

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Richmond Division

KEVIN LEON SMITH,

Plaintiff,

v.

Civil Action No. 3:13CV637

DAVID B. WEIR, et al.,

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Kevin Leon Smith, a Virginia inmate proceeding pro se and in forma pauperis, filed this 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action.¹ Smith contends that, inter alia, Defendants Weir and Bender, detectives with the Chesapeake Police Department, violated Smith's rights by forcibly taking a DNA sample from Smith. The matter is before the Court on Defendants' Motion to Dismiss and the Court's authority to dismiss inadequate claims by prisoners under 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2).² For the reasons stated below, the Court will GRANT the Motion to Dismiss.

I. STANDARD FOR MOTION TO DISMISS

"A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) tests the sufficiency of a complaint; importantly, it does not resolve contests surrounding the facts, the merits of a claim, or the

Every person who, under color of any statute . . . of any State . . . subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law

42 U.S.C. § 1983.

² "Notwithstanding any filing fee, or any portion thereof, that may have been paid, the court shall dismiss the case at any time if the court determines that . . . the action . . . fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted" 28 U.S.C. 1915(e)(2).

applicability of defenses.” Republican Party of N.C. v. Martin, 980 F.2d 943, 952 (4th Cir. 1992) (citation omitted). In considering a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, a plaintiff’s well-pleaded allegations are taken as true and the complaint is viewed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff. Mylan Labs., Inc. v. Matkari, 7 F.3d 1130, 1134 (4th Cir. 1993); see also Martin, 980 F.2d at 952. This principle applies only to factual allegations, however, and “a court considering a motion to dismiss can choose to begin by identifying pleadings that, because they are no more than conclusions, are not entitled to the assumption of truth.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 679 (2009).

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure “require[] only ‘a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,’ in order to ‘give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.’” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (second alteration in original) (quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47 (1957)). Plaintiffs cannot satisfy this standard with complaints containing only “labels and conclusions” or a “formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action.” Id. (citations omitted). Instead, a plaintiff must allege facts sufficient “to raise a right to relief above the speculative level,” id. (citation omitted), stating a claim that is “plausible on its face,” id. at 570, rather than merely “conceivable.” Id. “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (citing Bell Atl. Corp., 550 U.S. at 556). In order for a claim or complaint to survive dismissal for failure to state a claim, therefore, the plaintiff must “allege facts sufficient to state all the elements of [his or] her claim.” Bass v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., 324 F.3d 761, 765 (4th Cir. 2003) (citing Dickson v. Microsoft Corp., 309 F.3d 193, 213 (4th Cir. 2002); Iodice v. United States, 289 F.3d 270, 281 (4th Cir. 2002)). Lastly, while the Court liberally construes pro se complaints, Gordon v. Leeke, 574

F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir. 1978), it does not act as the inmate's advocate, sua sponte developing statutory and constitutional claims the inmate failed to clearly raise on the face of his complaint. See Brock v. Carroll, 107 F.3d 241, 243 (4th Cir. 1997) (Luttig, J., concurring); Beaudett v. City of Hampton, 775 F.2d 1274, 1278 (4th Cir. 1985).

II. SUMMARY OF ALLEGATIONS

The sum of Smith's allegations is as follows:³

Around 8:00 p.m., on December 10, 2012, I Kevin Leon Smith was taken to the booking intake section of the Chesapeake City Jail. I was placed in a holding cell and (2) men came in the cell and identified themselves [sic] as Detective Bender and Detective David Weir of the Chesapeake Police Department. I said that I wouldn't make any statements at this time without my lawyer present and I was reserving my *Miranda*⁴ rights. Detective Weir said, "That was fine," but he wanted to show me a few things and that everything was off the record. I still stated that I didn't want to look at anything he had to show or listen to anything he had to say. Detective Weir said that he was going to speak anyway and show me pictures. Detectives Bender and Weir started talking about what I was being charged with and other various questions. I simply kept my silence, and then Detective Weir told me that he needed to retrieve my DNA. I said no, I will not submit any DNA sample without my lawyer present. Detective Weir stated that he didn't care about that, and that he was going to get my DNA by choice or by force. When I refused again to give my DNA, Detective Bender and Detective Weir then forced themselves [sic] upon myself and . . . retriev[ed] my DNA from [my] mouth orally. Afterwards, I complained to jail authorities and that they said they couldn't do anything about a police matter. So I then wrote a complaint to the Internal Affairs Division of the Chesapeake Police Department. This case is still pending.

My 5th Amendment rights was [sic] violated when I stated that I'm reserving my Miranda rights and I requested a lawyer present for my DNA sample. I was never shown a search warrant for the DNA sample.

I was assaulted by Detectives Bender and Weir while being handcuffed in a holding cell.

³ The Court corrects the capitalization, spelling, and punctuation in quotations from Smith's Complaint.

⁴ Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436 (1966).

The Courts construes Smith to raise the following claims for relief:

- Claim 1 Defendants violated Smith's rights under the Fourth Amendment⁵ by taking Smith's DNA sample without a warrant.⁶
- Claim 2 Defendants violated Smith's Fifth Amendment rights by: (a) forcibly taking a DNA sample from Smith; and (b) continuing to speak to Smith after he invoked his rights under Miranda.⁷
- Claim 3 Defendants' forcible taking of DNA constituted an assault in violation of: (a) the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment;⁸ and (b) state law.

⁵ "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause" U.S. Const. amend IV.

⁶ Although Smith fails to specifically invoke the Fourth Amendment, his reference to Defendants' failure to obtain a search warrant to obtain the DNA sample calls to mind that amendment. Cf. Martin v. Gentile, 849 F.2d 863, 867–68 (4th Cir. 1988) (observing that facts pled by pro se plaintiff were "sufficient to make out a cognizable claim" despite "no specific reference" to appropriate constitutional amendment (citing Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519 (1972))).

⁷ The Fifth Amendment provides:

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

U.S. Const. amend. V (emphasis added). Although Smith is less than clear about how Defendants' action violated his rights under the Fifth Amendment, the Court deems Smith to assert that his privilege against self-incrimination was violated by the actions described above.

⁸ "No State shall . . . deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law" U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1.

III. ANALYSIS

A. Fourth Amendment

In Maryland v. King, 133 S. Ct. 1958 (2013), the Supreme Court concluded that:

In light of the context of a valid arrest⁹ supported by probable cause respondent's expectations of privacy were not offended by the minor intrusion of a brief swab of his cheeks. By contrast, that same context of arrest gives rise to significant state interests in identifying respondent not only so that the proper name can be attached to his charges but also so that the criminal justice system can make informed decisions concerning pretrial custody. Upon these considerations the Court concludes that DNA identification of arrestees is a reasonable search that can be considered part of a routine booking procedure. When officers make an arrest supported by probable cause to hold for a serious offense and they bring the suspect to the station to be detained in custody, taking and analyzing a cheek swab of the arrestee's DNA is, like fingerprinting and photographing, a legitimate police booking procedure that is reasonable under the Fourth Amendment.

Id. at 1980. Thus, the taking of a DNA sample from Smith, without a warrant, fails to state a claim for the violation of Smith's rights under the Fourth Amendment. Accordingly, to the extent Smith seeks to raise a Fourth Amendment claim, it will be DISMISSED.

B. Fifth Amendment

The privilege against self-incrimination "protects a person only against being incriminated by his own compelled testimonial communications." Doe v. United States, 487 U.S. 201, 207 (1988) (citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). "It is well established that collection of DNA evidence is not testimonial and therefore does not implicate the Fifth Amendment." United States v. Ketter, 456 F. App'x 293, 296 (4th Cir. 2011) (citing Schmerber v. California, 384 U.S. 757, 761–65 (1966)). Accordingly, this aspect of Smith's Fifth Amendment claim lacks merit and Claim 2(a) will be DISMISSED.

In Chavez v. Martinez, 538 U.S. 760 (2003), a plurality of the Supreme Court held that "[s]tatements compelled by police interrogations of course may not be used against a defendant at trial, but it is not until their use in a criminal case that a violation of the Self-Incrimination Clause occurs.” Id. at 767 (internal citations omitted). Here, Smith “does not allege any trial action that violated his Fifth Amendment rights; thus, ipso facto, his claim fails on the [Chavez] plurality’s reasoning.” Burrell v. Virginia, 395 F.3d 508, 514 (4th Cir. 2005) (dismissing plaintiff’s § 1983 claim where the complaint failed to indicate plaintiff’s statements were used in a court proceeding). Accordingly, Claim 2(b) lacks merit and will be DISMISSED.

C. Excessive Force

To the extent Smith seeks to bring a constitutional claim for the use of excessive force by Defendants, such a claim is governed by the Fourteenth Amendment. See Goodman v. Barber, 539 F. App’x 87, 89 (4th Cir. 2013) (citation omitted). Under the Fourteenth Amendment standard, a plaintiff must show that the defendant “inflicted unnecessary and wanton pain and suffering upon the detainee.” Carr v. Deeds, 453 F.3d 593, 605 (4th Cir. 2006) (citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted), abrogated on other grounds by Wilkins v. Gaddy, 559 U.S. 34 (2010). “The proper inquiry is whether the force applied was in a good faith effort to maintain or restore discipline or maliciously and sadistically for the very purpose of causing harm.” Sawyer v. Asbury, 537 F. App’x 283, 290 (4th Cir. 2013) (citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). Smith’s unadorned allegation that Defendants “assaulted” him (Compl. 5) is insufficient to support an inference that Defendants “inflicted unnecessary and wanton pain and suffering upon” Smith. Carr, 453 F.3d at 605 (citations omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). Rather, considered in context, the Complaint suggests Defendants merely employed some limited force in a good faith effort to obtain a buccal swab of Smith’s DNA. Accordingly, Smith fails to adequately allege a Fourteenth Amendment claim for the excessive use of force and Claim 3(a) will be DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

Generally, supplementary state law claims should be dismissed if the federal claims are dismissed before trial. See United Mine Workers of Am. v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715, 726 (1966). In light of the preliminary dismissal of Smith's federal claim, the Court declines to exercise its discretion to retain Smith's state law claim for assault. See Jenkins v. Weatherholtz, 909 F.2d 105, 110 (4th Cir. 1990). Accordingly, Claim 3(b) will be DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

IV. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 13) will be GRANTED. The action will be DISMISSED.

An appropriate Order will accompany this Memorandum Opinion.
