

FILED IN THE
U.S. DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

JUN 17 2015

SEAN F. McAWOY, CLERK
DEPUTY
YAKIMA, WASHINGTON

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

JANE DAILY, individually, and on behalf of her deceased spouse, JOHN WILSON DAILY, JR.

Plaintiff,

v.

KITTITAS VALLEY HEALTH AND REHABILITATION CENTER;
EXTENDICARE HOMES, INC.;
EXTENDICARE HOMES INC., DBA
KITTITAS VALLEY HEALTH AND
REHABILITAITON CENTER

Defendant.

No. ^{CV} CR-15-3061-LRS

ORDER DENYING
MOTION TO REMAND

BEFORE THE COURT is Plaintiff's Motion To Remand The Case To The Kittitas County Superior Court (ECF No. 6) pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1447(c). The

ORDER DENYING
MOTION TO REMAND-

1 court exercises its discretion to hear the motion without oral argument. LR
2 7.1(h)(3)(B)(iii).

3 I. BACKGROUND

4 On March 12, 2015, Plaintiff Jane Daily individually, and on behalf of her
5 deceased spouse John Daily, filed a civil complaint against Kittitas Valley Health
6 and Rehabilitation Center (KVHRC), Extendicare Homes, Inc., and Extendicare
7 Homes, Inc., dba Kittitas Valley Health and Rehabilitation Center, in Kittitas
8 County Superior Court. The Complaint seeks unspecified damages for common 9 law negligence, for violations of Washington's Abuse of Vulnerable Adults Act,
10 and for deceptive acts or practices under Washington's Consumer Protection Act.
11 The Defendants were served with the Complaint on March 13, 2015.

12 On March 23, 2015, Defendants served a Request for a Statement of 13 Damages and a First Request for Admissions on the Plaintiff. Plaintiff responded 14 on April 22 and 23, 2015, respectively. In her response to the Request for 15 Statement of Damages, the only definite answer Plaintiff provided was that she 16 was not making claims for past or anticipated future wage loss. Regarding the 17 First Request for Admissions, Plaintiff denied that the amount in controversy did 18 not exceed $75,000. (Emphasis added).
19

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 On April 28, 2015, Defendants filed a Notice of Removal pursuant to 28
2 U.S.C. §§ 1332 and 1441. The Defendants removed the case on the basis of 3 diversity jurisdiction because: (1) KVHRC/Extendicare Homes, Inc. is a foreign 4 corporation operating within Washington State, whereas the Plaintiff is a 5 Washington State citizen; and (2) the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000. On 6 May 13, 2015, Plaintiff moved to remand the case to Kittitas County Superior
7 Court on the grounds that this court lacks subject matter jurisdiction and the Notice
8 of Removal was untimely filed.

9 II. DISCUSSION

10 A. There is complete diversity between Plaintiff as a citizen of Washington State and Defendants as citizens of Delaware and Wisconsin.

11 To remove a case from state to federal court, the federal court must have 12 independent original jurisdiction. 28 U.S.C. 1441(a). Here, Defendants claim this 13 court has diversity jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1332(a). When diversity 14 jurisdiction is the basis for removal to federal court, all parties must be citizens of 15 separate states (“completely” diverse). 28 U.S.C. §1441(b)(2). Diversity 16 jurisdiction exists when (1) the parties are citizens of different states and (2) the 17 amount in controversy exceeds $75,000. 28 U.S.C. §1332(a).

18 Per 28 U.S.C. 1332(c)(1), a corporation is a citizen of the state(s) in which it is 19 incorporated and in which it has its “principal place of business,” usually its corporate headquarters. Hertz Corp. v. Friend, 559 U.S. 77, 81 (2010) (“the phrase

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 'principal place of business' refers to the place where the corporation's high level
2 officers direct, control, and coordinate the corporation's activities...typically found 3 at a corporation's headquarters"). Plaintiff contends KVHRC is a citizen of 4 Washington State because its senior care facility is located in Ellensburg,
5 Washington and therefore, because Plaintiff is a citizen of Washington State, there
6 is no diversity of citizenship. Neither statutory nor case law holds that the location
7 from which a corporation transacts business with its clients determines corporate 8 citizenship. KVHRC is not a legal entity distinct from Extendicare Homes, Inc., 9 but rather, Extendicare Homes, Inc. is merely "doing business as" KVHRC in 10 Washington State. Therefore, the state of incorporation and principal place of 11 business for KVHRC is identical to that of Extendicare Homes, Inc.. Extendicare 12 Homes, Inc. is incorporated in Delaware and its corporate headquarters are in 13 Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Wash. Corp. Reg. Detail, ECF No.1, "Exhibit C".
14 Accordingly, KVHRC/Extendicare is a citizen of Delaware and Wisconsin for the 15 purposes of diversity jurisdiction and removal.¹

16 Plaintiff objects to the Defendants' Corporate Disclosure Statement because it 17 is not admissible under the rules of evidence and because it does not provide any

18
19 ¹Although KVHRC and Extendicare Homes, Inc., constitute a single legal entity, they are referred to herein as "Defendants" in order to be consistent with the Complaint and with the Notice of Removal.

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 information relevant to determining claims of citizenship. First, Defendants do not
2 use the disclosure statement to substantiate their citizenship claims. Secondly,
3 although Plaintiff claims Defendants have not substantiated their citizenship claims
4 with any evidence, the corporate registration and business licensing records
5 submitted by Defendants are sufficient to establish their corporate citizenship.
6 (See Ex. C to ECF No. 1 and Ex. B. to Declaration of Charles C. Huber, ECF No.
7 10).

8 Accordingly, there is complete diversity of citizenship between the parties.

9 B. Defendants' Notice of Removal was timely and proper.

10 Although 28 U.S.C. §1441 determines under what conditions defendants
11 may remove a case to federal court, 28 U.S.C. §1446 establishes the procedures for 12 removal. §1446(b)(1) requires that a Notice of Removal be filed within 30 days 13 after defendants receive a copy of the complaint. However, in cases where the 14 complaint makes it appear the case is not removable, if defendants subsequently 15 receive an "amended pleading, motion, order, or other paper" from which it can be 16 ascertained that the case is removable, they have 30 days from the receipt of that 17 "paper" to file a Notice of Removal. 28 U.S.C. §1446(b)(3).

18 As a result, three scenarios arise once a complaint has been filed: (1) "the 19 case clearly is removable on the basis of jurisdictional facts apparent from the face

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 of the complaint, i.e., complete diversity of citizenship;” (2) “the case clearly is not 2 removable on the basis of jurisdictional facts apparent from the face of the 3 complaint, i.e., lack of complete diversity”; or (3) “it is unclear from the complaint
4 whether the case is removable, i.e., the citizenship of the parties is unstated or 5 ambiguous.” Harris v. Bankers Life & Cas. Co, 425 F.3d 689, 692 (9th Cir. 2005).
6 Pursuant to §1446(b)(1), in scenario (1) cases, defendants have 30 days from 7 receipt of the complaint to file their Notice of Removal. Pursuant to §1446(b)(3), 8 in scenario (3) cases, if defendants subsequently receive a document that makes 9 clear that removal jurisdiction is proper, they then have 30 days from receipt of 10 that document to remove the case. Id.

11 1. It was indeterminable from “the face” of the complaint whether the 12 case was removable based on diversity jurisdiction because the 13 amount in controversy was extremely vague.

14 In Harris, 425 F.3d at 692, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that:

15 Notice of removability under §1446(b) is determined through examination of 16 the four corners of the applicable pleadings, not through subjective 17 knowledge or a duty to make further inquiry.... If no ground for removal is 18 evident in that pleading, the case is “not removable” at that stage....

19 In Harris, this meant the defendants, before filing a Notice of Removal, did not have to consult their business records which would have indicated a co-defendant’s citizenship for purposes of diversity jurisdiction. 425 F.3d at 696. Although defendants need not supply information the plaintiff has not included in the

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 complaint, they “must ‘apply a reasonable amount of intelligence’ to decide 2 whether a case may be removed” based on the information contained in the 3 complaint. Vigil v. Waste Connections, Inc., 2015 WL 627877 at *3 (E.D.Cal.
4 2015).

5 Courts choose not to inquire “into the subjective knowledge of [a]
6 defendant” for several reasons. First, they do not want to embroil themselves in the 7 difficult task of determining a defendant’s subjective knowledge. Kuxhausen v.
8 BMW Financial Services NA LLC, 707 F.3d 1136, 1141 (2013). Next, they want to 9 balance the burden of removal between defendants and plaintiffs. Durham v.
10 Lockheed Martin Corp., 445 F.3d 1247, 1251 (9th Cir. 2006). If a defendant files a 11 baseless notice of removal, he is subject to Fed. R. Civ. P. 11 sanctions. As a 12 result, if a pleading is ambiguous regarding whether diversity jurisdiction is 13 available, a defendant is unlikely to file for removal so as to avoid sanctions. This 14 encourages plaintiffs who want to stay in state court to file ambiguous complaints.
15 Id. To avoid this, §1441(b) is structured so that plaintiffs “assume the costs 16 associated with their own indeterminate pleadings” by allowing defendants flexible 17 windows in which to file notices of removal once they receive “papers” indicating 18 that removal is appropriate. Id.

19 Here, the “four corners” of Plaintiff’s complaint neither indicates that the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000 nor that it does not. The Complaint lists a

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 variety of claims and requests recovery for all “economic and noneconomic
2 damages...as allowed by law and as established according to proof at trial,”
3 including statutory damages, attorney’s fees, and costs. None of these requests, 4 however, are accompanied by any sort of numerical estimate of damages; e.g. an 5 estimate of the actual damages the plaintiffs suffered. Furthermore, there is not 6 enough detailed information provided in the Complaint from which the amount of 7 damages sought can be intelligently assessed. This makes the instant case a more 8 compelling example of an indeterminate “scenario (3)” case than Harris, where 9 defendants had in their possession specific information directly related to the 10 jurisdictional issues in the case. 425 F.3d at 689-90. Here, Defendants had little 11 besides their general knowledge of cases in the same legal field to guide their 12 appraisal of the amount in controversy.

13 Plaintiff contends the Complaint contained enough information for 14 Defendants to know whether the case was removable such that their Notice of 15 Removal should have been filed within 30 days of March 15, 2015. Plaintiff
16 directs the Court’s attention to the Notice of Removal where Defendants speculate 17 that “based on the allegations in the complaint, plaintiff will seek damages... in 18 excess of $75,000” and that “cases of this nature regularly involve claims in excess 19 of $100,000.” Plaintiff maintains this demonstrates Defendants knew from the Complaint alone that the amount in controversy is over $75,000.

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 This argument conflates two nearly related issues: (A) whether pursuant to 2 Section 1446(b)(1), the information “on the face” of the complaint was sufficient
3 to require Defendants to file a Notice of Removal within 30 days of receiving the 4 Complaint; and (B) whether there was sufficient information in any non-frivolous 5 form before the court warranting removal based on diversity jurisdiction pursuant 6 to 28 U.S.C. §1441 and §1332. For the purposes of (A), the Defendants were not 7 required to rely on their subjective knowledge or to provide information outside
8 the four corners of the Complaint, e.g. that “cases of this nature regularly involve 9 in excess of $100,000.” Harris, 425 F.3d at 692. For the purposes of (B), however,
10 Defendants were entitled to utilize their subjective knowledge and information
11 outside the Complaint to estimate the amount in controversy in light of the 12 Complaint. Therefore, that Defendants used their subjective knowledge in their 13 Notice of Removal does not suggest there was sufficient information “on the face” 14 of the Complaint to require a Notice of Removal be filed within 30 days of 15 Defendants’ receipt of the Complaint.

16 The Complaint did not contain sufficient information to satisfy 28 U.S.C.
17 §1446(b)(1). Thus, Defendants remained eligible to file a Notice of Removal in the 18 event they received a “paper” substantiating that the amount in controversy was 19 over $75,000. 28 U.S.C. §1446(b)(3).

1 2. There was sufficient new information in the Plaintiff's Response to
2 the Defendants' First Request for Admissions and in the Plaintiff's
3 Statement of Damages to support removal.

4 Plaintiff argues that her Response to Defendants' Request for a Statement of 5 Damages and her Response to Defendants' First Request for Admissions (RFA)
6 contained no information that was not already in the Complaint. Therefore, she 7 contends it is not a "paper" from which Defendants were able to ascertain that the 8 case had become removable. §1446(b)(1).

9 For purposes of §1446(b)(3), the RFA qualifies as a "paper," Hines v. AC &
10 S, Inc., 128 F. Supp. 2d 1003, 1005 (N.D.Tex. 2001), and the information it
11 contained was sufficiently new such that the 30 day Notice of Removal period 12 commenced on April 25, 2015. Before receiving the RFA, Defendants knew from 13 the "face" of the Complaint that Plaintiff was: (1) claiming damages under 14 common law and under RCW 74.34 and 19.83, (2) that the damages/amount in 15 controversy would be for some amount of money, and (3) that the amount of 16 money might be determined in several ways, including demonstration at trial. On 17 the strength of this information alone, Defendants could not reasonably know 18 whether the amount in controversy would be more or less than $75,000. This is 19 clearly a "scenario (3)" case of indeterminacy. However, because in the RFA,
20 Plaintiff "denied [that she was] not seeking damages below $75,000," this made it 21 sufficiently clear and ascertainable, in light of the nature of her claims, that she is

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 seeking damages in excess of $75,000. Considering that a plain reading of the 2 RFA indicates the amount in controversy is over $75,000, and the aim of §1446(b)
3 is to hold plaintiffs accountable for vague pleadings, this court finds the RFA
4 constitutes a “paper” that advanced Defendants knowledge regarding removability
5 under §1446(b)(3), and therefore, Defendants’ Notice of Removal was timely filed.

6 C. The ADR Agreement does not prevent defendants from removing the 7 case to federal court.

8 Plaintiff argues the Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) agreement that 9 Defendants submitted with their Notice of Removal leaves this court “with no
10 jurisdiction to act.”

11 “The prevailing rule is clear” that when a valid forum selection clause 12 exclusively mandates a specific jurisdiction for litigation, e.g. state versus federal 13 court, then the district court will remand to the specified court. Docksider, Ltd. v.
14 Sea Technology, Ltd., 875 F.2d 762 (9th Cir. 1989) (affirming a ruling that the 15 district court “lacked subject matter jurisdiction on the basis of [a] forum selection 16 clause”); Manetti-Farrow, Inc. v. Gucci America, Inc., 858 F.2d 509, 511 (9th Cir.
17 1988); Global Concierge Holdings v. Charbo, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 170437
18 (C.D.Cal. 2013). The instant case, however, is distinguishable from this line of 19 precedent on two accounts: (1) there is no forum selection clause on record, but rather, an “Alternative Dispute Resolution Agreement;” and (2) the court to which

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-

1 this case would be remanded is not the forum mandated by the ADR Agreement.
2 ADR Agreement, ECF No. 8 §4. In the above cases and those cited by Plaintiff, the 3 federal district court remanded the cases to the forum specified by the forum
4 selection clause. Here, Plaintiff would have this court remand to Kittitas County
5 Superior Court, despite the ADR agreement specifying that a private 6 mediator/arbitrator will resolve “covered disputes” between the parties to the 7 agreement. ADR Agreement, ECF No. 8 §4. The ADR agreement is irrelevant to 8 the propriety of this court’s removal jurisdiction. Therefore, the agreement need 9 not be consulted at this juncture. The parties may move this court to compel 10 arbitration as they see fit and this court will determine which claims are subject to 11 binding arbitration as opposed to judicial resolution.

12 //
13 //
14 //
15 //
16 //
17 //
18 //
19 //

1 III. CONCLUSION

2 For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff's Motion to Remand (ECF No. 6) is

3 DENIED.

4 IT IS SO ORDERED. The District Court Executive is directed to enter this 5 order and provide copies to counsel of record

6 DATED this 17th day of June, 2015.

7

8 _____
9 LONNY R. SUKO
10 SENIOR U. S. DISTRICT COURT JUDGE
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19

ORDER DENYING

MOTION TO REMAND-