Target Stores Div. of Dayton Hudson Corp., 87 F. Supp. ("[T]he continuation of litigation of claims which have become frivolous has been held to amount to 'bad faith' justifying a fee award."); but see Andrews, 827 F.3d at 312 ("By its plain language, vexatious means 'without reasonable or probable cause or excuse.' ") (citing In re 1997 Grand Jury, 215 F.3d 430, 436 (4th Cir. 2000) (quoting Vexatious, BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY (7th ed. 1999)).

In the alternative, neither the Plaintiff nor the Defendant prevailed. As a result, it is unclear the extent to which the Johnson/Kimbrell analysis applies in determining an attorney fee award under Rule 41. See Khair v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., No. 1:10cv140, 2011 WL 1304916, at *6 (E.D. Va. April 1, 2011). In the interest of mitigating waste, the Court finds that Defendant's wasted time and effort should be compensated. See id. But, as the Court previously ruled, defense counsel is also at fault for the advancement and some of the challenges of litigating this case. As a result, the Court finds that a downward adjustment in the lodestar award, by forty-percent, is warranted.

(6) Factors Seven, Ten, Eleven and Twelve: Nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; Undesirability of the Case; Time Limitations Imposed by the Client or the Circumstances; and Similar Cases.

Neither Plaintiff nor Defendant addresses any of these issues in their pleadings. Accordingly, the Court need not address these factors in its analysis. The Court will note, however, that other courts in this district have ruled in a similar fashion. See Khair, 2011 WL 1304916 at, * 6-7.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, Defendant's Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Costs is GRANTED in Part and DENIED in Part. The request to approve $50,131.50 in attorneys' fees is DENIED. After review of the petition, the Court finds it appropriate to reduce the fee request. The Court hereby APPROVES $30,000 in attorneys' fees and $653. 25 in costs.

Plaintiff is ORDERED to pay Defendant $30,000 fees and $653. 25 in costs.

The Clerk is DIRECTED to send a copy of this Order to counsel of record.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
