2 Declaration of Larry G. Johnson, the Declaration of Brett Shavers and the Declaration
3 of Cheryl R. G. Adamson, filed herewith.

4 FACTUAL SUMMARY

5 On or about September 13, 2006, plaintiff Omni Innovations, LLC (Omni), 6 filed suit against defendants Insurance Only, Inc., Michael Wedeking and Patrick 7 Wedeking (collectively referred to as "Insurance Only") for alleged violations of the 8 CAN-SPAM Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7701, et seq., the Washington Commercial Electronic 9 Mail Act, RCW 19.190.010, et seq., and the Washington Consumer Protection Act, 10 RCW 19.86, et seq. Specifically, the Complaint alleges that from August 2003<sup>1</sup> 11 through May 2006, Insurance Only initiated the transmission of e-mails, or conspired 12 with others to transmit e-mails, that violated the above-referenced statutes because 13 they misrepresented or obscured information in identifying the point or origin or the 14 transmission path, or contained header information that was materially false or 15 misleading. The parties exchanged initial disclosures, and since then, the matter has 16 essentially been "on hold." Very little discovery has taken place. Now, Omni has 17 filed a motion for partial summary judgment, seeking a permanent injunction against 18 Insurance Only.
19

20 Somewhat amazingly, Omni claims that the material facts are not in dispute.
21 Nothing could be further from the truth. Indeed, all material facts are in dispute, and 22 of course, Omni bears the burden of proof on each and every fact necessary to support 23

24 <sup>1</sup>According to the Complaint, Omni did not allegedly become an "Internet access provider," the 25 alleged basis for federal court jurisdiction, until May of 2005.

1 its claim.

2 Omni erroneously states that, "It is indisputable that Plaintiffs Omni 3 Innovations LLC and James S. Gordon Jr. (hereafter collectively "Gordon") have 4 received numerous commercial electronic mail messages (hereinafter "spam") 5 transmitted by, or on behalf of Defendants." See Plaintiffs' Motion for Partial 6 Summary Judgment for Injunctive Relief, p. 2. Initially, it should be noted that James 7 S. Gordon, Jr., is not a plaintiff in this lawsuit; rather, only Omni is a plaintiff. This 8 mistake occurs because Omni and/or Gordon have filed numerous "spam" cases in 9 Washington state and federal courts, and several nearly identical motions for partial 10 summary judgment against various defendants in those cases. Some of those motions 11 are in cases with claims by both Omni and Gordon. See, e.g., Omni v. Inviva, Inc., 12 United States District Court for the Western District of Washington, Seattle, Cause 13 No. CV-06-1537-JCC, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 2 to the Declaration of 14 Cheryl R. G. Adamson.

15
16 In any event, Insurance Only disputes that it sent commercial electronic mail 17 messages to Omni (more specifically, e-mail addresses serviced by Omni), let alone 18 illegal e-mail messages (Omni's briefing would lead one to believe that all 19 commercial e-mail messages are illegal, which is not true). Insurance Only further 20 disputes that it procured the sending of any such e-mail messages to Omni. Further, 21 Insurance Only disputes that it sent or caused to be sent any e-mails that were in 22 violation of federal or state law. More specific to the instant motion, Insurance Only 23 denies that it has sent commercial e-mail advertisement messages to any individual 24 or entity, let alone to Omni-related mailboxes, for approximately one year. See 1 Declaration of Michael Wedeking.

2 Omni's motion also states that Gordon repeatedly requested Insurance Only 3 stop sending spam to him by a variety of means, including use of "opt-out" 4 mechanisms, and that despite this, Insurance Only "continued to send Gordon spam."
5 Again, Gordon is not a plaintiff in this action; Omni is the sole plaintiff. Further, 6 Insurance Only denies receiving such communications from Gordon. Omni does not 7 allege that it used opt-out mechanisms or otherwise advised Insurance Only to cease 8 sending commercial e-mails. Moreover, Insurance Only only disputes that it sent 9 illegal e-mails to Omni or that Omni corresponded in any manner with Insurance 10 Only. See Declaration of Michael Wedeking.

11 The Declaration of James S. Gordon, Jr., filed in support of Omni's motion is 12 similarly problematic. Gordon complains about volumes of spam from countless 13 spammers, but very little about Insurance Only. Although Gordon asserts that 14 Insurance Only has continued to send "unlawful spam" to him, that is a factual issue 15 that is disputed by Insurance Only. Moreover, the sample e-mails attached as Exhibit 16 "B" to the Gordon declaration, and upon which Omni relies as evidence of 17 "continuing" e-mails by Insurance Only, were not sent by or at the direction of 18 Insurance Only. Indeed, those e-mails advertise health insurance products, and 19 Insurance Only does not advertise health insurance. Insurance Only has marketed life 20 insurance products. See Declaration of Michael Wedeking. None of the e-mails in 21 Exhibit B can be traced to Insurance Only. See Declaration of Larry G. Johnson.
22 Insurance Only does not own, nor does it have any economic affiliation with 23 gapgol.com or QuoteInAMinute.com. See Declaration of Michael Wedeking. Omni

1 has not presented, nor can it present, any e-mails that were sent by Insurance Only, 2 let alone illegal e-mails. All of the other e-mails attached to Omni's motion are from 3 the years 2003 and 2004; yet, Omni does not allege it became an Internet access 4 provider until May of 2005. Thus, any e-mails that predate May of 2005 are 5 irrelevant to the CAN-SPAM Act claim.

6 In its initial disclosures, Omni produced a disk allegedly containing illegal e-7 mails either sent by, or "procured" by, Insurance Only. The disk contained many 8 thousands of e-mails, the vast majority of which were clearly not associated with 9 Insurance Only or the life insurance industry. In fact, the disk contained many 10 obviously unrelated e-mails, including advertisements for erectile dysfunction drugs, 11 electronics, travel services, and the like. See Declaration of Michael Wedeking.
12 Omni has refused requests that it cull the e-mails and provide only those that it truly 13 believes were sent by Insurance Only. Instead, Omni's pattern is to send volumes of 14 e-mails and leave it to the defendants to sort through each and every one of them. See 15 Declaration of Cheryl R. G. Adamson.

16 Insurance Only has reviewed a large sampling of the e-mails contained on the 17 CD, it taking too long to review all of them, that Omni claims were illegal and sent 18 by Insurance Only. This review revealed that none of the e-mails were sent by 19 Insurance Only. Additionally, Insurance Only has retained two expert witnesses to 20 assist in defending the claim. Both of these computer forensic experts opine that the 21 e-mails produced by Omni cannot be traced back to Insurance Only, and Omni has 22 not even provided reliable evidence to the Court. See Declaration of Larry G.
23 Johnson; Declaration of Brett Shavers.

1 ARGUMENT

2 A. Summary Judgment Standard.

3 A moving party is entitled to summary judgment only when there is no genuine 4 issue as to any material fact, and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter 5 of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). If the opposing party is unable, due to reasons such as 6 additional discovery needing to be conducted, to present by affidavit facts essential 7 to justify the party's opposition to the summary judgment motion, the court may 8 refuse the application for judgment or may order a continuance of the motion to 9 permit affidavits to be obtained or depositions to be taken or discovery to be had or 10 any such order as it deems just. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(f). A material fact is one upon 11 which the outcome of the litigation depends, at least in part. Morris v. McNicol, 83 12 Wash. 2d 491, 494, 519 P.2d 7 (1974).

13 In evaluating a motion for summary judgment, a court must resolve all 14 reasonable inferences against the moving party, and in favor of the non-moving party.
15 Addisu v. Fred Meyer, Inc., 198 F.3d 1130, 1134 (9th Cir. 2000) (“[r]easonable doubts 16 as to the existence of [a] material factual issue are resolved against the moving parties 17 and inferences are drawn in the light most favorable to the non-moving party”). All 18 facts are to be viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Atlantic

1 Richfield Co. v. USA Petroleum Co., 495 U.S. 328, 332 n.2, 110 S.Ct. 1884 (1990)
2 (“Because the case comes to us on review of summary judgment, ‘inferences to be 3 drawn from the fact . . . must be viewed in the light most favorable to the party 4 opposing the motion.’”). As will be shown below, Omni is not entitled to an order 5 of partial summary judgment.

8 B. Omni Is Not Entitled to Injunctive Relief.

10 Omni’s sole basis for its motion for a permanent injunction is the provision in 11 the CAN-SPAM Act against sending an “Internet access provider” commercial e-12 mails more than ten (10) days after the Internet access provider has properly 13 requested no such additional e-mails be sent. Specifically, Omni claims that it is 14 entitled to a permanent injunction pursuant to the following provision: 15

16 A provider of Internet access service adversely affected by a violation 17 of section 7704(a)(1) of this title, 7704(b) of this title, or 7704(d) of this 18 title, or a pattern or practice that violates paragraph (2), (3), (4), or (5) 19 of section 7704(a) of this title, may bring a civil action in any district 20 court of the United States with jurisdiction over the defendant --

21 (A) to enjoin further violation by the defendant; or 22 (B) to recover damages in an amount equal to the greater of --

23 (i) actual monetary loss incurred by the provider of Internet 24 access service as a result of such violation; or 25

1 (ii) the amount determined under paragraph (3).

2 15 U.S.C. § 7706(g)(1) (underline added). Not all commercial e-mails are illegal.

4 Indeed, the law sets forth the requirements of acceptable e-mail messages, as well as 5 the prohibitions:

7 (a) Requirements for transmission of messages. (1) Prohibition of 8 false or misleading transmission information. It is unlawful for any 9 person to initiate the transmission to a protected computer of a 10 commercial electronic mail message, or a transactional or relationship 11 message, that contains, or is accompanied by, header information that is 12 materially false or materially misleading. For purposes of this 13 paragraph—

14 (A) header information that is technically accurate but includes an 15 originating electronic e-mail address, domain name, or Internet 16 Protocol address the access to which for purposes of initiating the 17 message was obtained by means of false or fraudulent pretenses or 18 representations shall be considered materially misleading;

19 (B) a “from” line (the line identifying or purporting to identify a 20 person initiating the message) that accurately identifies any person 21 who initiated the message shall not be considered materially false or 22 materially misleading; and 23 (C) header information shall be considered materially misleading if 24 it fails to identify accurately a protected computer used to initiate 25 the message because the person initiating the message knowingly 26 uses another protected computer to relay or retransmit the message 27 for purposes of disguising its origin.

1 (3) Including of return address or comparable mechanism in 2 commercial electronic mail. (A) In general. It is unlawful for 3 any person to initiate the transmission to a protected computer 4 of a commercial electronic mail message that does not contain 5 a functioning return electronic mail address or other Internet-based mechanism, clearly and conspicuously displayed that –

6 (i) a recipient may use to submit, in a manner specified in 7 the message, a reply electronic mail message or other 8 form of Internet-based communication requesting not to 9 receive future commercial electronic mail messages from 10 that sender at the electronic mail address where the message was received; and 11 (ii) remains capable of receiving such messages or 12 communications for no less than 30 days after the 13 transmission of the original message.

14 (4) Prohibition of transmission of commercial electronic mail 15 after objection. (A) In general. If a recipient makes a request 16 using a mechanism provided pursuant to paragraph (3) not to 17 receive some or any commercial electronic mail messages from such sender, then it is unlawful –

18 (i) for the sender to initiate the transmission to the 19 recipient, more than 10 business days after the receipt of 20 such request, or a commercial electronic mail message that falls within the scope of the request; . . . .

21 15 U.S.C. § 7704.

22 The CAN-SPAM Act is designed to be enforced by government entities. A 23 limited private right of action is given to Internet access providers only. 15 U.S.C.
24

1 § 7706. Here, Omni relies specifically on a violation of § 7704(a)(4), based on an 2 alleged pattern or practice by Insurance Only to continue sending electronic mail 3 messages to Omni despite repeated requests that such messages not be sent.

5 Initially, it should be noted that a legitimate question exists as to whether Omni 6 has standing to bring claims under the CAN-SPAM Act. Specifically, a federal 7 district court for the Western District of Washington recently ruled that Omni does 8 not have standing to bring a claim under the CAN-SPAM Act, and dismissed a 9 remarkably similar case to the case at bar. The court's ruling was based on the 10 conclusions that Omni may not meet the definition of an Internet access provider, and 11 Omni has not suffered the requisite harm, or "adverse effect," to pursue a private 12 action under the CAN-SPAM Act. See, Order in Gordon v. Virtumundo, Inc., et al., 13 United States District Court Western District of Washington at Seattle, Case No. 06-14 0204-JCC, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 1 to the Declaration of Cheryl 15 Adamson, p.13. Insurance Only believes that Judge Coughenour's decision in 16 Gordon v. Virtumundo operates as collateral estoppel on the same issue in this case, 17 and Insurance Only intends to move to dismiss the claims by Omni on the same bases 18 as those decided by Judge Coughenour.
19
21
22
23
24

25 Additionally, even if Omni has standing to sue under the CAN-SPAM Act,

1 Omni has not proved, nor can Omni prove, that Insurance Only has violated the Act.
3 Omni's unsupported assertions to that effect do not prove the facts asserted.

4 Noticeably absent from Omni's motion is any discussion regarding the legal 5 standards for issuance of a permanent injunction. This is likely because Omni knows 6 that it cannot meet the stringent standards for a permanent injunction. Instead, Omni 7 wants to leap over the requirement that it prove its case by simply stating that the 8 facts are as Omni wishes the facts to be. Moreover, Omni employs the misleading 9 argument that if Insurance Only does not intend to send commercial e-mails to Omni, 10 it will simply agree to permanent injunction. Omni's inability and unwillingness to 11 prove its case should not be condoned. Moreover, Insurance Only should not have 12 to incur the time and expense of being motioned into court by Omni every time it 13 asserts an e-mail was received in violation of an injunction, all before Omni has 14 proved a single element of its case.

15 To obtain a permanent injunction, a party must prove four factors: "(1) that it 16 has suffered an irreparable injury; (2) that remedies available at law, such as monetary 17 damages, are inadequate to compensate for that injury; (3) that, considering the 18 balance of hardships between the plaintiff and defendant, a remedy in equity is 19 warranted; and (4) that the public interest would not be disserved by a permanent

1 injunction.” See, e.g., eBay Inc. v. MercExchange, L.L.C., 126 S.Ct. 1837, 1839 2 (2006). Further, whether to grant or deny permanent injunctive relief is within the 3 equitable discretion of the district court. Id. To qualify for permanent injunctive 4 relief, a plaintiff must establish actual success on the merits, that they will sustain 5 irreparable injury and that remedies at law are inadequate, and that the balance of 6 equities favors injunctive relief. Thus, a plaintiff must actually prove its own case as 7 well as the circumstances that entitle it to injunctive relief as opposed to other legal 8 remedies. Walters v. Reno, 145 F.3d 1032, 1048, (9th Cir. 1998).

10 11
12 Omni points to America Online, Inc. v. Smith, 2006 WL 181674 (E.D.Va.
13 2006), an unpublished decision, as support for its entitlement to permanent injunctive 14 relief. What Omni fails to tell the Court, however, is that the plaintiff in America 15 Online had established “success on the merits” via court order following the 16 defendant’s refusal to participate in the case. Specifically, the America Online court 17 noted that, “Defendants refused to participate in this case, willfully disregarding their 18 discovery obligations and failing to comply with multiple court orders. As a result 19 of Defendants’ failure to participate in discovery and their refusal to obey court 20 orders, on September 2, 2005, this Court granted Plaintiff’s Motion for Terminating 21 Sanctions, ordering that Defendants shall not oppose any claim or introduce evidence

1 and striking the affirmative defenses.” Id. Thus, there could be no genuine issue of 2 material fact regarding liability because the court had directed liability against the 3 defendant based on defendant’s misconduct. The court did not impose a permanent 4 injunction before the plaintiff proved its case, which is exactly what Omni is asking 5 this Court to do now.

8 In addition to Omni not proving success on the merits, it has not established 9 irreparable harm and the inadequacy of monetary damages. Indeed, Omni’s 10 Complaint seeks statutory damages, not actual damages. Moreover, the Gordon v.
11 Virtumundo court, evaluating Omni’s claim and evidence over the same period of 12 time, found that Omni had not established adverse effect, let alone irreparable harm.
13 In fact, Gordon testified in the Virtumundo case that he keeps e-mail accounts active 14 to retain the benefits of receiving spam for “research” and obtaining financial 15 settlements from alleged spammers. Indeed, all of Omni’s and Gordon’s income or 16 revenue for the years 2006 and 2007 has been from spam settlements. See 17 Declaration of Cheryl R.G. Adamson, Exhibit 1, pp. 7-8.
18
19 20
21

22 Further, there are numerous issues of fact underlying Omni’s motion, and 23 precluding the granting of such motion, including but not limited to the following: 24 (1) whether Insurance Only sent any electronic mail messages to Omni; (2) whether 25

1 Insurance Only procured the sending of electronic mail messages to Omni; (3) 2 whether such e-mails, if any, violated the law; (4) whether Omni properly asked 3 Insurance Only not to send it electronic mail messages, yet Insurance Only engaged 4 in a pattern or practice of ignoring such request(s); (5) whether Omni can establish 5 sufficient damages or harm, and the like.

8 The type of evidence, both documentary and testimonial, that would be 9 required to determine whether Insurance Only sent, or procured, any illegal e-mails 10 to Omni-related addresses, is not before this Court. Because e-mail headers, subject 11 lines and text can be forged or altered, and because “zombie” computers can be used, 12 capturing the server logs from both sender and receiver, and tracing each e-mail along 13 its route or transmission path, is required to prove the e-mail’s origin, and that it was 14 not altered. See Declaration of Brett Shavers; Declaration of Larry G. Johnson.
15 16 Indeed, the e-mail messages produced by Omni in this case are not originals, have 17 been altered and are missing content. Omni has not provided evidence proving that 18 any illegal e-mails were sent, or procured, by Insurance Only. See Declaration of 19 Larry G. Johnson; Declaration of Michael Wedeking.
20
21
22

23 CONCLUSION
24

25 For the reasons set forth above, this Court should deny Omni’s motion for 1 partial summary judgment for injunctive relief.
