I. INTRODUCTION

This case is best suited for a small claims court because the potential damages most likely will amount to less than a hundred dollars. Unfortunately for this Court, small claims courts do not have subject matter jurisdiction over patent cases and rather than attempt to avoid litigation by sending a simple letter explaining the situation, Plaintiff High Maintenance Bitch filed suit against Defendant Uptown Dog Club, Inc. ("Uptown Dog"), a home-based Texas company, for its involvement in the sale of undisclosed products that allegedly infringe one or more of High Maintenance Bitch's design patents.¹

Because High Maintenance Bitch never communicated with Uptown Dog and the Complaint fails to identify any accused products, Uptown Dog is unclear on which items are actually accused of infringement. Uptown Dog attempted to gather such information from High Maintenance Bitch, but High Maintenance Bitch has refused to identify the allegedly infringing products.² More importantly, High Maintenance Bitch does not allege that Uptown Dog committed any specific acts in Washington, directed any specific acts towards Washington, or that Uptown Dog has any places of business or agents in Washington.³ It appears that High Maintenance Bitch's assertion of personal jurisdiction over Uptown Dog is based on nothing more than the fact that High Maintenance Bitch itself is located here. But it is clear from the case law that this is not sufficient.

Given Uptown Dog's lack of contacts with Washington, the assertion of personal jurisdiction against Uptown Dog does not satisfy constitutionally guaranteed due-process

² From newspaper articles, it appears that High Maintenance Bitch is alleging that Uptown Dog's sale of its feather boa is infringing its patents. See Dallas Business Journal, June 29, 2007, "Local Pet Supply Store Sues To Protect Feather Boa," attached as Exhibit 1 to the concurrently filed Declaration of Steven P. Fricke ("Fricke Decl."). Assuming that is correct, Uptown Dog delivered a total of 22 feather boa dog collars. The retail cost of the boa dog collars is between $12.49 and $16.99 depending on the size of the collar. In an abundance of caution, Uptown Dog has ceased selling these boa dog collars since the filing of this lawsuit. Woody Decl." at ¶19.

1 requirements. Accordingly, the Court should dismiss this suit with prejudice. Thus, in lieu of 2 filing an answer to the Complaint, Uptown Dog seeks dismissal for lack of personal
 3 jurisdiction pursuant to CR 12(b)(2). Because no basis for personal jurisdiction over Uptown
 4 Dog has been established, Uptown Dog's appearance through counsel in this Court is solely to 5 challenge jurisdiction and is not a consent to jurisdiction in this Court.

6 Alternatively, Uptown Dog requests that this case be transferred to Texas and that High
 7 Maintenance Bitch specifically identify the products that are actually accused of infringement
 8 to allow Uptown Dog to prepare its defense in this frivolous matter.

9 II. BACKGROUND

10 A. This Case Does Not Involve Activities Directed Towards Washington State.

11 1. High Maintenance Bitch is business with national aspirations.

12 Plaintiff High Maintenance Bitch is a Washington State limited liability company with 13 its current principal place of business in Seattle, Washington.⁴ According to its web site and 14 news articles, High Maintenance Bitch sells high-end pet products. High Maintenance Bitch's
 15 goal is to keep people's pets looking as beautiful and confident as their owners⁵ and to grow
 16 around the country over the next three years. High Maintenance Bitch decided to file this 17 lawsuit and two similar lawsuits because High Maintenance Bitch's growth has given it the 18 resources to do so.⁶

19 2. Uptown Dog has no contacts with Washington and is operated out of a 20 Texas home.

21 Uptown Dog is a small-time seller of pet products. It is owned and operated by the 22 mother/daughter team of Lisa Woody and Elaine Bennett. Uptown Dog operates from 23 Ms. Bennett's Texas home and has two part-time employees, who also reside in Texas.

24
 25 ⁴ See Complaint 1.

26 ⁵ See High Maintenance Bitch web site, copy attached as Exhibit 2 to Fricke Decl..

27 ⁶ See Exhibit 1 to Fricke Decl.

1 Uptown Dog does not manufacture any of its own products but only sells products supplied to 2 it by other non-parties, which also do not reside in Washington.⁷

3 Uptown Dog has never had or designated an authorized agent or representative in 4 Washington for service of process or otherwise. Uptown Dog has never owned, possessed, 5 controlled, leased, maintained, or operated any office, residence or business of any kind in 6 Washington. Uptown Dog has never maintained any bank or savings and loan accounts in 7 Washington. Uptown Dog's representatives have never traveled to Washington. Uptown Dog 8 has never directed advertising specifically toward residents or companies located in 9 Washington, nor has it ever advertised in any publication directed primarily toward 10 Washington. Uptown Dog does not pay taxes to the State of Washington, does not maintain 11 any address or possess any real estate in Washington, does not maintain a telephone number in 12 Washington, and does not manufacture a product in Washington.⁸

13 Simply put, Uptown Dog does not have any significant contacts with the State of 14 Washington.

15 B. The Complaint is silent on facts regarding personal jurisdiction and which 16 products are accused of infringement.

17 Until the filing of the lawsuit, Uptown Dog had no contact with High Maintenance
18 Bitch and was caught completely off-guard by the filing of the Complaint, which is missing
19 several key facts regarding personal jurisdiction.⁹ Other than correctly alleging that Uptown
20 Dog "is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Texas, with its principal place 21 of business at 9188 Chivalry Court, Frisco, Texas, 75034," the Complaint contains no further 22 statement regarding Uptown Dog's location of business or activities that would give rise to 23 personal jurisdiction.

24 _____
25 ⁷ Woody Decl. at ¶4.

26 ⁸ Woody Decl. at ¶¶5-11.

27 ⁹ Woody Decl. at ¶18.

1 In attempt to resolve this matter, through their respective counsels, Uptown Dog
2 contacted High Maintenance Bitch to inform them that Uptown Dog has not sold very many 3 dog collars and, more importantly, to determine which products are accused of infringement.
4 High Maintenance Bitch flatly refused to provide such basic information, stating that "[it does 5 not] believe it is appropriate to provide [Uptown Dog] with model numbers or anything else"
6 and that Uptown Dog will have to wait until discovery process to learn this most basic 7 information.¹⁰ Apparently this type of gamesmanship (i.e., forcing defendants to guess which 8 products are accused of infringement) is all part of High Maintenance Bitch's aggressive
9 approach of prosecuting its cases against a home based Texas company that cannot afford to 10 litigate this action in a distant forum.¹¹

11 III. ARGUMENT

12 A. High Maintenance Bitch Bears the Burden of Proving Personal Jurisdiction

13 By filing a motion to dismiss pursuant to CR 12(b)(2), supported by sworn testimony, a 14 defendant places the sufficiency of the plaintiff's pleading in question, and thus shifts to the 15 plaintiff the burden of proving facts demonstrating the existence of personal jurisdiction.¹²
16 But as discussed fully below, High Maintenance Bitch's Complaint fails on its face to assert 17 any allegation that could serve as the basis for a Washington court's exercise of personal 18 jurisdiction over Uptown Dog.

19 In fact, because it is void of any facts that can connect Uptown Dog and Washington,
20 the Court has only one option: dismiss this case with prejudice.¹³

21
22 ¹⁰ See Exhibit 3 to the Fricke Decl. (email string between Steven P. Fricke and Danny Bronski).

23 ¹¹ See Exhibit 1 to the Fricke Decl. ("We've decided to take a very aggressive approach to defending our 24 intellectual property," said Lori Pacchiano).

25 ¹² Electronics For Imaging, Inc., v. Coyle, 340 F.3d 1344, 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2003).

26 ¹³ See Snyder v. Pinal, C.A. No. 02-124-GMS (D. Del. 2002) (court dismissed plaintiff's case because the 27 complaint did assert any connection between the defendant and the forum state) attached as Exhibit 4 to Fricke Decl.

B. High Maintenance Bitch's Jurisdictional Claims Does Not Satisfy Either Washington's Long-Arm Statute or the United States Constitution

The determination of whether the Court can exercise personal jurisdiction over an out-of-forum party is controlled by a two-part inquiry: (1) whether jurisdiction is permitted by the forum state's long-arm statute; and (2) whether jurisdiction is consistent with the out-of-forum defendant's right to Constitutional Due Process.¹⁴

1. Washington's Long-Arm Statute Does Not Confer Personal Jurisdiction.

Here, the relevant portion of Washington's long-arm statute, identifying acts that may subject an out-of-forum defendant to jurisdiction, reads as follows:

4.28.185. Personal service out of state--Acts submitting person to jurisdiction of courts--Saving

(1) Any person, whether or not a citizen or resident of this state, who in person or through an agent does any of the acts in this section enumerated, thereby submits said person, and, if an individual, his personal representative, to the jurisdiction of the courts of this state as to any cause of action arising from the doing of any of said acts:

(a) The transaction of any business within this state;

...¹⁵

Washington State's long-arm statute extends to limits of federal due process and is coextensive with outer limits of due process. Thus, in determining whether personal jurisdictions can be exercised over a nonresident defendant, the Court is required only to analyze whether such exercise would comport with due process.¹⁶ Thus, in this case, the two step inquiry folds into one: whether exercise of personal jurisdiction as to Uptown Dog violates its Constitutional Due Process protections.

¹⁴ International Shoe v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310, 316, 66 S.Ct. 154, 158, 90 L.Ed. 95 (1945).

¹⁵ RCW § 4.28.185 (1996).

¹⁶ Chan v. Society Expeditions, Inc., 39 F.3d 1398 (9th Cir. 1994), cert. denied, 115 S.Ct. 1314, 514 U.S. 1004, 131 L.Ed.2d 196 (1995).

1 2. Constitutional Due Process Prevents Personal Jurisdiction.

2 Federal Circuit law governs the personal jurisdiction analysis in patent cases.¹⁷ There
 3 are two kinds of personal jurisdiction—specific and general. "Specific jurisdiction 'arises out
 4 of' or 'relates to' the cause of action even if those contacts are 'isolated and sporadic.' . . .
 5 General jurisdiction arises when a defendant maintains 'continuous and systematic' contacts
 6 with the forum state even when the cause of action has no relation to those contacts."¹⁸ Only 7 when the requirements for general or specific jurisdiction are met, can a court exercise
 8 personal jurisdiction over an out-of-forum defendant.

9 a. General Jurisdiction does not exist over Uptown Dog.

10 While specific jurisdiction, discussed below, refers to jurisdiction over a cause of 11 action arising from or relate to a defendant's contacts with the forum state, general jurisdiction 12 refers to the ability of a court to maintain jurisdiction based on defendant's contacts that are 13 unrelated to the cause of action. Because general jurisdiction is based upon "unrelated"
 14 activities, its subject to a more stringent minimum contacts test, requiring "substantial" or 15 "continuous and systematic business contacts."¹⁹

16 High Maintenance Bitch does not assert general jurisdiction in this case. There are no 17 allegation that Uptown Dog has continuous and systematic contacts with Washington, even if 18 those contacts are not related to the cause of action.²⁰

19 In any event, in examining the propriety of general jurisdiction, courts look for a direct 20 permanent physical relation to the forum.²¹ For example, courts often inquire into whether the

1 defendant maintains offices, facilities, bank accounts, real estate, telephone numbers or postal
 2 addresses with the forum.²² Here, Uptown Dog has no offices, facilities, bank accounts, real
 3 estate, telephone number or postal address in Washington.²³ Moreover, Uptown Dog does not 4 any engage in any significant business in the state of Washington.²⁴ Thus, Uptown Dog has 5 not maintained "substantial" or "continuous and systematic" business contacts with the State of 6 Washington. Uptown Dog lacks the necessary contact with Washington to establish general
 7 jurisdiction.²⁵

8 b. Specific Jurisdiction does not exist over Uptown Dog.

9 General jurisdiction aside, the Court must next examine whether there is specific 10 jurisdiction over Uptown Dog. In determining whether Constitutional Due Process has been 11 satisfied, the nonresident must have "minimum contacts" with the forum state "such that [it]
 12 should reasonably anticipate being hauled into court there."²⁶ Whether minimum contacts 13 with the forum exist is determined by examining whether the defendant has "purposefully 14 availed" itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum, "thus invoking the 15 benefits and protections of its laws."²⁷ The "purposeful availment" requirement is not 16 satisfied by allegation of "random, fortuitous, or attenuated contacts, or of the unilateral
 17 activity of another person."²⁸ Rather, a court can exercise "specific jurisdiction" over a

1 defendant only when the factual basis for the complaint "arises out of or relates to the forum"
2 and "creates as substantial connection with the forum."²⁹

3 Even where the plaintiff demonstrates that a defendant possesses the required
4 minimum contacts with the forum, Constitutional Due Process requires the plaintiff to 5 demonstrate that the exercise of jurisdiction over the defendant does not offend "traditional 6 notions of fair play and substantial justice."³⁰

7 The Federal Circuit has outlined a three-prong test for determining if specific 8 jurisdiction exists whether:

- 9 (1) the defendant purposefully directed its activities at the residents of the 10 forum;
11 (2) the claim arises out of or is related to those activities; and 12 (3) assertion of personal jurisdiction is reasonable and fair.³¹

13 C. Uptown Dog Has Not Purposefully Directed Activities at the State of Washington

14 "To satisfy the first factor, the plaintiff must establish that the nonresident defendant
15 'purposefully availed itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum state, 16 thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws.' The focus of the inquiry is on the 17 defendant's activities in the forum. The sufficiency of the contacts is determined by the quality
18 and nature of the defendant's activities, not the number of acts or mechanical standards. A 19 state does not acquire that jurisdiction by being the 'center of gravity' of the controversy, or the

1 most convenient location for litigation. The issue is personal jurisdiction, not choice of law. It
2 is resolved by considering the acts of the defendant."³²

3 First, there is no basis for specific jurisdiction over Uptown Dog. Each of High 4 Maintenance Bitch's alleged causes of action against Uptown Dog apparently arise out of 5 Uptown Dog's sales of a third party's products because Uptown Dog does not manufacture its 6 own products. Because High Maintenance Bitch refuses to identify which products are 7 accused of infringement, it is unclear whether Uptown Dog has made any sales of any accused 8 products in Washington.³³ Accordingly, High Maintenance Bitch's alleged injuries cannot be 9 found to have arisen out of activities of Uptown Dog's "purposefully directed" toward 10 Washington residents.

11 High Maintenance Bitch's assertion of personal jurisdiction over the defendant appears
12 to result from its erroneous belief that Uptown Dog can be sued here simply because High 13 Maintenance Bitch is located here. But it is not sufficient that High Maintenance Bitch is a 14 Washington resident. High Maintenance Bitch's presence in Washington is a "mere fortuity"
15 and the relation of Washington to the torts is too attenuated to support specific jurisdiction
16 over the defendant.³⁴ Thus, High Maintenance Bitch has not satisfied its burden of showing

1 that there are minimum contacts with Washington and that any of Uptown Dog's activity were 2 purposefully directed at Washington.

3 D. High Maintenance Bitch's Claims Did Not Arise From Uptown Dog's Contacts
4 With the State of Washington

5 Washington courts apply the "but for" test to determine whether a claim against a 6 nonresident business arises from, or is connected with, its solicitation of business within the 7 state. This factor is established if the events giving rise to the claim would not have occurred
8 "but for" the businesses solicitation within this state.³⁵ The "but for" test preserves the 9 requirement that there be some nexus between the cause of action and the defendant's activities
10 in the forum. Again, it is the plaintiff's burden to establish this element.³⁶

11 Because Uptown Dog did not conduct any business solicitations in Washington,³⁷
12 High Maintenance Bitch cannot meet its burden. As a result, this Court does not have personal 13 jurisdiction over Uptown Dog and this case must be dismissed.

14 E. It Would Be Totally Unfair and Unreasonable to Exercise Personal Jurisdiction
15 Over a Texas Corporation With No Business Activity Directed Towards
16 Washington

17 Because High Maintenance Bitch cannot satisfy the "minimum contacts" prong of the 18 due-process test, the Court need not consider the second prong of the test—the "fair play and 19 substantial justice" prong.³⁸ Assuming, however, that a plaintiff does satisfy the first prong, 20 then a court should determine whether it is unfair, under the circumstances, to force the 21 defendant to litigate in the forum state.³⁹ Reasonableness is determined by balancing several

1 factors, namely: "(1) the burden on the defendant; (2) the interests of the forum state; (3) the 2 plaintiff's interest in obtaining relief; (3) the interstate judicial system's interest in obtaining the 3 most efficient resolution of controversies; and (5) the interest of the states in furthering their 4 social policies."⁴⁰ Here, these factors show that subjecting Uptown Dog to personal 5 jurisdiction in Washington would be unfair and unreasonable.

6 First, it would be extremely burdensome for Uptown Dog to litigate in Washington.
7 Because Uptown Dog is a small Texas company, its only place of business is in Texas, the 8 burden on Uptown Dog would be particularly severe.⁴¹ Uptown Dog does not have the 9 financial resources to litigate in a distant forum, especially when it does not know what 10 products are accused of infringement and its gross sales for boa dog collars are less than 11 $400.⁴² All of Uptown Dog's personnel, documents, inventory, and facilities are located in 12 Texas.⁴³ In addition, Ms. Bennett, the vice president of Uptown Dog, is 64 and uses a walker 13 for mobility. As a result, it would be extremely burdensome for her to travel to Seattle or 14 elsewhere in Washington to participate in any part of these proceedings.⁴⁴

15 With respect to Uptown Dog's interest in trying this case close to home, that interest is 16 more than offset by the overall inconvenience of this forum. None of the witnesses or records
17 relating to the alleged activities that gave rise to the causes of action against High Maintenance 18 Bitch are located in Washington. The alleged products were manufactured by a third party and 19 sold and shipped to Uptown Dog in Texas.⁴⁵ Thus, Washington would not be a convenient 20 forum for the resolution of this dispute.

22 ⁴⁰ Viam Corp. v. Iowa Export-Import Trading Co., 84 F.3d 424, 429 (Fed. Cir. 1996) (citing World-Wide Volkswagen, 444 U.S. at 292).

24 ⁴² Woody Decl. at ¶19.

25 ⁴³ Woody Decl. at ¶14.

26 ⁴⁴ Woody Decl. at ¶12.

27 ⁴⁵ Woody Decl. at ¶4.

1 Finally, any interest this forum has in adjudicating this dispute is minimal since none of 2 the Uptown Dog's alleged tortious acts took place in or were directed toward Washington, and
3 any contacts the Uptown Dog has had with Washington are negligible.⁴⁶ The only connection
4 this dispute has to Washington is the fact that High Maintenance Bitch is located here, and that
5 simply is not enough to satisfy due process.⁴⁷

6 The remaining three factors do not support personal jurisdiction over Uptown Dog
7 because all federal courts can grant the same relief as this Court and there is nothing special in 8 this case that weighs in favor of holding personal jurisdiction over Uptown Dog.

9 Moreover, High Maintenance Bitch is not utilizing this statute in a bona fide manner.
10 It is attempting to utilize its resources to force a small Texas company from engaging in future
11 competition and to outspend it in this litigation.⁴⁸ High Maintenance Bitch's manner in which 12 it has conducted itself in attempting to extort its litigation power over Uptown Dog clearly 13 demonstrates that it is using this statute for unlawful harassment or injury and as a means of 14 overshadowing ends in scheme of litigation.⁴⁹ As a result, the Court does not have personal
15 jurisdiction over Uptown Dog and the long-arm statute will not establish jurisdiction if none
16 existed before the statute's enactment.⁵⁰

17 IV. UPTOWN DOG SHOULD BE AWARDED ITS REASONABLE ATTORNEY
18 FEEES AND COSTS IN DEFENDING AGAINST THIS ACTION

19 Because High Maintenance Bitch cannot meet its burden and prove that this Court has 20 personal jurisdiction over Uptown Dog, this Court should order High Maintenance Bitch to

1 pay Uptown Dog its reasonable attorney fees and costs in defending against this suit in a 2 forum some 2000 miles away from its principal place of business.⁵¹

3 The intent of the attorneys' fees provision of the long-arm statute, is to permit courts, in 4 their discretion to award such fees as compensation for an out-of-state defendant having to 5 defend against a frivolous action or one in which the burden upon such a defendant outweighs
6 convenience to him and would otherwise offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial
7 justice.⁵²

8 As stated above, this action offends traditional notions of fair play and substantial
9 justice and Uptown Dog should not be penalized for High Maintenance Bitch's bullying 10 tactics.

11 V. THIS CASE SHOULD ALSO BE DISMISSED BECAUSE OF IMPROPER
12 VENUE.

13 Venue in a patent action against a corporate defendant is governed by 28 U.S.C. §§
14 1400(b) and 1391(c).⁵³ Having stated supra that Uptown Dog does not reside in Washington,
15 does not have a place of business in Washington, and has not committed an act of infringement
16 in Washington, and having demonstrated that this Court does not have personal jurisdiction
17 over Uptown Dog, it follows that venue is not proper in this Court.⁵⁴

18
19
20 ⁵¹ See RCW § 4.28.185.

21 ⁵² State v. O'Connell, 84 Wash. 2d 602, 528 P.2d 988 (1974).

22 ⁵³ See VE Holding Corp. v. Johnson Gas Appliance Co., 917 F.2d 1574, 1583 (Fed. Cir. 1990); 28 U.S.C. § 23 1400(b) provides:

24 Any civil action for patent infringement may be brought in the judicial district where the 25 defendant resides, or where the defendant has committed acts of infringement and has a regular 26 and established place of business.

27 28 U.S.C. § 1391 (c) provides:

For purposes of venue under this chapter, a defendant that is a corporation shall be deemed to reside in any judicial district in which it is subject to personal jurisdiction at the time the action is commenced. . . .

⁵⁴ Likewise, under the same factual basis, venue would be improper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) .

1 VI. ALTERNATIVELY, THE COURT SHOULD TRANSFER THIS ACTION TO 2 THE DISTRICT OF TEXAS

3 If the Court decides that personal jurisdiction does exist over Uptown Dog, then
 4 Uptown Dog request the Court transfer this action to the United States District Court, Northern 5 District of Texas under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a), which states: a district court may transfer a civil 6 action "for the convenience of parties and witnesses [and] in the interest of justice . . . to any 7 other district or division where it might have been brought."⁵⁵ "The district court has broad 8 discretion to consider case-specific circumstances."⁵⁶

9 District courts use a two-step analysis to determine whether a transfer is proper. Step
 10 one considers the threshold question of whether the case might have been brought in the forum
 11 to which the transfer is sought.⁵⁷ If it concludes that the venue is proper in the transferee
 12 court, the district court then balances the plaintiff's interest to freely choose a litigation forum 13 against the aggregate considerations of convenience of the defendants and witnesses and the 14 interest of justice.⁵⁸

15 With respect to the issue of convenience, a district court must "weigh multiple factors
 16 in its determination whether transfer is appropriate in a particular case."⁵⁹ One important 17 factor is the convenience of witnesses.⁶⁰ Indeed, as one district court observed, this factor is 18 "often the most important factor."⁶¹

21 ⁵⁵ 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a); Asymetrix Corp. v. Lex Computer & Mgt. Corp., 1995 WL 843059, *4 (W.D. Wash.

26 ⁶⁰ See id. at 499 (holding where "more of the relevant witnesses" resided in plaintiff's chosen forum, district court properly weighed that factor in the transfer analysis).

27 ⁶¹ See Steelcase Inc. v. Haworth Inc., 41 U.S.P.Q.2d 1468, 1470 (C.D.Cal. 1996).

1 Several other factors inform the element of convenience, including: (1) the relative
 2 ease of access to sources of proof; (2) the availability of compulsory process for unwilling
 3 witnesses and the cost of securing willing witnesses; (3) the practical problems that make a 4 case easier or more difficult to try in a given forum; (4) the administrative difficulties flowing
 5 from court congestion; and (5) the local interest in the issue.⁶²

6 B. This Action Might Have Been Brought in the N.D. of Texas.

7 Here, the action "might have been brought" in the Northern District of Texas, because 8 Uptown Dog resides in Texas.⁶³ Thus, the Court can utilize its discretion in transferring this 9 matter to the United States District Court, Northern District of Texas.

10 C. Plaintiff's Choice of Forum Is a Non-Factor in this Case

11 "[D]istrict courts have applied a 'general rule' that, in actions based on a claim of patent
 12 infringement, a plaintiff's choice of forum is accorded little deference where the central facts
 13 of the lawsuit occur outside the plaintiff's chosen forum."⁶⁴ "In such circumstances, 'the 14 preferred forum is that which is the center of the accused activity.'"⁶⁵ "The 'center of the 15 accused activity' is the forum where the defendant is alleged to have developed, tested,
 16 researched, produced, marketed, and made sales decisions concerning the accused product."⁶⁶

 18 ⁶² The Ninth Circuit identified eight additional factors that a district court should consider: "(1) the location
 19 where the relevant agreements were negotiated and executed, (2) the state that is most familiar with the governing 20 law, (3) the plaintiff's choice of forum, (4) the respective parties' contacts with the forum, (5) the contacts relating 21 to the plaintiff's cause of action in the chosen forum, (6) the differences in the costs of litigation in the two
 22 forums, (7) the availability of compulsory process to compel attendance of unwilling non-party witnesses, and (8)
 23 the ease of access to sources of proof." See Jones, 211 F.3d at 498-99.

24 ⁶³ See 28 U.S.C. § 1400(b) (providing action for patent infringement may be brought in district where defendant 25 resides).

⁶⁶ Id.; see also S.C. Johnson & Son, 571 F. Supp. at 1188 (holding preferred forum was district in which defendant conducted "all development, testing, research, and production" and made "virtually all marketing and sales decisions" concerning accused product); Saint-Gobain Calmar, Inc. v. Nat'l Products Corp., 230 F. Supp.
 2d 655, 660 (E.D.Pa. 2002) (holding plaintiff's choice of forum entitled to less deference where "center of gravity of the alleged infringement" occurred in another forum where defendant assembled and shipped accused device).

1 In Sorensen, the court held that the center of the accused activity was Germany, where all
2 design and manufacturing decisions were made, or New Jersey, where all marketing and sales
3 decisions were made.⁶⁷

4 The "center of gravity" of the alleged infringement is in Texas, home of Uptown Dog's 5 sole facility and headquarters, and the location from which Uptown Dog's products are 6 marketed, and where sales decisions are made.⁶⁸ According to the Complaint, this forum, on 7 the other hand, has no relation to this case. No significant activity relative to this case has 8 occurred in this forum. Consequently, High Maintenance Bitch's choice of the Western 9 District of Washington is entitled to little, if any, deference.

10 C. The Balance of Conveniences Overwhelmingly Favors Uptown Dog

11 1. Convenience of the Witnesses

12 The convenience of the overwhelmingly witnesses favors the Northern District of 13 Texas. The persons involved in the marketing of the Uptown Dog's products are in Texas.
14 Specifically, Lisa Woody and Elaine Bennett, the co-founders of Uptown Dog, are most 15 familiar with the marketing of the Uptown Dog's products.⁶⁹

16 Traveling to Washington will also cause a physical hardship to Ms. Bennett.
17 Ms. Bennett is 64 years of age and utilizes a walker to assist her with her mobility.⁷⁰ Once 18 again, this factor weighs in favoring transferring this matter to the Texas.

19 2. The Relative Ease of Access to Sources of Proof Favors the N.D. of 20 Texas.

22 ⁶⁷ See Sorensen, 2003 WL 1888866, at *3; see also L.G. Electronics Inc. v. First In'l Computer, Inc.,
23 138 F.Supp. 2d 574, 590 (D.N.J. 2001) (holding "center of gravity of the allegedly infringing activity" in Taiwan
24 or California where one defendant manufactured accused device in Taiwan and second defendant make marketing and sales decisions in California).

25 ⁶⁸ Woody Decl. at ¶¶5-14.

26 ⁶⁹ Woody Decl. at ¶¶2-3.

27 ⁷⁰ Woody Decl. at ¶15.

1 Just as the key witnesses in this case are located in Texas, so are all of Uptown Dog's
2 records.⁷¹ As a result, this factor weighs in favor of transfer.

3 3. The Local Interest in the Case and Contacts to the Forum

4 The Ninth Circuit also directs the district courts to consider "the local interest in the 5 issue" in deciding whether to transfer a case,⁷² and "the contacts relating to the plaintiff's cause
6 of action and the chosen forum."⁷³ In the instant case, there is no specific Washington local 7 interest in the case or any issue in it have been alleged in the Complaint. Yet, because the 8 center of activity being in Texas, this factor weighs in favor of transfer to the Northern District
9 of Texas. As one court in this Circuit stated in transferring a case:

10 As to contacts relating to the plaintiff's cause of action, both parties'
11 contacts with the Northern District appear to relate to the instant claims only to 12 the extent that infringing products may have been sold in the Northern District.
13 Those contacts, however, are likely to exist in every district in the United 14 States, including the District of New Jersey. By contrast, as discussed above, one of the centers of the accused activity is New Jersey. Accordingly, the fifth
Jones factor weighs in favor of transfer.⁷⁴

15 D. The Interests of Justice Compel Transfer of this Case

16 Uptown Dog is very small business, with Texas being the center of gravity of this case
17 and much of the day-to-day business. Seattle, on the other hand, has no relation to this case
18 other than the possibility (shared by many geographic areas in the U.S.) that people here can 19 access Uptown Dog's web site.

20 Most importantly, Uptown Dog would be greatly burdened by litigating this case in 21 Washington. Seattle is over 2,000 miles from Frisco, Texas, which is the sole place of 3 Thus, interests of justice favor litigation of this case in Texas.

4 VII. THE COURT SHOULD ORDER HIGH MAINTENANCE BITCH TO 5 PROVIDE A MORE DEFINITE STATEMENT REGARDING WHICH PRODUCTS
6 ARE ACCUSED OF INFRINGEMENT

7 If the Court finds that personal jurisdiction exists, the Court should order High 8 Maintenance Bitch to furnish a more definite statement of its claim of patent infringement. As 9 filed the Complaint is void of not only facts regarding personal jurisdiction, it fails to mention
10 what products are accused of infringement. High Maintenance Bitch must have identified 11 some product of infringement and compared it to the asserted patent claims or it would be 12 subject to Rule 11 violations for lack of an adequate prefiling investigation.⁷⁶ An adequate
13 prefiling investigation would include at least the following: (1) comparing the two designs
14 from the viewpoint of the ordinary observer to determine whether the patented design as a 15 whole is substantially the same as the accused design; and (2) determining the "point of 16 novelty" of the patents to make sure the accused device appropriates the novelty in the 17 patented device which distinguishes it from the prior art.⁷⁷

18 The Court should order High Maintenance Bitch to specify its patent infringement 19 allegations in the following respects:

- 20 1. Identify the products that are accused of infringement; and 21 ⁷⁵ Woody Decl. at ¶14.

22 ⁷⁶ See, Judin v. U.S., 110 F.3d 780, 784 (Fed. Cir. 1997) (district court abused its discretion for not granting 23 Rule 11 sanctions against a patentee for failure to obtain a sample of the accused product as part of its prefiling
24 investigation); see also, Eon-Net, L.P. v. Flagstar Bancorp, Inc. (C05-2129MJP) DKT.79 (W.D. Washington
25 2006) (citing, View Eng'g, Inc. v. Robotic Vision Sys., Inc., 208 F.3d 981, 986 (Fed. Cir. 2000). However, it is 26 doubtful that the High Maintenance Bitch actually compared the product because Uptown Dog does not have any 27 record of selling any product to High Maintenance Bitch. Woody Decl. at ¶20.

⁷⁷ See, Lawman Armor Corp. v. Winner International LLC, 437 F.3d 1383 (Fed.Cir. 2006) (to determine infringement of a design patent, a court must apply two distinct tests: (a) the ordinary observer test; and (b) the "point of novelty test").
