

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Richmond Division

DONALD LEE HINTON,

Plaintiff,

v.

Civil Action No. 3:16CV222

P. McCABE, et al.,

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Donald Lee Hinton, a Virginia inmate proceeding pro se and in forma pauperis, filed this 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action. By Memorandum Opinion and Order entered on March 29, 2018, the Court granted Defendant Dr. Calhoun's Motion for Summary Judgment. (ECF Nos. 91, 92.) In his remaining claim, Hinton contends that Nurse Patricia McCabe denied him adequate medical care during his incarceration in the Lawrenceville Correctional Center ("LCC"). Defendant McCabe filed a Motion for Summary Judgment and provided Hinton with notice pursuant to Roseboro v. Garrison, 528 F.2d 309 (4th Cir. 1975). However, Hinton did not respond. Accordingly, by Memorandum Opinion and Order entered on June 12, 2018, the Court granted Defendant McCabe's Motion for Summary Judgment and dismissed the action.

On June 25, 2018, the Court received a "Motion to File Appeal on Court Erred in Judgment," (ECF No. 101), which the Court construed as a motion filed pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 59(e). Plaintiff claimed that he never received the Motion for Summary Judgment filed by Defendant McCabe on March 29, 2018. Because "it appear[ed] that Hinton failed to receive the Motion for Summary Judgment and Roseboro notice, and the accompanying Memorandum in Support, Hinton . . . adequately demonstrated that the Court's dismissal of this action against Defendant McCabe amounted to manifest injustice or that the dismissal must be vacated to prevent clear error of law.” (ECF No. 115, at 2–3.) The Court granted Plaintiff’s Rule 59(e) Motion and vacated the June 12, 2018 Memorandum Opinion and Order granting summary judgment to Defendant McCabe. The Court allowed Hinton twenty (20) days to file a response. Hinton has filed a “Motion to Deny Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment.” (“Opposition,” ECF No. 120 (capitalization corrected).) Defendant McCabe has filed a response. (ECF No. 122.) For the reasons that follow, the Motion for Summary Judgment will be GRANTED and the action will be DISMISSED.

I. SUMMARY OF RELEVANT ALLEGATIONS

During the pendency of this litigation, Hinton has filed nearly everything as a “Motion,” and has continuously submitted procedurally improper filings with made-up titles. Hinton’s numerous submissions, including motions and piecemeal complaints, have made the case difficult to process and his claims difficult to discern. In his operative Complaint (ECF No. 31),¹ Hinton contends that Defendant McCabe violated his rights under the Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments because she “put a contaminated needle that had the deadly Hepatitis C virus and gave Plaintiff this deadly virus” and that as a “professional certified nurse, [she] knew not to use a contaminated needle.” (Compl. 1.)² As discussed below, to the extent these vague statements amount to claims for relief, the record refutes that Hinton contracted Hepatitis C from Defendant McCabe's use of a contaminated needle.

II. SUMMARY JUDGMENT STANDARD

Summary judgment must be rendered "if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). The party seeking summary judgment bears the responsibility to inform the court of the basis for the motion, and to identify the parts of the record that demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). "[W]here the nonmoving party will bear the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue, a summary judgment motion may properly be made in reliance solely on the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file." Id. at 324 (internal quotation marks omitted). When the motion is properly supported, the nonmoving party must go beyond the pleadings and, by citing affidavits or "depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file," designate "specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial." Id. (quoting former Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c) and 56(e) (1986)).

In reviewing a summary judgment motion, the court "must draw all justifiable inferences in favor of the nonmoving party." United States v. Carolina Transformer Co., 978 F.2d 832, 835 (4th Cir. 1992) (citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 255 (1986)). However, a mere scintilla of evidence will not preclude summary judgment. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 251 (citation omitted). "[T]here is a preliminary question for the judge, not whether there is literally no evidence, but whether there is any upon which a jury could properly proceed to find a verdict for the party . . . upon whom the onus of proof is imposed." Id. (quoting Schuylkill & Dauphin Imp. Co. v. Munson, 81 U.S. 442, 448 (1871)).

In support of her Motion for Summary Judgment, Defendant McCabe cites to: (1) Dr. Calhoun's declaration (Mem. Supp. Mot. Summ. J. Ex. A, ECF No. 75-1 ("Calhoun Decl.)); and, (2) Hinton's extensive medical records during the relevant period (id. Ex. B, ECF No. 75-2).

Attached to his Opposition, Hinton attached his own affidavit. ("Hinton Affidavit," ECF No. 120-1.)³ Nevertheless, the facts offered by a sworn declaration must also be in the form of admissible evidence. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(4). In this regard, the statement in the sworn declaration "must be made on personal knowledge, set out facts that would be admissible in evidence, and show that the affiant or declarant is competent to testify on the matters stated." Id. Therefore, "summary judgment affidavits cannot be conclusory or based upon hearsay." Evans v. Techs. Applications & Serv. Co., 80 F.3d 954, 962 (4th Cir. 1996) (internal citations omitted). The absence of an "affirmative showing of personal knowledge of specific facts" prevents the consideration of such facts in conducting a summary judgment analysis. EEOC v. Clay Printing Co., 955 F.2d 936, 945 n.9 (4th Cir. 1992) (internal quotation marks omitted). Hinton makes a number of statements that are of no value in assessing the propriety of summary judgment. Hinton's affidavit is comprised primarily of undisputed or immaterial facts, and contains two conclusory statements: (1) "I did not have Hepatitis B or C prior to Lawrenceville;" and, (2) "Patricia McCabe infected me with the Hepatitis C for which there is no cure." (Hinton Aff. 1.)

In their current form, Hinton's statements run afoul of the above prohibitions against conclusory assertions and hearsay.

Hinton's first statement, "I did not have Hepatitis B or C prior to Lawrenceville" (Hinton Aff. 1), is a conclusory assertion that fails to create a material dispute of fact. Hinton's statement also falls afoul of the prohibition of hearsay statements. See United States v. Roane, 378 F.3d 382, 400–01 (4th Cir. 2004) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citations omitted) ("[a]lthough generalities, conclusory assertions and hearsay statements [do] not suffice to stave off summary judgment"). Hinton fails to direct the Court to any testimony that reflects that prior to the re-use of the needle he was not infected with Hepatitis B or C. Hinton's statement indicates, at most, that he was unaware he had Hepatitis B or C. If Hinton believed he did not have Hepatitis B or C based on what someone told him previously, this would amount to inadmissible hearsay. At best, Hinton could have sworn that he was tested for Hepatitis B or C prior to McCabe's re-use of the needle and the test was negative. However, absent Hinton's introduction of medical records supporting this statement, it would again be inadmissible hearsay.

In Hinton's second statement, he asserts that "Patricia McCabe infected me with the Hepatitis C for which there is no cure." (Hinton Aff. 1.) Hinton is not competent to testify about the cause of a medical condition as he is not a medical expert. Pearson v. Ramos, 237 F.3d 881, 886 (7th Cir. 2001); cf. Raynor v. Pugh, 817 F.3d 123, 131 (4th Cir. 2016) (Keenan J., concurring) (explaining that a layperson's interpretation of medical tests or "speculation regarding the causes" of a condition "constitute conclusory and inadmissible lay opinion"). At most, Hinton may testify about his own perceptions of his health before and after the incident with McCabe. Jackson v. Allen, No. 1:09–CV–117, 2011 WL 1565859, at *2 (N.D. Ind. Aug.

25, 2011) (citations omitted) (explaining that a lay person may testify as to his medical symptoms but may not testify as to medical causation).

Hinton also swore to the contents of his Complaint; however, again, his Complaint fails to constitute admissible evidence.⁴ Hinton's failure to present any evidence to counter Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment permits the Court to rely solely on Defendant's submissions in deciding the Motion for Summary Judgment. See Forsyth v. Barr, 19 F.3d 1527, 1537 (5th Cir. 1994) ("Rule 56 does not impose upon the district court a duty to sift through the record in search of evidence to support a party's opposition to summary judgment." (quoting Skotak v. Tenneco Resins, Inc., 953 F.2d 909, 915 & n.7 (5th Cir. 1992))); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(3) ("The Court need consider only the cited materials . . .").

In light of the foregoing submissions and principles, the following facts are established for the purposes of the motion for summary judgment.

III. SUMMARY OF UNDISPUTED FACTS

Defendant Calhoun has been employed as an institutional physician at LCC since July 2011 and has been practicing medicine for thirty-nine years. (Calhoun Aff. ¶ 1.) On the morning of April 15, 2015, Defendant Calhoun and Nurse McCabe were working at LCC. (Id. ¶ 4.) Nurse McCabe was responsible for that morning's diabetic call during which diabetic inmates reported for glucose testing, insulin, and other treatment as needed. (Id.) Hinton was among the inmates who reported for diabetic call that morning. (Id. ¶ 5.) Later that morning, Defendant Calhoun learned that Nurse McCabe may have reused a needle to administer insulin. (Id. ¶ 6.) Defendant Calhoun was concerned that any cross-contamination could place LCC's diabetic inmates at risk of contracting infectious diseases and the medical staff were instructed to obtain laboratory testing samples from the diabetic inmates so medical staff “could obtain a baseline for monitoring these inmates for infectious diseases.” (Id. ¶ 7.) Medical staff obtained a laboratory testing sample from Hinton approximately two hours after the morning diabetic call and the sample was sent out for testing the same day. (Id. ¶ 8.)

On June 8, 2015, the medical staff at LCC received the test results for Hinton. (Id. ¶ 9.) The test results indicated that Hinton tested positive for Hepatitis B and C antibodies. (Id.) On July 1, 2015, medical staff obtained blood samples from Hinton and sent the samples out for repeat testing. (Id. ¶ 10.) On July 7, 2015,⁵ the laboratory again reported that Hinton tested positive for both Hepatitis B and C antibodies. (Id.) On July 14, 2015, medical staff obtained additional samples from Hinton and sent the samples out for testing to ascertain whether Hinton was positive for Hepatitis C ribonucleic acid (“RNA”). (Id. ¶ 11.) On July 17, 2015, the laboratory reported that Hinton was positive for Hepatitis C RNA. (Id.)

On October 2, 2015, medical staff obtained additional samples from Hinton and Defendant Calhoun ordered testing for the RNA genotype for Hinton’s Hepatitis C. (Id. ¶ 12.) On October 9, 2015, the laboratory returned results indicating that Hinton’s RNA genotype was 1b, a less prevalent form of Hepatitis C. (Id.) As of April 2015, there were three inmates at LCC other than Hinton who were known to be infected with Hepatitis C genotype 1b and none of those inmates were diabetic. (Id. ¶ 13.)

⁵ Defendant Calhoun mistakenly states in his Affidavit that the laboratory reported these results on July 7, 2017, but the records reflect that Defendant Calhoun meant to state July of 2015 instead. These records were “resulted” on July 3, 2015 and printed by LCC July 7, 2015. (See ECF No. 75–2, at 64.)

Defendant Calhoun avers that

[t]o a certainty, Hinton was infected with Hepatitis C long before [the] incident [on April 15, 2015]. We obtained laboratory test samples from Hinton within hours of the cross-contamination incident. The testing laboratory detected Hepatitis C and Hepatitis B antibodies in Hinton's test samples. It takes several weeks for the immune system to produce Hepatitis C antibodies in sufficient quantity to return a positive laboratory test. Thus, Hinton's belief that he first became infected with Hepatitis C on April 15, 2015 is a medical impossibility. Hinton could only have contracted Hepatitis C several weeks, or even years, prior to April 15, 2015.

(Id. ¶ 14.) To the extent that Hinton indicates that he has had many blood tests during his incarceration and had never tested positive for Hepatitis C before, Defendant Calhoun explains that the laboratory reports prior to April 15, 2015 do not reflect that Hinton was tested for Hepatitis C on those dates. (Id. ¶ 21.)

Defendant Calhoun explains that the nurse suspected of cross-contaminating the insulin was terminated by LCC because the incident was a breach of medical protocol. (Id. ¶ 22.)

Defendant Calhoun explains that chronic Hepatitis C is not an immediately life-threatening condition, and most persons with Hepatitis C generally have a normal life expectancy. (Id. ¶ 15.) Defendant Calhoun explains that the danger with Hepatitis C is that it can lead to cirrhosis of the liver; however, it can take years or decades for persons infected with Hepatitis C to develop cirrhosis. (Id.) Defendant Calhoun explains that those inmates with a high fibrosis score, which is indicative of cirrhosis, are eligible for certain treatments. (Id. ¶¶ 17–18.) Hinton's most recent chronic care visit was November 30, 2017 and his laboratory tests reflected a very low fibrosis score and have generally reflected liver values in the normal range for a healthy adult. (Id. ¶¶ 19, 20.) Defendant Calhoun explains that Hinton's normal liver values are not uncommon and he "may go his whole life without exhibiting concerning liver values." (Id. ¶ 20.)

III. EIGHTH AMENDMENT

To survive a motion for summary judgment on an Eighth Amendment⁶ “cruel and unusual punishment” claim, Hinton “must prove two elements: (1) that objectively the deprivation of a basic human need was ‘sufficiently serious,’ and (2) that subjectively the prison officials acted with a ‘sufficiently culpable state of mind.’” Johnson v. Quinones, 145 F.3d 164, 167 (4th Cir. 1998) (quoting Wilson v. Seiter, 501 U.S. 294, 298 (1991)). An inmate must demonstrate both that “the prison official acted with a sufficiently culpable state of mind (subjective component) and . . . the deprivation suffered or injury inflicted on the inmate was sufficiently serious (objective component).” Iko v. Shreve, 535 F.3d 225, 238 (4th Cir. 2008) (quoting Williams v. Benjamin, 77 F.3d 756, 761 (4th Cir. 1996)). “These requirements spring from the text of the amendment itself; absent intentionality, a condition imposed on an inmate cannot properly be called ‘punishment,’ and absent severity, such punishment cannot be called ‘cruel and unusual.’” Id. (citing Wilson, 501 U.S. at 298–300). “What must be established with regard to each component ‘varies according to the nature of the alleged constitutional violation.’” Williams, 77 F.3d at 761 (quoting Hudson v. McMillian, 503 U.S. 1, 5 (1992)).

To satisfy the objective element of an Eighth Amendment claim, the deprivation complained of must be extreme and amount to more than the “routine discomfort [that] is part of the penalty that criminal offenders pay for their offenses against society.” Strickler v. Waters, 989 F.2d 1375, 1380 n.3 (4th Cir. 1993) (some internal quotation marks omitted) (quoting Hudson, 503 U.S. at 9). “If a prisoner has not suffered serious or significant physical or mental injury as a result of the challenged condition, he simply has not been subjected to cruel and unusual punishment within the meaning of the Amendment.” Id. at 1381; see Rish v. Johnson, 131 F.3d 1092, 1096 (4th Cir. 1997) (requiring that an inmate “must produce evidence of a serious or significant physical or emotional injury resulting from the challenged conditions”).

Hinton contends that Defendant McCabe violated his rights under the Eighth Amendment because she “put a contaminated needle that had the deadly Hepatitis C virus and gave Plaintiff this deadly virus” and that as a “professional certified nurse, [she] knew not to use a contaminated needle.” (Compl. 1.) According to Defendant McCabe, “[t]he record clearly reflects that the Defendant, McCabe, did not follow proper procedure and lost her job as a result. However, the evidence is equally clear and undisputed that McCabe did not cause Hinton to be infected with the Hepatitis C virus.” (Mem. Supp. Mot. Summ. J. 6, ECF No. 94 (emphasis omitted).) Hinton fails to satisfy the objective component for his Eighth Amendment claim. Hinton fails to demonstrate, as he must, that he sustained any injury, much less a serious or significant physical or emotional injury, resulting from Defendant McCabe’s suspected reuse of a needle to administer insulin. Strickler, 989 F.2d at 1381. The record conclusively demonstrates that Hinton did not contract Hepatitis C from any action of Defendant McCabe’s on April 15, 2015. Rather, “[t]o a certainty,” Hinton was exposed to the disease long before McCabe’s suspected use of a contaminated needle. (Calhoun Aff. ¶ 14.) Given that deficiency, Hinton fails to demonstrate an Eighth Amendment violation. Strickler, 989 F.2d at 1381; cf. Mitchell v. Corizon Health, Inc., No. CV14-1754-PHX-DGC(BSB), 2015 WL 390752, at *2-4 (D. Ariz. Jan. 28, 2015) (showing at most negligence or medical malpractice and not an Eighth Amendment violation when inmate alleged that he was exposed to potentially deadly diseases when nurse used contaminated needle to administer insulin); Jones v. Vass, No. 3:11CV510, 2013 WL 364364, at *4 (E.D. Va. Jan. 30, 2013) (finding no Eighth Amendment violation when inmate failed to demonstrate any injury, much less a serious or significant emotional injury, resulting from nurse not changing gloves between inmates while using needles to administer tuberculosis skin tests); Ringgold v. Federal Bureau of Prisons, No. 07-2733 (RBK), 2007 WL 2990690, *2-4 (D. N.J. Oct. 5, 2007) (failing to state Eighth Amendment claim when inmate alleged that his “injury” was “physical contact” with contaminated needles used to inject insulin). Accordingly, Hinton’s claim against Defendant McCabe will be DISMISSED.

VI. CONCLUSION

Defendant McCabe’s Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 93) will be GRANTED. Hinton’s claim against Defendant McCabe is DISMISSED. The action is DISMISSED.

An appropriate Order shall issue.
