UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

HENRY CHILDRESS, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

LIBERTY MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. C10-059RSL

ORDER DENYING MOTION TO APPROVE SETTLEMENT AND TO ISSUE A CLAIMS BAR ORDER

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on a motion filed by defendant Liberty Mutual Fire Insurance Company (“Liberty Mutual”) to approve its proposed settlement with plaintiffs and to bar the other defendants from asserting claims against it.

At the request of plaintiffs and Liberty Mutual, the Court heard oral argument in this matter on June 6, 2011. For the reasons set forth below, the Court denies Liberty Mutual’s motion because the proposed claims bar is unreasonable.

II. DISCUSSION

In February 2011, the Court granted plaintiffs’ motion for partial summary judgment and held that Liberty Mutual breached the insurance contract by cancelling the policy and refusing to pay plaintiffs’ loss. Subsequently, the parties engaged in a settlement conference before United

1 States Magistrate Judge James Donohue. The conference lasted an entire day and continued the 2 following morning. After Liberty Mutual and plaintiffs engaged in further negotiations, they 3 agreed to a proposed settlement to resolve all claims between them, subject to Court approval
4 and an order barring defendants from asserting further claims against Liberty Mutual.

5 Specifically, the proposed settlement agreement includes the following provision,

6 This settlement is expressly contingent upon a determination by the Court in the 7 Litigation as follows: (1) that this settlement is reasonable; (2) that the $55,000 payment 8 above is a reasonable settlement for all obligations of the Company to make any 9 payments for the repair of the Childresses' home; and (3) that any and all claims and/or 10 cross-claims that were alleged or that could have been alleged against the Company are 11 dismissed and/or barred, with prejudice.

12 Declaration of John Silk, (Dkt. #98), Ex. 4. The terms of the proposed settlement, which are set 13 forth in the motion and Memorandum of Settlement, include a payment of $400,000 in three 14 installments: (1) $25,000 to plaintiffs, (2) $55,000 into the Court registry for repairs to plaintiffs'
15 home, and (3) $320,000 in a check made payable to plaintiffs' counsel. Id.

16 A. The Bar Order.

17 The Court has “the inherent equitable power to enter an order precluding subsequent 18 claims for contribution (and indemnity) by non-settling parties in the litigation with notice of the 19 proposed order, so long as their rights are protected by it.” Zidell Marine Corp. v. Beneficial 20 Fire & Cas. Ins. Co., Case No. 03-5131RBL at p. 2 (W.D. Wash. May 24, 2004); Franklin v.
21 Kaypro Corp., 884 F.2d 1222, 1225 (9th Cir. 1989) (explaining that a bar order “constitutes a 22 final discharge of all obligations of the settling defendants and bars any further litigation of 23 claims by nonsettling defendants against settling defendants.”).

24 After Liberty Mutual filed this motion, the Court granted MeritPlan's motion for 25 summary judgment and granted plaintiffs' motion striking Countrywide's proposed new 26 counterclaims and cross claim as untimely. In light of those developments, the parties' 27 disagreements related to this motion now number only two: (1) whether the $55,000 set aside in 28 the settlement agreement for structural repairs should be paid directly to Countrywide, and (2)
whether MeritPlan should be precluded from asserting a contribution claim against Liberty

1 Mutual. Regarding the first issue, both MeritPlan and Countrywide argue that the Court should 2 order Liberty Mutual to pay the $55,000 allocated for structural repairs to Countrywide.
3 Countrywide's claim that it is entitled to the proceeds under the Liberty Mutual policy is 4 untenable. Countrywide is not named as a loss payee or insured under that agreement. Nor will 5 the Court reform the insurance contract as Countrywide belatedly urges. The Court's recent 6 order striking Countrywide's new claims precludes Countrywide from pursuing such a cross
7 claim against Liberty Mutual.

8 Although Countrywide might have a claim to the funds from plaintiffs under the Deed of 9 Trust, Countrywide has not asserted that claim in this litigation. Regardless, the proposed bar 10 order would not affect that claim. Finally, the issue is largely irrelevant because the funds will 11 be paid to repair the home, as Countrywide urges, and all parties agree that the $55,000 allocated
12 should be sufficient to accomplish that goal. Therefore, the Court will not order that the funds 13 be paid directly to Countrywide.

14 The Court also considers whether to bar any claim for contribution and/or indemnity as 15 Liberty Mutual urges. MeritPlan notes that it paid $15,100.40 to plaintiffs under the lender-
16 placed policy.¹ Its policy contains a provision stating that coverage terminates if other insurance 17 is in effect, and the Court has ruled that the Liberty Mutual policy was in effect. Based on those 18 facts, MeritPlan argues that it is entitled to contribution from Liberty Mutual because it paid
19 money that Liberty Mutual should have paid. Liberty Mutual contends that MeritPlan's
20 contribution claim is untimely. Although the Court might not allow MeritPlan to assert the cross 21 claim in this litigation at this late date, MeritPlan has not waived the contribution claim. Liberty
22 Mutual has not cited any authority to show that MeritPlan was required to assert the claim in this 23 lawsuit. Liberty Mutual also argues that all suits under its insurance contract must be filed

24
25 ¹ MeritPlan paid Countrywide $45,548.79 for the loss. As Liberty Mutual notes, 26 approximately $30,000 was "inexplicably retained" by Countrywide. Liberty Mutual's Reply at 27 p. 8. In light of those facts, Countrywide's claim that the $55,000 for repairs should be paid to it 28 directly is not well taken.

1 within one year of the date of the loss. MeritPlan, however, is not a party or third party
2 beneficiary to that contract and cannot be bound by its suit limitation.

3 In contrast, MeritPlan's argument that it paid for repairs that Liberty Mutual was 4 obligated to pay has some appeal.² If it were not for Liberty Mutual's wrongful cancellation of 5 its policy, MeritPlan would never have paid for any of plaintiffs' loss. Liberty Mutual argues 6 that a bar order is required to limit its potential liability to third parties; otherwise, it lacks the 7 certainty needed to settle with plaintiffs. However, because this Court has already decided 8 dispositive motions, this case presents the rare situation where the settling insurer knows the 9 amount of its potential liability to third parties: $15,100.40, the amount MeritPlan paid to 10 plaintiffs. MeritPlan's liability, and the amount of its contribution claim, cannot increase 11 because the Court has granted summary judgment in its favor. For that reason, neither MeritPlan 12 nor any other defendant is facing any liability in this lawsuit for which it might later seek 13 contribution from Liberty Mutual. Therefore, the usual justifications for granting a bar order, 14 encouraging early settlement and avoiding uncertainty for the settling insurer vis-a-vis non-15 settling defendants, are not present in this case.

16 Although public policy favors settlement, it also favors encouraging insurers to promptly 17 protect their insureds and pay claims. In this case, MeritPlan did so; Liberty Mutual did not.
18 The basis of any claim MeritPlan might have against Liberty Mutual is based on the fact that 19 MeritPlan paid under its policy after Liberty Mutual wrongfully cancelled. Under those 20 circumstances, it would be inequitable to bar MeritPlan's claim, and the Court will not enter the 21 bar order Liberty Mutual requests.

22 Despite refusing to enter the bar order, the Court believes that the settlement in this case
23 should go forward. The remainder of the terms are reasonable. Plaintiffs have claimed damages
24 and attorney's fees of approximately $477,000 against Liberty Mutual, plus $500,000 in general

26 ² Liberty Mutual argues that MeritPlan has no right to equitable contribution under these 27 circumstances. Reply at pp. 7-8. The Court will not adjudicate the merits of any potential 28 contribution claim at this point when no such claim has been asserted.

1 damages. The Court has ruled in plaintiffs' favor on their breach of contract claim, so plaintiffs 2 are entitled to recover on the contract for their repair costs, personal property damage, additional 3 living expenses, and attorney's fees. The Court has also ruled that issues of fact exist regarding 4 plaintiffs' remaining claims for bad faith and violation of the Consumer Protection Act. As the 5 Court noted during oral argument, Liberty Mutual also has strong defenses to some of plaintiffs'
6 alleged damages, including their claims for emotional distress damages. Liberty Mutual has also 7 shown that it has strong defenses to plaintiffs' claimed damages for additional living expenses
8 and damage to the contents of their home. The parties would incur substantial additional costs 9 and uncertainty by proceeding to trial. For those reasons, the amount of the settlement is 10 reasonable. Moreover, the Court notes that the settlement was reached after lengthy, arms-11 length negotiations before Judge Donohue. There is no evidence of collusion or bad faith. In 12 light of those facts, the Court finds the remainder of the settlement reasonable.

13 Because the Court has stricken Countrywide's new claims and dismissed plaintiffs'
14 claims against all defendants except Liberty Mutual, it appears that the only remaining claim not 15 addressed by the proposed settlement is a claim that MeritPlan might have based on the money it
16 paid under its policy. Given that the claim is limited to approximately $15,000, the parties 17 should be able to settle it. The parties are instructed to contact the Court if they would like the 18 Court's assistance in further settlement negotiations.

19 III. CONCLUSION

20 For all of the foregoing reasons, the Court DENIES Liberty Mutual's motion to approve 21 the settlement and issue a bar order (Dkt. #97).
