ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION . . . - 1

1 Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment and DENIES Plaintiff’s Motion for 2 Summary Judgment.

3 JURISDICTION

4 Plaintiff filed applications for Supplemental Security Income and Disability 5 Insurance Benefits in January 2018, alleging disability since October 31, 2011, due 6 to anxiety, depression, brain injury, cognitive disabilities, neck and back pain, and 7 epilepsy. Tr. 208, 220, 244. Plaintiff later amended his alleged onset date to 8 March 15, 2017. Tr. 15, 40, 378. The applications were denied initially and upon 9 reconsideration. Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Marie Palachuk held a hearing 10 on October 17, 2019, Tr. 37-60, and issued an unfavorable decision on November 11 19, 2019, Tr. 15-29. The Appeals Council denied Plaintiff’s request for review on 12 August 27, 2020. Tr. 1-6. The ALJ’s November 2019 decision thus became the 13 final decision of the Commissioner, which is appealable to the district court 14 pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). Plaintiff filed this action for judicial review on 15 October 19, 2020. ECF No. 1.

16 STATEMENT OF FACTS

17 Plaintiff was born in October 1984, Tr. 220, and was 32 years old on the 18 amended alleged disability onset date, March 15, 2017, Tr. 378. Tr. 28. He 19 completed school through the 10th grade, had not earned a GED, and has past work 20 as a group leader, management trainee, waiter, shoes salesperson, fountain server, 21 cook, fast-food service manager, and clothing salesperson. Tr. 27, 54, 55, 245-22 246. Plaintiff’s disability report indicates he stopped working on March 15, 2017, 23 because of his conditions. Tr. 245. He testified at the administrative hearing he 24 stopped working because his last job “got to be too much for [him] to handle” and 25 he “just couldn’t do it.” Tr. 45-46. Plaintiff explained he shuts down. Tr. 49.

26 Plaintiff described his mental health as “a little anxious,” but indicated he 27 was not a depressed person. Tr. 50. He also stated he had headaches that had been 28 controlled with medications, but when he stopped taking Topamax after having 1 developed a kidney stone, the headaches returned. Tr. 51-52. He testified his 2 headaches continued to flare up a total of six months during a 12-month period.

3 Tr. 52. Plaintiff additionally experienced hallucinations from one of his 4 medications, but the hallucinations had not occurred recently. Tr. 50-51.

5 STANDARD OF REVIEW

6 The ALJ is responsible for determining credibility, resolving conflicts in 7 medical testimony, and resolving ambiguities. Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 8 1039 (9th Cir. 1995). The ALJ's determinations of law are reviewed de novo, with 9 deference to a reasonable interpretation of the applicable statutes. McNatt v. Apfel, 10 201 F.3d 1084, 1087 (9th Cir. 2000). The decision of the ALJ may be reversed 11 only if it is not supported by substantial evidence or if it is based on legal error.
12 Tackett v. Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1097 (9th Cir. 1999). Substantial evidence is 13 defined as being more than a mere scintilla, but less than a preponderance. Id. at 14 1098. Put another way, substantial evidence is such relevant evidence as a 15 reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion. Richardson v.
16 Perales, 402 U.S. 389, 401 (1971). If the evidence is susceptible to more than one 17 rational interpretation, the Court may not substitute its judgment for that of the 18 ALJ. Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097; Morgan v. Commissioner of Social Sec. Admin., 19 169 F.3d 595, 599 (9th Cir. 1999). If substantial evidence supports the 20 administrative findings, or if conflicting evidence supports a finding of either 21 disability or non-disability, the ALJ's determination is conclusive. Sprague v.
22 Bowen, 812 F.2d 1226, 1229-1230 (9th Cir. 1987). Nevertheless, a decision 23 supported by substantial evidence will be set aside if the proper legal standards 24 were not applied in weighing the evidence and making the decision. Browner v.
25 Secretary of Health and Human Services, 839 F.2d 432, 433 (9th Cir. 1988).

26 SEQUENTIAL EVALUATION PROCESS

27 The Commissioner has established a five-step sequential evaluation process 28 for determining whether a person is disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a); Bowen v.

1 Yuckert, 482 U.S. 137, 140-142 (1987). In steps one through four, the claimant 2 bears the burden of establishing a prima facie case of disability benefits. Tackett, 3 180 F.3d at 1098-1099. This burden is met once a claimant establishes that a 4 physical or mental impairment prevents the claimant from engaging in past 5 relevant work. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4). If a claimant cannot perform past 6 relevant work, the ALJ proceeds to step five, and the burden shifts to the 7 Commissioner to show (1) the claimant can make an adjustment to other work; and 8 (2) the claimant can perform specific jobs that exist in the national economy.
9 Batson v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 359 F.3d 1190, 1193-1194 (9th Cir. 2004).
10 If a claimant cannot make an adjustment to other work in the national economy, 11 the claimant will be found disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4)(v).

12 ADMINISTRATIVE DECISION

13 On November 19, 2019, the ALJ issued a decision finding Plaintiff was not 14 disabled as defined in the Social Security Act.

15 At step one, the ALJ found Plaintiff had not engaged in substantial gainful 16 activity since March 15, 2017, the amended alleged onset date. Tr. 17.

17 At step two, the ALJ determined Plaintiff had the following severe 18 impairments: seizure disorder, mild degenerative changes of the cervical spine, 19 mild degenerative disc disease in the lumbar spine, remote history of subdural 20 hematoma occurring in 2011, headaches, depression, and anxiety. Tr. 18.

21 The ALJ found at step three that Plaintiff did not have an impairment or 22 combination of impairments that meets or medically equals the severity of one of 23 the listed impairments. Tr. 18.

24 The ALJ assessed Plaintiff’s Residual Functional Capacity (RFC) and found 25 Plaintiff could perform medium exertion level work with the following limitations: 26 he could not climb ladders, ropes, or scaffolds; he must avoid concentrated 27 exposure to noise, vibration, and respiratory irritants and all exposure to 28 unprotected heights, dangerous moving machinery, power tools, or working in or

1 near open water; he was able to understand, remember, and carryout simple, 2 routine, and repetitive tasks where he would not have to learn new tasks on a 3 regular basis; he was capable of maintaining concentration, persistence, and pace 4 on those simple type of tasks for two-hour intervals between regularly scheduled 5 breaks; he could complete an eight-hour workday; he must avoid the public; and he 6 would need a predictable environment with seldom change and additional time to 7 adapt to any changes (defined as 10 percent longer than the average employee).

8 Tr. 20.

9 The ALJ found at step four that Plaintiff was not capable of performing his 10 past relevant work. Tr. 27.

11 At step five, the ALJ determined that, based on the testimony of the 12 vocational expert, and considering Plaintiff's age, education, work experience, and 13 RFC, Plaintiff was capable of making a successful adjustment to other work that 14 exists in significant numbers in the national economy, including the jobs of auto 15 detailer, kitchen helper and laundry worker. Tr. 28-29.

16 The ALJ thus concluded Plaintiff was not under a disability within the 17 meaning of the Social Security Act at any time from March 15, 2017, the alleged 18 onset date, through the date of the ALJ's decision, November 19, 2019. Tr. 29.

19 ISSUES

20 The question presented is whether substantial evidence supports the ALJ's 21 decision denying benefits and, if so, whether that decision is based on proper legal 22 standards.

23 Plaintiff argues the ALJ erred by failing to include or explain the exclusion 24 of limitations opined by the state agency's psychological consultants in the RFC 25 finding, resulting in a step five decision that is not supported by substantial 26 evidence. ECF No. 19 at 2.

28 ///

1 DISCUSSION

2 A. RFC Determination

3 Plaintiff contends the ALJ’s RFC assessment is flawed in this case because 4 although the ALJ found the opinions of Jan L. Lewis, Ph.D., and John D. Gilbert, 5 Ph.D., persuasive, she omitted some of the limitations assessed by these medical 6 professionals from her ultimate RFC determination. ECF No. 19 at 5-13.

7 Defendant responds that the ALJ reasonably interpreted Dr. Lewis’s and Dr.
8 Gilbert’s findings regarding Plaintiff’s ability to concentrate, persist, and maintain 9 a competitive pace and to perform simple tasks. ECF No. 24 at 6-10. Defendant 10 argues the ALJ reasonably considered their assessments as a whole and translated 11 those assessments into a succinct RFC determination. Id. at 10.

12 It is the ALJ’s responsibility to formulate an RFC determination that is 13 based on the record; however, the RFC assessment need not exactly match the 14 opinion or findings of any particular medical source. See Magallanes v. Bowen, 15 881 F.2d 747, 753 (9th Cir. 1989) (“It is not necessary to agree with everything an 16 expert witness says in order to hold that his testimony contains substantial 17 evidence”).

18 Reviewing state agency psychological consultant Jan L. Lewis, Ph.D., 19 opined on June 10, 2018, that Plaintiff had the ability to understand, remember, 20 and carry out simple 1-3 step instructions as well as some more complex detailed 21 tasks on a limited basis but sustained concentration, persistence and pace would 22 wax and wane due to symptoms interference. Tr. 71-72, 86-87. On October 10, 23 2018, John D. Gilbert, Ph.D., reviewed the record and concurred with Dr. Lewis’ 24 findings but elaborated that Plaintiff “remains able to complete an 8 hr workday 25 and a 40 hr workweek” notwithstanding his symptoms. Tr. 102-103, 118-119. As 26 discussed by Defendant, ECF No. 24 at 7, Drs. Lewis and Gilbert also specifically 27 found Plaintiff “not significantly limited” in the areas of ability to carry out very 28 short and simple instructions; ability to perform activities within a schedule,

1 maintain regular attendance and be punctual within customary tolerances; ability to 2 sustain an ordinary routine without special supervision; and ability to complete a 3 normal workday and workweek without interruptions from psychologically based 4 symptoms and to perform at a consistent pace without an unreasonable number and 5 length of rest periods. Tr. 71, 86, 102-103, 118.

6 The ALJ also found persuasive the opinion of examining psychologist 7 Jameson C. Lontz, Ph.D. Tr. 25, 509-519. Dr. Lontz opined that Plaintiff was 8 capable of gainful employment and strongly encouraged Plaintiff to return to 9 gainful employment in some capacity. Tr. 515.

10 The ALJ additionally mentioned other evidence of record reflecting Plaintiff 11 was alert and oriented with normal attention span and concentration. Tr. 25, 27, 12 890, 1011, 1016, 1041. Plaintiff has not challenged the opinion of Dr. Lontz or 13 this additional evidence of record. See Carmickle v. Comm'r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 14 533 F.3d 1155, 1161 (9th Cir. 2008).

15 Rather, Plaintiff argues the ALJ erred by not including in the RFC 16 determination the findings of Drs. Lewis and Gilbert that Plaintiff would be limited 17 to simple 1-3 step instructions and that Plaintiff's concentration, persistence and 18 pace would wax and wane. ECF No. 19 at 9. However, the Court agrees with 19 Defendant's assertion that there is no precedent providing the ALJ must adopt a 20 persuasive medical opinion verbatim in the RFC assessment. See ECF No. 24 at 8.
21 Instead, the ALJ considered and weighed the evidence of record and specifically 22 held the limitations assessed by the persuasive opinion evidence was accounted for 23 in the RFC determination by restricting Plaintiff to simple routine tasks that would 24 not involve the need to learn new tasks and are "simple," providing scheduled 25 breaks, providing additional time in those rare instances where new tasks were 26 required, placing Plaintiff in a predicable environment with seldom change (and 27 additional time to adapt to any changes defined at 10 percent longer than the 28 ///

1 average employee), and where tasks are rote and routine so “to-do” lists, 2 calculators, etc. are not needed. Tr. 25, 27.

3 The Court finds the ALJ reasonably interpreted the evidence of record, 4 adequately incorporated the findings of Drs. Lewis, Gilbert and Lontz, and 5 formulated a succinct RFC determination based on the persuasive opinion 6 evidence. See Rounds v. Comm’r Soc. Sec. Admin., 807 F.3d 996, 1006 (9th Cir.
7 2015) (holding the ALJ is responsible for translating and incorporating clinical 8 findings into a succinct RFC). The ALJ’s RFC determination is supported by 9 substantial evidence and free of error.

10 B. Step Five

11 Plaintiff contends the ALJ’s Step Five determination is not supported by 12 substantial evidence. Defendant asserts the ALJ’s Step Five finding is properly 13 supported.

14 At Step Five, “the Commissioner has the burden ‘to identify specific jobs 15 existing in substantial numbers in the national economy that [a] claimant can 16 perform despite [his] identified limitations.’” Zavalin v. Colvin, 778 F.3d 842, 845 17 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Johnson v. Shalala, 60 F.3d 1428, 1432 (9th Cir. 1995)).
18 The Commissioner considers the claimant’s RFC, age, education, and work 19 experience in order to determine if the claimant is able to perform a job in the 20 national economy. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a). The ALJ may also rely on the 21 testimony of a vocational expert for information on what occupations a claimant 22 can perform given his or her RFC. 20 C.F.R. § 416.966(e); Valentine v. Comm’r
23 Soc. Sec. Admin., 574 F.3d 685, 689 (9th Cir. 2009).

24 Plaintiff has not demonstrated the ALJ erred with respect to his analysis of 25 the medical opinion evidence of record or that the ALJ’s RFC determination is 26 deficient. As discussed above, the Court finds the ALJ’s RFC determination is 27 supported by substantial evidence.

28 ///

1 At the administrative hearing, the vocational expert testified that with the 2 RFC assessed by the ALJ, Plaintiff retained the capacity to perform a significant 3 number of jobs existing in the national economy, including the positions of kitchen 4 helper, laundry worker, and automobile detailer. Tr. 28, 57-58. Since the 5 vocational expert's testimony was based on a properly supported RFC 6 determination by the ALJ, the Court finds the ALJ did not err at Step Five of the 7 sequential evaluation process in this case.

8 C. Harmless Error

9 Plaintiff argues the ALJ harmfully erred because the three jobs identified at 10 Step Five require more than 3-step instructions to perform. ECF No. 19 at 10-13.
11 Defendant responds that even if the ALJ erred by failing to include the specific 12 limitation that Plaintiff was capable of only 1-3 step instructions in the RFC 13 determination, the error is harmless because there is no apparent conflict between 14 this restriction and the occupations identified by the ALJ at Step Five. ECF No. 24 15 at 10.

16 The Dictionary of Occupational Titles provides six General Educational 17 Development (GED) Reasoning Levels that range from Level One (simplest) to 18 Level Six (most complex). U.S. Dep't Labor, Dictionary of Occupational Titles 19 (DOT), App. C, § III, 1991 WL 688702. The lowest two levels are:

20 Level 1: Apply commonsense understanding to carry out simple 21 one- or two-step instructions. Deal with standardized situations 22 with occasional or no variables in or from these situations 23 encountered on the job.

24 Level 2: Apply commonsense understanding to carry out 25 detailed but uninvolved written or oral instructions. Deal with 26 problems involving a few concrete variables in or from 27 standardized situations.
28

1 In the Ninth Circuit, courts have regularly concluded that an ability to 2 perform simple instructions is consistent with GED Level Two Reasoning. See 3 e.g. Zavalin, 778 F.3d at 846-847 (finding that Level Two Reasoning is more 4 consistent with limitation to “simple, routine, and repetitive work” than Level 5 Three Reasoning); Lara v. Astrue, 305 Fed. Appx. 324, 326 (9th Cir. 2008) 6 (“[S]omeone able to perform simple, repetitive tasks is capable of . . . Reasoning 7 Level 2 jobs.”); Abrew v. Astrue, 303 Fed. Appx. 567, 569 (9th Cir. 2008) 8 (“[T]here was no conflict between the ALJ’s step five determination that [the 9 claimant] could complete only simple tasks and the vocational expert’s testimony 10 that [the claimant] could do jobs . . . categorized at ‘Reasoning Level 2.’”); 11 Coleman v. Astrue, 2011 WL 781930 at *5 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (“[T]he weight of 12 prevailing authority precludes a finding of any inconsistency between a reasoning 13 level of two and a mere limitation to simple, repetitive tasks or unskilled work.”).

14 Moreover, although the Ninth Circuit has held that a restriction to 1-2 step 15 tasks is consistent with GED Reasoning Level One, see Rounds, 807 F.3d at 1003-16 1004 (finding a claimant limited to carrying out simple one or two step instructions 17 corresponds to Level One Reasoning), the limitation in this case would be to 1-3 18 step tasks, commensurate with Reasoning Level Two, see Bannister v. Colvin, 19 2016 WL 5141722 at *5 (W.D. Wa. 2016) (“The ability to carry out instructions of 20 three steps or less is not inconsistent with Reasoning Level 2 jobs.”); Hamlett v.
21 Astrue, 2012 WL 469722 (C.D. Ca. 2012) (correlating Reasoning Level One with 22 one and two step instructions and Reasoning Level Two with three and four-step 23 instructions); Howard v. Saul, 2020 WL 7490378 at *3 (D. Nev. 2020); Ray v.
24 Comm’r of Social Sec. Admin., 2019 WL 77432 at *1 (W.D. Wash. 2019). The 25 addition of a third step is consistent with GED Reasoning Level Two.

26 In this case, all three jobs identified by the ALJ at Step Five, Tr. 28, are 27 GED Reasoning Level Two. See DOT at Auto Detailer (DOT #915.687-034); id.
28 at Kitchen Helper (DOT #318.687-010); id. at Laundry Worker (DOT #361.685-

1 018). Consequently, the ALJ identified jobs that are consistent with the ability to 2 perform 1-3 step instructions. Any error by failing to include the specific
3 limitation that Plaintiff was capable of only 1-3 step instructions in the RFC
4 determination is harmless. See Molina v. Astrue, 674 F.3d 1104, 1111 (9th Cir.
5 2012) (“we may not reverse an ALJ’s decision on account of an error that is 6 harmless”).

7 CONCLUSION

8 Having reviewed the record and the ALJ’s findings, the Court finds the 9 ALJ’s decision is supported by substantial evidence and free of error.

10 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

11 1. Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 24, is 12 GRANTED.

13 2. Plaintiff’s Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 19, is DENIED.
14 IT IS SO ORDERED. The District Court Executive is directed to file this 15 Order and provide a copy to counsel for Plaintiff and Defendant. Judgment shall 16 be entered for Defendant and the file shall be CLOSED.
