SEAN F. MCAVOY, CLERK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

SCOTT S.,

Plaintiff,

v.

COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY,

Defendant.

No. 4:17-CV-05199-JTR

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT

BEFORE THE COURT are cross-motions for summary judgment. ECF Nos. 21, 26. Attorney Chad L. Hatfield represents Scott S. (Plaintiff); Special Assistant United States Attorney Leisa A. Wolf represents the Commissioner of Social Security (Defendant). The parties have consented to proceed before a magistrate judge. ECF No. 6. After reviewing the administrative record and the briefs filed by the parties, the Court GRANTS, in part, Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment; DENIES Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment; and REMANDS the matter to the Commissioner for additional proceedings pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g).

JURISDICTION

Plaintiff filed an application for Disability Insurance Benefits on January 14, 2014, Tr. 73, alleging disability since November 1, 2012, Tr. 165, due to arthritis

1 of the hips bilaterally, back pain, shoulder pain bilaterally, status post right 2 shoulder surgery, lateral epicondylitis of the right elbow, and depression. Tr. 180.
3 The application was denied initially and upon reconsideration. Tr. 100-06, 108-12.
4 Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Tom L. Morris held a hearing on March 16, 2016
5 and heard testimony from Plaintiff and vocational expert Michael Swanson. Tr.
6 40-72. The ALJ issued an unfavorable decision on June 27, 2016. Tr. 20-35. The 7 Appeals Council denied review on October 20, 2017. Tr. 1-5. The ALJ's June 27, 8 2016 decision became the final decision of the Commissioner, which is appealable 9 to the district court pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). Plaintiff initiated this action 10 for judicial review on November 27, 2017. ECF Nos. 1, 12.

11 STATEMENT OF FACTS

12 The facts of the case are set forth in the administrative hearing transcript, the 13 ALJ's decision, and the briefs of the parties. They are only briefly summarized 14 here.

15 Plaintiff was 43 years old at the alleged date of onset. Tr. 165. He 16 completed his GED in 1984 and completed a HVAC program in 1992. Tr. 181.
17 His reported work history includes the job of HVAC service technician. Tr. 182.
18 Plaintiff reported that he lost his job in November of 2012 because he "moved too 19 slowly due to pain and could not perform all of the physical functions of the job."
20 Tr. 181.

21 STANDARD OF REVIEW

22 The ALJ is responsible for determining credibility, resolving conflicts in 23 medical testimony, and resolving ambiguities. Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 24 1039 (9th Cir. 1995). The Court reviews the ALJ's determinations of law de novo, 25 deferring to a reasonable interpretation of the statutes. McNatt v. Apfel, 201 F.3d 26 1084, 1087 (9th Cir. 2000). The decision of the ALJ may be reversed only if it is 27 not supported by substantial evidence or if it is based on legal error. Tackett v.
28 Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1097 (9th Cir. 1999). Substantial evidence is defined as

1 being more than a mere scintilla, but less than a preponderance. Id. at 1098. Put 2 another way, substantial evidence is such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind 3 might accept as adequate to support a conclusion. Richardson v. Perales, 402
4 U.S. 389, 401 (1971). If the evidence is susceptible to more than one rational 5 interpretation, the court may not substitute its judgment for that of the ALJ.
6 Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097. If substantial evidence supports the administrative 7 findings, or if conflicting evidence supports a finding of either disability or non-8 disability, the ALJ's determination is conclusive. Sprague v. Bowen, 812 F.2d 9 1226, 1229-30 (9th Cir. 1987). Nevertheless, a decision supported by substantial 10 evidence will be set aside if the proper legal standards were not applied in 11 weighing the evidence and making the decision. Browner v. Secretary of Health 12 and Human Services, 839 F.2d 432, 433 (9th Cir. 1988).

13 SEQUENTIAL EVALUATION PROCESS

14 The Commissioner has established a five-step sequential evaluation process 15 for determining whether a person is disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a); see Bowen 16 v. Yuckert, 482 U.S. 137, 140-42 (1987). In steps one through four, the burden of 17 proof rests upon the claimant to establish a prima facie case of entitlement to 18 disability benefits. Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1098-99. This burden is met once the 19 claimant establishes that physical or mental impairments prevent him from 20 engaging in his previous occupations. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4). If the claimant 21 cannot do his past relevant work, the ALJ proceeds to step five, and the burden 22 shifts to the Commissioner to show that (1) the claimant can make an adjustment to 23 other work, and (2) specific jobs which the claimant can perform exist in the 24 national economy. Batson v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 359 F.3d 1190, 1193-94 25 (9th Cir. 2004). If the claimant cannot make an adjustment to other work in the 26 national economy, a finding of "disabled" is made. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4)(v).

27 ADMINISTRATIVE DECISION

28 On June 27, 2016, the ALJ issued a decision finding Plaintiff was not

1 disabled as defined in the Social Security Act.

2 At step one, the ALJ found Plaintiff had not engaged in substantial gainful 3 activity since November 1, 2012, the alleged date of onset. Tr. 22.

4 At step two, the ALJ determined Plaintiff had the following severe 5 impairments: degenerative disc disease of the lumbar spine; dysfunction of the 6 major joints; and osteoarthritis of the hands. Tr. 22.

7 At step three, the ALJ found Plaintiff did not have an impairment or 8 combination of impairments that met or medically equaled the severity of one of 9 the listed impairments. Tr. 24.

10 At step four, the ALJ assessed Plaintiff's residual function capacity and 11 determined he could perform a range of light work with the following limitations:

12 13 he can only stand and/or walk for 2 hours in an 8-hour workday; sit for 14 up to 8 hours in an 8-hour workday; occasionally climb, balance, stoop, 15 kneel, crouch, and crawl; frequently reach overhead with the right 16 upper extremity; and must avoid concentrated exposure to hazards such 17 as dangerous machinery and unprotected heights; there should be at 18 least be (sic.) some contact with the supervisor during the work period 19 at which time the person can receive any additional work-related 20 instructions if needed; cannot work at a production-rate pace but can perform goal-oriented work; and would be off task 10% of the time over the course of an 8-hour workday due to pain.

21 Tr. 25. The ALJ identified Plaintiff's past relevant work as HVAC Service 22 Technician and HVAC Technician and concluded that Plaintiff was not able to 23 perform this past relevant work. Tr. 33.

24 At step five, the ALJ determined that, considering Plaintiff's age, education, 25 work experience and residual functional capacity, and based on the testimony of 26 the vocational expert, there were other jobs that exist in significant numbers in the 27 national economy Plaintiff could perform, including the jobs of document preparer 28 and addresser. Tr. 34. The ALJ concluded Plaintiff was not under a disability

1 within the meaning of the Social Security Act at any time from November 1, 2012, 2 through the date of the ALJ's decision. Tr. 35.

3 ISSUES

4 The question presented is whether substantial evidence supports the ALJ's 5 decision denying benefits and, if so, whether that decision is based on proper legal 6 standards. Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred by (1) failing to properly weigh the 7 medical source opinions; (2) failing to make a proper step two determination; (3) 8 failing to properly address lay witness testimony; (4) failing to properly address 9 Plaintiff's symptom statements; and (5) failing to make a proper step five 10 determination.

11 DISCUSSION<sup>1</sup>

12 1. Medical Opinions

13 Plaintiff argues the ALJ failed to properly consider and weigh the medical 14 opinions expressed by treating physician Amy H. Britt, M.D. and occupational 15 therapist Haley Van Ens, MORT L. ECF No. 21 at 8-12.

16 In weighing medical source opinions, the ALJ should distinguish between 17 three different types of physicians: (1) treating physicians, who actually treat the 18 claimant; (2) examining physicians, who examine but do not treat the claimant; 19 and, (3) nonexamining physicians who neither treat nor examine the claimant.
20 Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 830 (9th Cir. 1995). The ALJ should give more

21
22 <sup>1</sup>In Lucia v. S.E.C., 138 S.Ct. 2044 (2018), the Supreme Court recently held 23 that ALJs of the Securities and Exchange Commission are "Officers of the United 24 States" and thus subject to the Appointments Clause. To the extent Lucia applies 25 to Social Security ALJs, the parties have forfeited the issue by failing to raise it in 26 their briefing. See Carmickle v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 533 F.3d 1155, 1161 27 n.2 (9th Cir. 2008) (the Court will not consider matters on appeal that were not 28 specifically addressed in an appellant's opening brief).

1 weight to the opinion of a treating physician than to the opinion of an examining 2 physician. Orn v. Astrue, 495 F.3d 625, 631 (9th Cir. 2007). Likewise, the ALJ 3 should give more weight to the opinion of an examining physician than to the 4 opinion of a nonexamining physician. Id.

5 When a treating physician’s opinion is not contradicted by another 6 physician, the ALJ may reject the opinion only for “clear and convincing” reasons.
7 Baxter v. Sullivan, 923 F.2d 1391, 1396 (9th Cir. 1991). When a treating 8 physician’s opinion is contradicted by another physician, the ALJ is only required 9 to provide “specific and legitimate reasons” for rejecting the opinion. Murray v.
10 Heckler, 722 F.2d 499, 502 (9th Cir. 1983). The specific and legitimate standard 11 can be met by the ALJ setting out a detailed and thorough summary of the facts 12 and conflicting clinical evidence, stating his interpretation thereof, and making 13 findings. Magallanes v. Bowen, 881 F.2d 747, 751 (9th Cir. 1989). The ALJ is 14 required to do more than offer his conclusions, he “must set forth his 15 interpretations and explain why they, rather than the doctors’, are correct.” 16 Embrey v. Bowen, 849 F.2d 418, 421-22 (9th Cir. 1988).

17 A. Amy H. Britt, M.D.

18 On March 11, 2016, Dr. Britt penned a letter summarizing Plaintiff’s 19 treatment history and stating that he is “maintained on long acting narcotic pain 20 medications which impair his cognition and render him unable to drive or do any 21 detailed type work.” Tr. 387. Dr. Britt then made the following statement:

22 I certainly find Mr. Staples disabled and unable to work in any capacity 23 and hope that you will consider his efforts to maintain employment as 24 long as he was able to, as well as his efforts in seeking medical expertise 25 and subjecting himself to expensive and painful procedures in hopes of 26 decreasing his pain and regaining some kind of quality of life and award 27 him disability benefits so he can rest at home with some reassurance that his family will not have such a financial burden.

28 Tr. 388. She also completed a Medical Report form listing Plaintiff’s diagnoses as 1 low back pain, osteoarthritis, shoulder pain, elbow pain, wrist pain, and hand pain.

2 Tr. 400. She again repeated her opinion that Plaintiff’s narcotic medications
3 caused cognitive slowing. Id. She further opined that if Plaintiff worked on a 4 regular and continuous basis, his condition would deteriorate, stating he would 5 have “worsening pain and [was] unable to do detail work on narcotics.” Tr. 401.
6 She found that if Plaintiff attempted to work a forty-hour week, he would likely 7 miss an average of four or more days per month due to his medical impairments.
8 Id. When asked to consider Plaintiff’s medical condition and state her opinion 9 regarding his ability to perform activities day to day on a sustained, competitive 10 basis, she found Plaintiff to be “Severely limited,” which his defined as “[u]nable 11 to lift at least 2 pounds or unable to stand and/or walk.” Id. She concluded her 12 opinion by stating that Plaintiff “has tried very hard to continue to be employed by 13 doing PT, surgeries, etc. At this point he has minimal physical abilities due to pain 14 and deterioration of his joints and the effects of narcotics on his cognition.” Tr.
15 402.

16 The ALJ first addressed Dr. Britt’s March 11, 2016 letter stating that “an 17 opinion on whether an individual is disabled goes to an issue reserved to the 18 Commissioner and therefore cannot be given special significance, such opinion 19 should still be considered in assessment of the claimant’s residual functional 20 capacity.” Tr. 31. He then gave the opinion “little weight” for three reasons: (1) 21 the opinion was inconsistent with Plaintiff’s testimony that he could lift a gallon of 22 milk with his left arm, stand, and walk; (2) the opinion was inconsistent with Dr.
23 Britt’s treatment notes that Plaintiff was looking for a job; and (3) the opinion was 24 inconsistent with Plaintiff’s orthopedic records. Id.

25 Plaintiff asserts that the ALJ was required to provide clear and conceiving 26 reasons to reject the opinion, but failed to meet the lesser standard of specific and 27 legitimate reasons. ECF No. 21 at 10-11. The Defendant asserts that the ALJ was 28 required to provide specific and legitimate reasons for rejecting the testimony and

1 that the ALJ's reasons met this standard. ECF No. 26 at 4-5. The Court finds that 2 the ALJ's reasons failed to meet the lesser standard of specific and legitimate.

3 The ALJ's first reason for rejecting the opinion, that it was inconsistent with 4 Plaintiff's statements regarding his ability to lift a gallon of milk with his left arm, 5 to stand, and to walk, is not specific and legitimate. A claimant's testimony about 6 his abilities may be seen as inconsistent with the presence of a disabling condition.
7 See Curry v. Sullivan, 925 F.2d 1127, 1130 (9th Cir. 1990). At the hearing, 8 Plaintiff testified that he could not lift a gallon of milk with his right hand and only 9 two or three times with his left hand before experiencing pain in his hand and 10 elbow. Tr. 61. He stated he could stand in one place thirty to forty-five minutes 11 before experiencing pain in his hips and back. Tr. 54. He further testified that 12 after standing still that long, he generally has to lay down for an hour to an hour 13 and a half. Id. He further testified that he tries to walk to collect the mail each 14 day, Tr. 64, and that the mailbox is located a block and a half down the street, Tr.
15 67. Additionally, he stated that the day prior to the hearing, he walked to the store, 16 which was "quite a workout" for him. Id. The ALJ's determination failed to state 17 how Plaintiff's testimony regarding lifting, standing, and walking were 18 inconsistent with Dr. Britt's conclusion that Plaintiff was severely limited. Dr.
19 Britt's opinion was not that Plaintiff could never lift more than two pounds or 20 never stand or walk, but that he could not perform these activities "day to day on a 21 sustained, competitive basis." Tr. 401. Therefore, the ALJ's reason falls short of 22 the specific and legitimate standard.

23 The ALJ's second reason for giving Dr. Britt's opinion little weight, that it 24 was inconsistent with her treatment notes that Plaintiff was looking for a job, is not 25 specific and legitimate. The Ninth Circuit has held that the fact that a claimant 26 "tried to work for a short period of time and, because of his impairments, failed," 27 should not be used to discredit him. Lingenfelter v. Astrue, 504 F.3d 1028, 1038-28 39 (9th Cir. 2007). In fact, evidence that a claimant tried to work and failed may 1 support the claimant’s allegations of disabling pain. Id. at 1038. Furthermore, 2 “disability claimants should not be penalized for attempting to lead normal lives in 3 the face of their limitations.” Reddick v. Chater, 157 F.3d 715, 722 (9th Cir.

4 1998).

5 On October 10, 2013 Plaintiff reported to Dr. Britt that he “was laid off a 6 while ago and has been picking up some day jobs here and there but feels like he is 7 unable to physically work the way he has been. His financial situation is pretty 8 bad right now and paying for the visit and UDS have been difficult.” Tr. 241. He 9 further reported that he was looking for a job but was also considering applying for 10 disability benefits. Id. Plaintiff filed for benefits in January of 2014. Tr. 73.
11 Therefore, Plaintiff’s report that working was difficult for him and he was 12 considering applying for benefits three months prior to actually filing for benefits 13 does not negate the opinion that he was unable to work during that time, but 14 actually supports it. Similar to the Ninth Circuit’s conclusion in Lingenfelter, that 15 an attempt to work met with failure may actually support a claimant’s alleged 16 limitations, it supports a provider’s opinion that a claimant is unable to sustain 17 work on a competitive basis. Therefore, this reason is a not specific and legitimate 18 reason to reject the opinion.

19 The ALJ’s third reason for giving Dr. Britt’s opinion little weight, that it was 20 inconsistent with Plaintiff’s orthopedic records, is not specific and legitimate. The 21 ALJ concluded that the records from Tri Cities Orthopedics showed that Plaintiff 22 was not as limited as Dr. Britt opined. Tr. 31. The ALJ did not cite to any specific 23 objective evidence or provider statement, but only cited to the exhibit in its 24 entirety. Id. The ALJ’s general conclusion that the sixty page exhibit dated from 25 June of 2015 through January of 2016 is inconsistent with Dr. Britt’s opinion lacks 26 the specificity required under Magallanes and Embrey. As such, it falls short of 27 the specific and legitimate standard. This case must be remanded for the ALJ to 28 properly address Dr. Britt’s opinions.

1           Additionally, Defendant asserts that an ALJ may reject an opinion that is 2 premised upon a claimant’s discredited subjective complaints. ECF No. 26 at 5 3 (citing Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 957 (9th Cir. 2002)). However, the ALJ
4 never found the opinion to be premised on Plaintiff’s discredited statements. Tr.
5 31. Therefore, this amounts to a post hoc rationalization that the Court will not 6 consider. See Orn, 495 F.3d at 630 (The Court will “review only the reasons 7 provided by the ALJ in the disability determination and may not affirm the ALJ on 8 a ground upon which he did not rely.”).

9           B.     Haley Van Ens, MOTR L

10           Therapist Van Ens completed an Occupational Therapy Initial Evaluation on 11 July 28, 2015. Tr. 358-59. The therapist found that Plaintiff’s current functional 12 limitations included a reduced grip strength in the right upper extremity and 13 significant limitations in fine motor/dexterity on the right. Tr. 358. The therapist 14 then recommend therapy once or twice a week for six weeks. Tr. 359.

15           Plaintiff asserts that the ALJ erred by failing to address Therapist Van Ens’ 16 opinion in his decision. ECF No. 21 at 11-12. Defendant argues that the ALJ did 17 not error because this is not a medical source opinion. ECF No. 26 at 5-6. The 18 ALJ relied on the evaluation to support his determination that Plaintiff was not as 19 limited as he alleged, Tr. 30, but he did not address it as a medical opinion 20 elsewhere in the decision.

21           A medical source opinion is defined as “statements from acceptable medical 22 sources that reflect judgments about the nature and severity of your impairment(s), 23 including your symptoms, diagnosis, and prognosis, what you can still do despite 24 impairment(s), and your physical or mental restrictions.” 20 C.F.R. § 25 404.1527(a)(1).<sup>2</sup> First, an occupational therapist is not an acceptable medical 26

27           <sup>2</sup>At the time of the ALJ decision, the regulations defined a medical source 28 opinion as “statements from physicians and psychologists or other acceptable

1 source as defined in 20 C.F.R. § 404.1502(a). Nonetheless, evidence from non-2 acceptable medical sources must still be considered by the ALJ. 20 C.F.R. § 3 404.1527(f). Second, the purpose of this evaluation was to discern Plaintiff's 4 current functional limitations, set treatment goals, and design a treatment schedule.
5 Tr. 359. While the evaluation reflects some judgments regarding Plaintiff's 6 functional abilities, the purpose of the evaluation was not to set forth a functional 7 opinion regarding what Plaintiff could still do despite his limitations in a work 8 setting. Presumably, the goal was for Plaintiff to improve with treatment. While 9 the evaluation is not a medical source opinion, the ALJ should, nevertheless, 10 consider evidence from a non-acceptable medical source to the extent it addresses 11 a claimant's "impairment severity and functional effects." See S.S.R. 06-03p, 12 2006 WL 2329939.<sup>3</sup>

13 14 medical sources that reflect judgments about the nature and severity of your 15 impairment(s), including your symptoms, diagnosis and prognosis, what you can 16 still do despite impairment(s), and your physical or mental restrictions." 20 C.F.R.
17 404.1527(a)(2) (2016).

18 <sup>3</sup>On March 27, 2017, S.S.R. 06-03p was rescinded, but the policies
19 addressed in S.S.R. 06-03p were intended to be codified in 20 C.F.R. § 20 404.1527(f). See Revisions to Rules Regarding the Evaluations of Medical 21 Evidence, 82 Fed. Reg. 15132-01 (Jan. 18, 2017) available at 2017 WL 1105368.
22 However, 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527(f) does not limit the value of the non-acceptable 23 medical source's opinion to the "impairment severity and functional effects;" 24 instead, it states that the opinions of non-acceptable medical sources "may reflect 25 the source's judgment about some of the same issues addressed in medical 26 opinions from acceptable medical sources." Under 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527(a), 27 opinions from acceptable medical sources may address "the nature and severity of 28 your impairment(s), including your symptoms, diagnosis and prognosis, what you

1 2. Step Two

2 Plaintiff argues that the ALJ failed to find all of his impairments severe at 3 step two. ECF No. 21 at 12-13.

4 The step-two analysis is “a de minimis screening device used to dispose of 5 groundless claims.” Webb v. Barnhart, 433 F.3d 683, 687 (9th Cir. 2005). An 6 impairment is “not severe” if it does not “significantly limit” the ability to conduct 7 “basic work activities.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1522(a). Basic work activities are 8 “abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1522(b). “An 9 impairment or combination of impairments can be found not severe only if the 10 evidence establishes a slight abnormality that has no more than a minimal effect on 11 an individual’s ability to work.” Smolen v. Chater, 80 F.3d 1273, 1290 (9th Cir.
12 1996) (internal quotation marks omitted). A claimant’s own statement of 13 symptoms alone will not suffice. See 20 C.F.R. § 404.1521.

14 Plaintiff asserts that his degenerative changes of his hip joints, tendonitis of 15 bilateral shoulders, left shoulder impingement, tear, and supraspinatus 16 peritendinitis, bilateral epicondylitis, sciatica, insomnia, migraines, anxiety and 17 depression should have been found severe at step two. ECF No. 21 at 12-13. In 18 his decision, the ALJ found Plaintiff’s severe impairments to include degenerative 19 disc disease of the lumbar spine, dysfunction of the major joints, and osteoarthritis 20 of the hands. Tr. 22. Arguably, the ALJ’s inclusion of “dysfunction of the major 21 joints” in his step two determination may include Plaintiff’s hips and shoulders.
22 However, without specifically stating which joints are affected, it is impossible for 23 _____
24 can still do despite impairment(s), and your physical or mental restrictions.” While 25 this change potentially opens the door for more value to be placed on non-26 acceptable medical source opinions, it does not change the ultimate ruling in the 27 case, which is that the ALJ is required to consider the opinion of Therapist Van 28 Ens on remand.

1 the Court to review the ALJ's determination to discern which impairments were 2 actually considered by the ALJ in forming the residual functional capacity 3 determination. Therefore, upon remand, the ALJ will identify each impairment 4 specifically, i.e. by the joint affected.

5 3. Lay Witness Testimony

6 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's treatment of the evidence presented by 7 Plaintiff's spouse. ECF No. 21 at 13-15.

8 Lay witness testimony is "competent evidence" as to "how an impairment 9 affects [a claimant's] ability to work." Stout v. Comm'r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 454 10 F.3d 1050 (9th Cir. 2006); 20 C.F.R. § 404.1513(d)(4); see also Dodrill v. Shalala, 11 12 F.3d 915, 918-19 (9th Cir. 1993) ("[F]riends and family members in a position 12 to observe a claimant's symptoms and daily activities are competent to testify as to 13 her condition."). An ALJ must give "germane" reasons to discount evidence from 14 such "other sources." Dodrill, 12 F.3d at 919.

15 The ALJ considered the function report completed by Plaintiff's spouse in 16 February of 2014 but found that it was not given under oath and it was not 17 unbiased because she lived with Plaintiff and "could be motivated by a desire to 18 increase the household income." Tr. 32.

19 Plaintiff's spouse's statement was made on an agency supplied function 20 report form, which does not require that the statements be attested to under oath.
21 Tr. 188-95. Other districts in this circuit have held that an ALJ may not reject lay 22 witness statements on the grounds that they were not made under oath. Taylor v.
23 Colvin, 2016 WL 704352 at *16 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 23, 2016); Smith v. Astrue, 2011
24 WL 3962107 at *11 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 8, 2011); Anderson v. Colvin, 2014 WL
25 4904868 at *8 (D. Ariz. Sept. 30, 2014); Gray v. Astrue, 2012 WL 4097762 at *7 26 (D. Idaho Sept. 17, 2012). Likewise, the Ninth Circuit has found that rejecting lay 27 witness testimony on the grounds that it was not taken under oath, may amount to 28 error. See Hanes v. Colvin, 651 Fed. Appx. 703, 705 (9th Cir. 2016) (finding that 1 if it were error, it was harmless in this case). This Court agrees with the other 2 districts on this point and finds that it was error for the ALJ to reject the evidence 3 on the function report because the statements were not made under oath.

4 Additionally, this Court rejects the ALJ's assumption that since the 5 statements came from Plaintiff's spouse, that her motivation was suspect. The 6 Ninth Circuit has found that the fact that a lay witness is a family member cannot 7 be a reason for rejecting her testimony. Smolen, 80 F.3d at 1289. Here, the ALJ 8 found no evidence that the statements on the function report were made falsely due 9 to secondary motivation besides the fact that the evidence was supplied by 10 Plaintiff's spouse. Tr. 32. The ALJ addresses Plaintiff's testimony regarding his 11 fears that they may lose their house due to financial difficulties, but this is 12 Plaintiff's statements and not those of his wife. Id. Therefore, this is not a 13 germane reason to support a rejection of this evidence. Upon remand, the ALJ will 14 properly consider and address the statements of Plaintiff's spouse.

15 4. Plaintiff's Symptom Statements

16 Plaintiff contests the ALJ's determination that Plaintiff's symptom 17 statements were not entirely consistent with the medical evidence and other 18 evidence in the record. ECF No. 21 at 15-17.

19 It is generally the province of the ALJ to make credibility determinations, 20 Andrews, 53 F.3d at 1039, but the ALJ's findings must be supported by specific 21 cogent reasons, Rashad v. Sullivan, 903 F.2d 1229, 1231 (9th Cir. 1990). Absent 22 affirmative evidence of malingering, the ALJ's reasons for rejecting the claimant's 23 testimony must be "specific, clear and convincing." Smolen, 80 F.3d at 1281; 24 Lester, 81 F.3d at 834. "General findings are insufficient: rather the ALJ must 25 identify what testimony is not credible and what evidence undermines the 26 claimant's complaints." Lester, 81 F.3d at 834.

27 The ALJ found Plaintiff's statements concerning the intensity, persistence, 28 and limiting effects of his symptoms were not entirely consistent with the medical

1 evidence and other evidence in the record. Tr. 32. The ALJ reasoned that 2 Plaintiff's symptom statements were not supported by the objective evidence and 3 that Plaintiff had made inconsistent statements about his ability to walk. Id.

4 The evaluation of a claimant's symptom statements and their resulting 5 limitations relies, in part, on the assessment of the medical evidence. See 20 6 C.F.R. § 416.929(c); S.S.R. 16-3p. Therefore, in light of the case being remanded 7 for the ALJ to address the medical source opinions in the file, a new assessment of 8 Plaintiff's subjective symptom statements is necessary.

9 5. Step Five

10 Plaintiff alleges that the ALJ erred at step five by relying on testimony by a 11 vocational expert premised upon an incomplete hypothetical residual functional 12 capacity. ECF No. 21 at 17-20. Since the case is being remanded for the ALJ to 13 readdress Dr. Britt's opinion, a new residual functional capacity determination will 14 be required, along with new determinations at steps four and five.

15 REMEDY

16 The decision whether to remand for further proceedings or reverse and 17 award benefits is within the discretion of the district court. McAllister v. Sullivan, 18 888 F.2d 599, 603 (9th Cir. 1989). An immediate award of benefits is appropriate 19 where "no useful purpose would be served by further administrative proceedings, 20 or where the record has been thoroughly developed," Varney v. Secretary of Health 21 & Human Servs., 859 F.2d 1396, 1399 (9th Cir. 1988), or when the delay caused 22 by remand would be "unduly burdensome," Terry v. Sullivan, 903 F.2d 1273, 1280
23 (9th Cir. 1990); see also Garrison v. Colvin, 759 F.3d 995, 1021 (9th Cir. 2014) 24 (noting that a district court may abuse its discretion not to remand for benefits 25 when all of these conditions are met). This policy is based on the "need to 26 expedite disability claims." Varney, 859 F.2d at 1401. But where there are 27 outstanding issues that must be resolved before a determination can be made, and it 28 is not clear from the record that the ALJ would be required to find a claimant

1 disabled if all the evidence were properly evaluated, remand is appropriate. See 2 Benecke v. Barnhart, 379 F.3d 587, 595-96 (9th Cir. 2004); Harman v. Apfel, 211 3 F.3d 1172, 1179-80 (9th Cir. 2000).

4 In this case, it is not clear from the record that the ALJ would be required to 5 find Plaintiff disabled if all the evidence were properly evaluated. Further 6 proceedings are necessary for the ALJ to properly address the medical opinions in 7 the file, to make a new and specific step two determination, to properly address the 8 statements of Plaintiff's spouse, to properly address Plaintiff's symptom 9 statements, to make a new residual functional capacity determination, and to make 10 new step four and step five determinations. The ALJ will supplement the record 11 with any outstanding evidence and call an orthopedic expert and a vocational 12 expert to testify on remand.
