ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S SUMMARY JUDGMENT MOTION AND DENYING PLAINTIFF'S
SUMMARY JUDGMENT MOTION

11
13 Before the Court are the parties' cross motions for summary judgment, 14 ECF Nos. 11 & 12. Plaintiff Isaiah D. appeals a denial of benefits by the 15 Administrative Law Judge (ALJ).<sup>2</sup> Plaintiff contends the ALJ: (1) did not provide 16 germane reasons for rejecting the lay witness testimony of Plaintiff's teachers Tina 17 Gore and Mary Straub Walden; (2) failed to provide legally sufficient reasons for 18 rejecting medical expert Nancy Winfrey, M.D. and state agency psychological 19 consultants; (3) improperly rejected lay witness testimony of Plaintiff's mother; and 20

22 <sup>1</sup> To protect the privacy of social-security plaintiffs, the Court refers to them by first name and last initial. See LCivR 5.2(c). When quoting the Administrative Record in this order, the Court will substitute "Plaintiff" for any other identifier that was used.

23 <sup>2</sup> ECF No. 11.

1 (4) erroneously concluded that Plaintiff's attention deficit hyperactivity disorder 2 (ADHD) and learning disorders did not equal a listed impairment.<sup>3</sup> The 3 Commissioner of Social Security (Commissioner) asks the Court to affirm the ALJ's 4 decision finding Plaintiff not disabled.<sup>4</sup>

5 After reviewing the record and relevant authority, the Court is fully informed.
6 For the reasons set forth below, the Court grants the Commissioner's Motion for 7 Summary Judgment and denies Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment.

8 I. PROCEDURAL HISTORY<sup>5</sup>

9 Plaintiff was born January 14, 2000.<sup>6</sup> On September 3, 2013, Plaintiff's 10 mother protectively filed an application for supplemental security income (SSI) on 11 Plaintiff's behalf, alleging a disability onset date of January 1, 2006.<sup>7</sup> The application 12 was denied initially on February 3, 2014, and upon reconsideration.<sup>8</sup> Plaintiff 13 requested a hearing on June 26, 2014.<sup>9</sup>

14 A hearing was held before ALJ Laura Valente in Kennewick, Washington on 15 April 22, 2016.<sup>10</sup> However, one of the impartial medical experts decided at the 16 April 22 hearing that he did not have enough information to testify.<sup>11</sup> Accordingly, 17 the ALJ continued the hearing.<sup>12</sup> In the interim, the expert obtained additional 2 psychodiagnostics evaluation, which was performed in June 2016.<sup>14</sup> The 3 supplemental hearing occurred on November 1, 2016.<sup>15</sup>

4 In a decision dated April 20, 2017, the ALJ found Plaintiff's severe 5 impairments included: adjustment disorder, learning disorder, and ADHD.<sup>16</sup> The 6 ALJ found that Plaintiff's impairments did not meet or equal a listing.<sup>17</sup> The ALJ 7 went on to determine that Plaintiff did not have "marked limitation" in any major 8 functional areas.<sup>18</sup> As such, the ALJ denied Plaintiff's claims.<sup>19</sup>

9 On April 23, 2018, the Appeals Council denied Plaintiff's request for review 10 and the ALJ's decision became final.<sup>20</sup> On October 31, 2018, Plaintiff filed this 11 lawsuit appealing the ALJ's decision.<sup>21</sup> The parties subsequently filed the instant 12 summary judgment motions.<sup>22</sup>

13 II. THREE-STEP PROCESS FOR CHILD DISABILITY

14 A child under the age of 18<sup>23</sup> is disabled within the meaning of the Social 15 Security Act "if that individual has a medically determinable physical or mental 16 impairment, which results in marked and severe functional limitations, and which

1 can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for 2 a continuous period of not less than 12 months.”<sup>24</sup> The regulations provide a three-3 step process to determine whether a claimant satisfies this criterion.<sup>25</sup> First, the 4 ALJ must determine whether the child is engaged in substantial gainful activity.<sup>26</sup> 5 Second, the ALJ considers whether the child has a “medically determinable 6 impairment that is severe,” which is defined as an impairment that causes “more 7 than minimal functional limitations.”<sup>27</sup> Third, if the ALJ finds a severe impairment, 8 the ALJ must then consider whether the impairment either “medically equals” or 9 “functionally equals” a listed disability.<sup>28</sup>

10 At the third step, if the ALJ finds that the child’s impairment or combination 11 of impairments does not meet or medically equal a listing, the ALJ must still 12 determine whether the impairment or combination of impairments functionally 13 equals a listing.<sup>29</sup> The ALJ’s functional equivalence assessment requires the ALJ to 14 evaluate the child’s functioning in six “domains.”<sup>30</sup> These six domains are designed 15 “to capture all of what a child can or cannot do,” and are as follows:

- 16 (1) Acquiring and using information;
- 17 (2) Attending and completing tasks;
- (3) Interacting and relating with others;
- (4) Moving about and manipulating objects;
- 18 (5) Caring for self; and
- 19 (6) Health and physical well-being.<sup>31</sup>

1 A child's impairment will be deemed to functionally equal a listed 2 impairment if his condition results in "marked" limitations in at least two domains, 3 or an "extreme" limitation in at least one domain.<sup>32</sup> A "marked limitation" is present 4 in a domain if the child's impairment "interferes seriously with [his] ability to 5 independently initiate, sustain, or complete activities."<sup>33</sup> By contrast, an "extreme 6 limitation" is defined as a limitation that "interferes very seriously with [his] ability 7 to independently initiate, sustain, or complete activities."<sup>34</sup>

8 III. ALJ DECISION

9 At the first step in this case, the ALJ determined that Plaintiff has not 10 engaged in substantial gainful activity since applying for disability on 11 September 3, 2013.<sup>35</sup> At the second step, the ALJ found that Plaintiff had the 12 "severe impairments" of adjustment disorder, learning disorder, and attention 13 deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD).<sup>36</sup> At the third step, the ALJ found that 14 Plaintiff "does not have an impairment or combination of impairments that meets 15 or medically equals the severity" of a listed impairment in 20 C.F.R. Part 404, 16 Subpart P, Appendix 1.<sup>37</sup> The ALJ reasoned that "[n]o physician of record opined 17 that [Plaintiff's] impairments met or medically equaled any listing."<sup>38</sup> Further, the 18 ALJ found that Plaintiff's "medically determinable impairments could reasonably 19 be expected to produce the alleged symptoms; however, the statements concerning <sup>38</sup> Id.

1 the intensity, persistence and limiting effects of these symptoms are not entirely 2 consistent with the medical evidence and other evidence in the record[.]”<sup>39</sup>

3 In arriving at this conclusion, the ALJ gave great weight to non-treating 4 medical expert Joseph M. Steiner, Ph.D.<sup>40</sup> The ALJ reasoned that Dr. Steiner was 5 the only medical source who had reviewed the entire record and his testimony was 6 impartial and well-reasoned.<sup>41</sup> The ALJ assigned “some/partial” weight to treating 7 physician Dr. Glenn Ello and examining physician Nora K. Marks, Ph.D.<sup>42</sup>

8 The ALJ assigned “little” weight to state agency psychological consultants 9 Beth Fitterer and Grant Gilbert, Ph.D.<sup>43</sup> The ALJ reasoned that their “assessment 10 of the evidence and domain ratings were in concert with” Dr. Steiner’s opinion, 11 “except they indicated ‘marked’ limitations in acquiring and using information and 12 ‘no’ limitations in caring for himself, ratings not consistent with the evidence of 13 record.”<sup>44</sup> Further, the ALJ stated that the medical and school evidence was 14 inconsistent with these opinions, and the consultants did not consider evidence after 15 2014.<sup>45</sup> Additionally, the ALJ assigned little weight to interrogatories completed by 16 Nancy Winfrey, Ph.D., because her opinions were not supported by objective testing 17 and “appeared to be more based on speculation than the evidence of record.”<sup>46</sup>

1 The ALJ also assigned little weight to Plaintiff’s middle school teachers Tina 2 Gore and Mary Straub Walden.<sup>47</sup> The ALJ reasoned that Ms. Gore’s demarcation of 3 “extreme” and “marked” limitations in multiple domains “was wholly inconsistent” 4 with her own earlier assessment, which rendered “her questionnaires 5 unpersuasive.”<sup>48</sup> Further, the ALJ reasoned that the domain ratings from both 6 Ms. Gore and Ms. Walden were “more severe than [Plaintiff’s] objective test results, 7 contradictory to his records and IEP reports, . . . and out of proportion to the 8 allegations of [Plaintiff] and his mother.”<sup>49</sup>

9 Finally, the ALJ assigned little weight to Plaintiff’s mother, Sonia Portales.<sup>50</sup> 10 The ALJ reasoned that although Ms. Portales had observed Plaintiff on a regular 11 basis, she was not a medical professional and the limitations she alleged were “not 12 entirely consistent with clinical observations of medical professionals.”<sup>51</sup> The ALJ 13 further stated that Ms. Portales’ allegations were “out of proportion to medical 14 source evidence, and [Plaintiff’s] own testimony.”<sup>52</sup>

15 IV. STANDARD OF REVIEW

16 This Court will reverse an ALJ’s decision only if it was not supported by 17 substantial evidence in the record as a whole or if the ALJ applied the wrong legal 18 standard.<sup>53</sup> Substantial evidence is “more than a mere scintilla but less than a 1 preponderance; it is such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as 2 adequate to support a conclusion.”<sup>54</sup>

3 It is the role of the ALJ, not this Court, to weigh conflicting evidence and make 4 credibility assessments. If the evidence supports more than one rational 5 interpretation, the Court may not substitute its judgment for that of the ALJ.<sup>55</sup> The 6 Court will also uphold “such inferences and conclusions as the [ALJ] may reasonably 7 draw from the evidence.”<sup>56</sup> However, if the ALJ applied an incorrect legal standard 8 in weighing the evidence and arriving at his decision, the Court will reverse unless 9 the error was harmless.<sup>57</sup>

10 V. DISCUSSION

11 A. The ALJ did not err in concluding that Plaintiff’s ADHD and learning 12 disorders do not functionally equal a listed impairment.

13 Plaintiff argues that the ALJ erroneously concluded that Plaintiff had “less 14 than marked” limitations in the domains of “acquiring and using information” and 15 “attending and completing tasks.”<sup>58</sup> The ALJ concluded that Plaintiff had “less than 16 marked” limitations in all domains, thereby rendering him not disabled.<sup>59</sup>

17 The Court finds substantial evidence exists to support the ALJ’s conclusions.
18 “[W]hatever the meaning of ‘substantial’ in other contexts, the threshold for such least one domain).

1 evidentiary sufficiency is not high . . . It means—and means only—such relevant 2 evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion.”<sup>60</sup>

3 i. Acquiring and Using Information

4 In this domain, an ALJ assesses “how well [the claimant] acquire[s] or learn[s] 5 information, and how well [he] use[s] the information [he has] learned.”<sup>61</sup> A claimant 6 may present limited functioning in acquiring and using information if he (1) does not 7 demonstrate understanding of words about space, time or size; (2) cannot rhyme 8 words or sounds in words; (3) has difficulty recalling important things he learned in 9 school yesterday; (4) has difficulty solving mathematics questions or computing 10 arithmetic answers; or (5) speaks only in short, simple sentences and has difficulty 11 explaining what he means.<sup>62</sup> An adolescent who acquires and uses information in a 12 typical manner is generally able to demonstrate—among other factors—learning in 13 academic assignments; apply learning in daily situations without assistance (such 14 as going to the store, getting a book from the library, or using public transportation); 15 and apply knowledge in practical ways that will help in employment, such as 16 carrying out instructions.<sup>63</sup>

17 Plaintiff generally asserts that the ALJ erred because Plaintiff’s lay 18 witnesses, the state psychological consultants, and Dr. Winfrey concluded that 19 Plaintiff had “marked” limitations in this domain.<sup>64</sup> However, as discussed infra, the 20

1 ALJ properly afforded little weight to the opinions of these witnesses. Further, 2 substantial evidence supports the ALJ's findings that Plaintiff has "less than 3 marked" limitations in acquiring and using information. Plaintiff's treating 4 physician Dr. Glenn Ello opined that Plaintiff had "less than marked" limitations in 5 acquiring and using information, and that medication would enable Plaintiff to focus 6 better.<sup>65</sup> Dr. Marks' objective testing for intelligence and achievement showed 7 Plaintiff is able to follow and carry out instructions with repetition.<sup>66</sup> Plaintiff's IEP
8 form dated December 2014 supports Dr. Marks' findings, stating that Plaintiff 9 "works hard and is eager to understand all of the instruction he is given."<sup>67</sup> The form 10 further states that Plaintiff "catches onto new academic skills quite well," and he 11 retains "new material and skills" through significant repetition.<sup>68</sup>

12 Dr. Marks' testing also showed Plaintiff had a full-scale IQ score in the low-13 average range with some borderline range scores, which medical expert Dr. Joseph 14 Steiner opined did not reach the level of "marked" limitations.<sup>69</sup> Although Plaintiff 15 believes Dr. Steiner relied "almost solely" on the intelligence testing, Dr. Steiner also 16 relied on Dr. Ello's testimony and Plaintiff's most recent school transcript, which

18 <sup>65</sup> AR 511. Plaintiff contends that the ALJ erred by relying on Dr. Ello's opinion to the extent it only 19 assessed his disability from his ADHD. ECF No. 11 at 16–17. However, as discussed infra, substantial evidence in the record that also accounted for his learning and adjustment disorders supported Dr. Ello's findings.

20 <sup>66</sup> See AR 521. Dr. Marks wrote that Plaintiff "may have difficulty if instructions become 21 complicated and multisteped," but he "should not have difficulty understanding problems with small step application in a routine setting." Id. The ALJ noted that Dr. Marks did not assess the specific domains in her report and accounted for this when assigning weight to her findings. See AR 38.

1 reflected “A’s and B’s.”<sup>70</sup> Further, Dr. Steiner was the only medical expert to review
2 the record in this case in its entirety.<sup>71</sup> Therefore, Dr. Steiner reviewed the testing 3 and issued his conclusion in light of all other evidence in the record.

4 The record also reflects Plaintiff’s “less than marked” ability to apply learning 5 in daily situations without assistance.<sup>72</sup> Plaintiff stated that he enjoys going to the 6 library and reading novels and comic books.<sup>73</sup> He is comfortable finding what he 7 needs at the library and asking for help when he cannot.<sup>74</sup> Further, Plaintiff stated 8 in the hearing that he could ride his bicycle around the neighborhood when it was 9 functional and believes he could use public transportation, although he stated he 10 generally goes places with his mother for fear of his safety.<sup>75</sup> Additionally, Plaintiff’s 11 mother admitted that Plaintiff has no problems understanding the rules of baseball 12 and is able to learn new things on a daily basis.<sup>76</sup>

13 Plaintiff’s remaining arguments lack merit. Plaintiff asserts that the ALJ 14 disregarded the Woodcock Johnson-III<sup>77</sup> test results demonstrating Plaintiff’s skills 15 in comparison to his age group, as well as the modifications he received in his IEP 16 program.<sup>78</sup> However, the ALJ specifically cited to the records containing the as being the “Woodcock-Johnson III” results earlier in the pleading and cites to the same page numbers. See, e.g., id. at 7. The Court accordingly assumes that Plaintiff is referring to those test results here.

1 Woodcock Johnson-III test results when assessing the six domains, including 2 acquiring and using information.<sup>79</sup> Additionally, the ALJ need not discuss all 3 evidence presented to her, only evidence that she is rejecting.<sup>80</sup> Here, the ALJ did 4 not reject the records.

5 Finally, the ALJ accounted for the assistance Plaintiff received in his IEP by 6 noting that he received “passing grades with the assistance of IEP (resource 7 room/class and tutoring).”<sup>81</sup> In sum, substantial evidence exists to support the ALJ’s 8 conclusion that Plaintiff has “less than marked” limitations in acquiring and using 9 information.

10 ii. Attending and Completing Tasks

11 In assessing this domain, the ALJ reviews how well Plaintiff is able to “focus 12 and maintain . . . attention, and . . . begin, carry through, and finish” activities.<sup>82</sup> An 13 adolescent should be capable of—among other things—paying attention to longer 14 presentations and discussions, maintain concentration when reading text books, and 15 maintain attention on tasks for extended periods of time.<sup>83</sup> A child who is limited in 16 this domain may be easily distracted, slow to focus on or complete activities of 17 interest to the child, get frustrated when giving up on tasks, or require extra 18 supervision.<sup>84</sup>

<sup>84</sup> See 20 C.F.R. § 416.926a(h)(3).

1 Substantial evidence exists to support the ALJ's finding that Plaintiff has 2 "less than marked" limitations in attending and completing tasks. Dr. Ello, who 3 treats Plaintiff for ADHD, remarked that Plaintiff has "less than marked" 4 limitations in attending and completing tasks.<sup>85</sup> Dr. Steiner also opined that Plaintiff 5 had "less than marked limitations," stating that Plaintiff exhibits good effort on tests 6 and takes medication that helps significantly with his focus.<sup>86</sup> Dr. Steiner also stated 7 Plaintiff's processing speed score in Dr. Marks' testing showed low-average 8 functioning in concentration, which Dr. Steiner opined indicated "less than marked" 9 limitations.<sup>87</sup>

10 Plaintiff's testimony also reflects an ability to concentrate on tasks of 11 interest.<sup>88</sup> Plaintiff enjoys watching videos and reading lifestyle blogs on the internet 12 and can do so for an extended period.<sup>89</sup> As stated previously, Plaintiff also enjoys 13 reading novels and comic books at the library.<sup>90</sup> He generally uses his study hour at 14 school appropriately by doing his homework, and states that he is rarely distracted 15 during that time.<sup>91</sup> Further, Plaintiff's school records show good concentration in his 16 courses, with one teacher remarking that "[Plaintiff] is an extremely hard worker 17 which accounts for his high grade. He simply does not settle for mediocre work."<sup>92</sup>

1 Plaintiff also stated that he was able to finish projects that he was interested 2 in, although he could become frustrated if he did not finish.<sup>93</sup> He testified that if he 3 became frustrated about not finishing a project, he would “normally just drop 4 everything and try to forget it” and “go back to it the next day.”<sup>94</sup> At home, Plaintiff 5 states that although his mother may have to remind him about some tasks, he is 6 good about regular grooming habits without needing reminders.<sup>95</sup> Substantial 7 evidence from medical expert opinions and Plaintiff’s testimony exist to support the 8 ALJ’s finding that Plaintiff has “less than marked” limitations in attending and 9 completing tasks.

10 B. The ALJ did not improperly reject the opinions provided by lay 11 witnesses Sonia Portales, Tina Gore, and Mary Straub Walden.

12 Teachers and family members are not acceptable medical sources.<sup>96</sup> They are 13 therefore considered “other” sources or “lay witnesses.” “Lay testimony as to a 14 claimant's symptoms or how an impairment affects the claimant's ability to work is 15 competent evidence that the ALJ must take into account.”<sup>97</sup> The ALJ may not 16 disregard competent lay witness testimony without comment and therefore must 17 give specific, germane reasons for disregarding the testimony.<sup>98</sup> Inconsistency with 18 medical evidence is a germane reason.<sup>99</sup> Further, an ALJ may accept parts of lay 19 witness testimony that he feels are “consistent with the record of [Plaintiff’s]

2 witness] testimony that do not meet this standard.”<sup>100</sup> The ALJ may also reject a lay 3 witness opinion that contains an internal conflict.<sup>101</sup>

4 i. Sonia Portales

5 The ALJ provided several germane reasons to assign little weight to Ms.
6 Portales’ testimony. The ALJ rejected her testimony because it was “not entirely 7 consistent with clinical observations of medical professionals,” and because it was 8 “out of proportion to medical source evidence, and the claimant’s own testimony.”<sup>102</sup>
9 Further, the ALJ reasoned that Plaintiff’s care providers and school professionals 10 “did not express concerns of the extent alleged.”<sup>103</sup> These inconsistencies are 11 germane reasons to reject lay witness testimony.<sup>104</sup>

12 The ALJ’s reasoning is supported by substantial evidence in the record. The 13 ALJ cited multiple instances where Ms. Portales’ testimony conflicted with the 14 evidence in the record, including Plaintiff’s own testimony and school records. For 15 example, the ALJ noted that Ms. Portales stated Plaintiff had limitations with his 16 ability to read and understand books and comic books, making new friends, and 17 generally get along well with adults.<sup>105</sup> However, Plaintiff testified that he enjoyed reasons for discounting Ms. Portales’ testimony. See AR 37. Accordingly, the ALJ’s statement that Ms. Portales was not a medical professional does not undermine the ALJ’s analysis.

3 and “Buddy Club,” which assists students with disabilities,<sup>108</sup> and is perceived as 4 polite and cooperative by adults.<sup>109</sup> Apart from these examples, the ALJ detailed 5 many other inconsistencies with Ms. Portales’ testimony throughout the ALJ’s 6 assessment of Plaintiff’s six domains.<sup>110</sup> Because the ALJ provided germane reasons 7 supported by substantial evidence, the ALJ appropriately discounted Ms. Portales’ 8 testimony.

9 ii. Tina Gore and Mary Straub Walden

10 The ALJ presented specific and germane reasons for affording little weight to 11 Ms. Gore’s and Ms. Walden’s testimony. The ALJ noted that Ms. Gore and 12 Ms. Walden’s assessments were more severe than Plaintiff’s objective test results by 13 Dr. Marks, “contradictory to his school records and IEP reports, and out of proportion 14 to the allegations of [Plaintiff] and his mother.”<sup>111</sup> All noted inconsistencies with the 15 record are germane reasons to reject lay witness testimony.<sup>112</sup>

16 Substantial evidence exists to support the ALJ’s reasons. Ms. Gore and 17 Ms. Walden opined that Plaintiff had “extreme” and “marked” limitations 18 respectively in acquiring and using information and attending and completing 1 tasks.<sup>113</sup> However, as analyzed supra, substantial evidence existed to support the 2 ALJ's finding that Plaintiff had "less than marked" limitations in these areas.

3 Accordingly, the ALJ did not err in rejecting Ms. Gore and Ms. Walden's testimony.

4 C. The ALJ properly rejected the opinions of Nancy Winfrey, Ph.D. and 5 state agency psychological consultants.

6 i. Dr. Winfrey

7 The ALJ properly discounted the opinion of consulting clinical psychologist 8 Dr. Winfrey. A treating or examining physician is generally afforded greater 9 deference than a non-treating and non-examining physician.<sup>114</sup> Further, "[t]he 10 Commissioner may reject the opinion of a non-examining physician by reference to 11 specific evidence in the medical record."<sup>115</sup>

12 Dr. Winfrey was neither a treating nor examining physician, therefore her 13 opinion is not entitled to great deference.<sup>116</sup> Additionally, the ALJ referred to specific 14 evidence in the medical record to reject Dr. Winfrey's opinion.<sup>117</sup> The ALJ stated that 15 Dr. Winfrey's opinion that Plaintiff had "marked" limitations in acquiring and using 16 information was "not supported by the objective testing" conducted by Dr. Marks.<sup>118</sup>
17 In so doing, the ALJ specifically cited Dr. Marks' testing within the record.<sup>119</sup>

1 Finally, “an ALJ need not accept the opinion of a doctor if that opinion is brief, 2 conclusory, and inadequately supported by clinical findings.”<sup>120</sup> Dr. Winfrey’s 3 allegation that Plaintiff may have “undiagnosed dyslexia and/or borderline verbal 4 functioning” did not contain any supporting facts or analysis.<sup>121</sup> The ALJ therefore 5 properly rejected this portion of Dr. Winfrey’s testimony.<sup>122</sup>

6 ii. State Agency Psychological Consultants

7 State agency medical and psychological consultants are “highly qualified 8 medical sources who are also experts in the evaluation of medical issues in disability 9 claims under the Act.”<sup>123</sup> ALJs must consider their opinions and “articulate how they 10 considered them in the decision.”<sup>124</sup> To reject the opinion of a non-examining 11 physician, the ALJ must refer to “specific evidence in the medical record.”<sup>125</sup> 12 However, the ALJ need not repeat the specific evidence in multiple parts of the 13 opinion, so long as “the agency’s path [of analysis] may reasonably be discerned.”<sup>126</sup>

18 <sup>122</sup> Plaintiff asserts that the ALJ failed to consider Woodcock-Johnson III test results when 19 discounting Dr. Winfrey’s opinion that Plaintiff had “marked” limitations in acquiring and using 20 information, seemingly alleging they are at odds with Dr. Marks’ testing. See ECF No. 11 at 14– 21 15. However, Dr. Steiner testified that the “other tests in the record” that assessed “areas of concentration and intelligence” were consistent with the “less-than-marked” results of Dr. Marks’ objective testing. AR 94–95. And, as discussed supra, the ALJ cited the records containing these tests when assessing Plaintiff’s functioning in the six domains. See, e.g., AR 39, 40, 43. Further, “in interpreting the evidence and developing the record, an ALJ does not need to discuss every piece of evidence.” Howard v. Barnhart, 341 F.3d 1006, 1012 (9th Cir. 2003) (citations and internal quotations omitted). Accordingly, the ALJ did not improperly disregard the Woodcock-Johnson III testing when assigning little weight to Dr. Winfrey’s opinion.

1 The ALJ referred to specific evidence in the medical record to discount the 2 opinions of the state agency consultants. The ALJ noted that the consultants' 3 determinations were completed in 2014, and that "[a]dditional evidence received in 4 the course of developing this case for review justifies different conclusions" than 5 provided by the consultants.<sup>127</sup> Although the ALJ did not specify the "additional 6 evidence" within the same paragraph, the Court may easily discern from the ALJ's 7 decision the evidence upon which she relied.<sup>128</sup> For example, the objective medical 8 testing by Dr. Marks was completed in June 2016,<sup>129</sup> treating physician Dr. Ello's
9 assessment was taken in April 2016,<sup>130</sup> and Plaintiff's transcript in 2015 and 2016 10 reflected passing grades, including A's and B's.<sup>131</sup> As the ALJ specifically noted in 11 her decision and as discussed supra, these pieces of evidence and Dr. Steiner's 12 interpretations all conflicted with the consultants' conclusions that Plaintiff had 13 "marked" limitations in his ability to acquire and use information.<sup>132</sup> Because the 14 ALJ specified reasons supported by substantial evidence, the ALJ did not err in 15 rejecting the state agency consultants' opinions.

16 iii. Harmless Error

17 As the Commissioner notes, even if the ALJ did err in assigning weight to 18 Dr. Winfrey or the consultants, the error would have been harmless. "ALJ errors in 19 social security cases are harmless if they are inconsequential to the ultimate

1 nondisability determination[.]”<sup>133</sup> Even if the ALJ had assigned significant weight to 2 the opinions of Dr. Winfrey and the state agency doctors, the opinions would not 3 have changed the ALJ’s conclusion of non-disability. To find a child disabled the ALJ 4 must find the child has “marked” limitations in two domains or “extreme” limitation 5 in one.<sup>134</sup> The opinions by Dr. Winfrey and the state agency physicians only afforded 6 Plaintiff “marked” limitation in one domain—acquiring and using information—and 7 no “extreme” limitations. <sup>135</sup> Thus, even if the ALJ had afforded great weight to the 8 opinions, the opinions would not have warranted a finding of disabled.<sup>136</sup> Any error 9 in the ALJ’s assignment of weight for Dr. Winfrey and the state agency consultants 10 is therefore harmless.

11 VI. CONCLUSION

12 Having reviewed the ALJ’s findings and the record as a whole, the Court 13 concludes that the ALJ did not err in determining that Plaintiff’s impairments did 14 not equal a listing, rejecting lay witness testimony, or rejecting non-treating and 15 non-examining consultant testimony.

16 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

17 1. Plaintiff’s Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 11, is DENIED.

testimony from the teachers combined with the state agency opinions and interrogatories from Dr. Winfrey would have supported a finding of disabled. Id. However, as analyzed supra, the ALJ properly discounted the opinions of Plaintiff’s teachers, who were the only witnesses that indicated a “marked” limitation in a domain other than acquiring and using information.
