ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER
AND ANTISUIT INJUNCTION

THIS MATTER comes before the Court upon Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Anti-Suit Injunction by Plaintiff Cascade Yarns, Inc. ("Cascade"). Dkt. # 1073. Defendants KFI have filed a brief in opposition, in accordance with Local Civil Rule 65(b)(5). See Dkt. # 1078. Neither party has requested oral argument, and the Court finds it unnecessary. Having considered the parties' briefs and corresponding declarations and exhibits, as well as the relevant record and case law, the Court denies Cascade's Motion for the reasons stated herein.

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

On January 17, 2014, the Court issued two Letters Rogatory, one of which was directed to the Spanish central authority requesting production of documents from Fil Katia, S.A. (“Katia”), and the other directed to the Italian central authority requesting production of documents from Lane Mondial S.p.A. (“Mondial”). See Dkt. # 1005. In doing so, the Court addressed KFI’s contention that issuance of letters rogatory would be futile in light of Spain and Italy’s reservations in accordance with Article 23 of the Hague Convention. The Court explained that “[w]hether the Letters Rogatory will be executed in light of Spain and Italy’s Article 23 reservations is a matter for the appropriate Spanish and Italian tribunals, rather than this Court, to determine.” Id. at p. 3.

In July 2014, tribunals in Spain and Italy issued orders directing production of documents by Katia and Mondial, prompting KFI’s counsel to request permission to participate in these foreign proceedings in order to remind the tribunals of the purported effect of their jurisdiction’s Article 23 reservations. See Dkt. # 1079 (Slavitt Decl.), ¶¶ 6-9. On October 6, 2014, KFI filed a motion for reconsideration of the Italian tribunal’s order pertaining to Mondial’s production. Dkt. # 1074 (Guite Decl.), Ex. D; see also id. at Ex. G. Meanwhile, it appears that the scheduled production of testimony and documents has not occurred. Cascade asserts that KFI’s motion for reconsideration of the Italy tribunal’s July 2, 2014 order “thwarted the document production and examination of Mondial.” Dkt. # 1073, p. 4. Katia remains obligated to produce documents on October 13, 2014, and its witness is set to be deposed on October 27. Guite Decl., Ex. E.

3 Through the instant Motion, Cascade seeks to enjoin KFI’s further participation in the 4 Spanish and Italian proceedings in order to allow discovery related to Katia and Mondial to 5 move forward. Specifically, Cascade moves the Court to require KFI to withdraw its motion for 6 reconsideration filed on October 6, 2014 in the Italian tribunal and to preclude KFI from filing a
7 motion or objection in the Spanish tribunal seeking to similarly halt Katia’s production. See Dkt.
8 # 1073, pp. 9, 10. KFI has filed an opposing brief in which it asserts that Cascade has neither met
9 the standard for issuance of a temporary restraining order nor an anti-suit injunction. The Court
10 agrees.

12 The purpose of a temporary restraining order is to maintain the status quo until the 13 hearing on an application for the underlying preliminary injunctive relief. Granny Goose Foods,
14 Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters & Auto Truck Drivers, 415 U.S. 423, 439 (1974). The standard 15 for issuance of a temporary restraining order is the same as that for issuance of a preliminary
16 injunction. Zynga, Inc. v. Vostu USA, Inc., 2011 WL 3516164 (N.D. Cal. 2011). To obtain a 17 preliminary injunction, a party must ordinarily demonstrate (1) that she is likely to succeed on 18 the merits, (2) that she is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, (3)
19 that the balance of the equities tips in her favor, and (4) that an injunction is in the public
20 interest. Winter v. Natural Res. Defense Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008); see also Alliance
21 for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 622 F.3d 1045, 1052 (9th Cir. 2010). Further, mandatory as 22 opposed to prohibitory injunctions are particularly disfavored and “are not granted unless 23 extreme or very serious damage will result.” Park Village Apartment Tenants Ass’n v. Mortimer
24 Howard Trust, 636 F.3d 1150, 1160 (9th Cir. 2011). Mandatory injunctions are those that 25
26

1 “order[] a responsible party to take action,” as opposed to prohibiting a party from taking action
2 in order to preserve the status quo. Marlyn Nutraceuticals, Inc. v. Mucos Pharma GmbH & Co.,
3 571 F.3d 873, 878-79 (9th Cir. 2009).

5 The standard is different where an injunction is sought to prevent a party from litigating
6 similar claims in a foreign court. Microsoft Corp. v. Motorola, Inc., 871 F.Supp.2d 1089, 1088
7 (W.D. Wash. 2012). To obtain such an anti-suit injunction, the applicant is not required to show
8 a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim. E. & J. Gallo Winery v. Andina
9 Licores S.A., 446 F.3d 984, 991 (9th Cir. 2006). The court instead assesses three factors in 10 determining the propriety of an anti-suit injunction: (1) whether or not the parties and the issues
11 are the same in the domestic and foreign action, and whether or not the first action is dispositive
12 of the action to be enjoined, (2) whether at least one of the “Unterweser factors”¹ applies, and (3)
13 whether the injunction’s impact on comity would be “tolerable.” Microsoft v. Motorola, 696 F.3d
14 872, 881 (9th Cir. 2012).

17 As to Cascade’s request for a temporary restraining order, Cascade has failed to make the 18 requisite showing that such relief is warranted. “[P]laintiffs may not obtain a preliminary 19 injunction unless they can show that irreparable harm is likely to result in the absence of the 20 injunction.” Alliance for the Wild Rockies, 632 F.3d 1127, 1135 (9th Cir. 2011). Cascade has 21 failed to show, or indeed even to argue, that irreparable harm would ensue absent immediate
22 injunctive relief. Rather, the only prejudice that Cascade suggests it will endure if KFI’s
23

25 ¹ The Unterweser factors assess whether the foreign litigation would (1) frustrate a policy of the forum issuing the 26 injunction, (2) be vexatious or oppressive, (3) threaten the issuing court’s in rem or quasi in rem jurisdiction; or (4) whether the proceeding prejudice other equitable considerations. Microsoft Corp. v. Motorola, 696 F.3d at 882, quoting Gallo, 446 F.3d at 990.

1 participation in the foreign proceeding is not restrained is that it may be forced to reschedule
2 production after the close of discovery. Such harm is certainly not irreparable, as a motion to 3 extend discovery deadlines may provide a remedial avenue. To the extent that Cascade argues
4 that the foreign tribunal's reconsideration of its orders regarding Katia and Mondial production
5 could result in irreparable harm, such an argument is also unavailing. Should either of the foreign 6 tribunals recant on its issuance of discovery orders at KFI's prompting, such a decision would be
7 owing to the foreign tribunal's interpretation of the law of its jurisdiction and not owing to KFI's
8 actions in themselves.

11 Further, Cascade has failed to meet the heightened burden for issuance of mandatory
12 injunctive relief. In addition to asking the Court to prohibit KFI from future filings in the Spanish
13 and Italian tribunals, Cascade moves the Court to compel KFI to withdraw its already filed
14 motion for reconsideration. To prevail on this latter request for mandatory injunctive relief,
15 Cascade must show that extreme or very serious damage will otherwise result. See Park Village, 16 636 F.3d at 1160. As discussed supra, Cascade has failed to show that any irreparable harm will 17 result absent the requested relief, not to mention extreme or very serious damage. Nor has 18 Cascade shown that the requested injunction would thwart any damage that could occur. As the 19 Court has already made clear, the question of whether execution of the Letters Rogatory accords
20 with Spain and Italy's commitments under the Hague Convention is properly before these 21 foreign tribunals and not the instant Court. See Dkt. # 1005. Cascade has not shown that 22 removing KFI's filings from these tribunals' docket would prevent them from assessing the 23 propriety of their discovery orders.
24
25
26

1 As to the merits of Cascade’s request for anti-suit injunctive relief, Cascade has failed to
2 show that the applicable factors weigh in favor of such an injunction.² As an initial matter, an
3 anti-suit injunction is not the proper vehicle for the relief that Cascade requests. Courts may enter
4 anti-suit injunctions to prevent parties over which they have jurisdiction from pursuing an action
5 in a foreign court, where, for instance, it would frustrate a policy of the domestic forum or be 6 vexatious or oppressive. See Gallo, 446 F.3d at 989-90. The effect of such an injunction is to 7 enjoin the foreign litigation from proceeding. See id.; Microsoft Corp., 696 F.3d at 882. Here,
8 Cascade does not at all seek to enjoin the foreign actions. Just the opposite, it seeks to stop KFI’s
9 alleged meddling in order to allow these actions to proceed more efficiently. Because the relief
10 that Cascade seeks is not properly cognizable as anti-suit injunctive relief, it is not surprising that 11 none of the applicable factors tilts in Cascade’s favor.

14 First, the action earlier filed in this Court is not dispositive of the actions to be enjoined.
15 Rather, the Court in issuing the Letters Rogatory has already found that proceedings in an Italian
16 and Spanish tribunal on their execution should precede the Court’s disposition of the instant suit.
17 Further, none of the Unterweser factors applies to the instant litigation. These factors ask 18 whether the “foreign litigation” itself would, for instance, frustrate a policy of the forum or be 19 vexatious or oppressive. See Gallo, 446 F.3d at 990. Here, the foreign litigation is proceeding
20 pursuant to the Court’s issuance of Letters Rogatory and thus cannot be understood to frustrate a 21 policy of this forum or be vexatious or oppressive. As to the specific portions of the foreign 22 litigation that Cascade seeks to enjoin, consideration of the application of these jurisdictions’

25 ² Cascade, via a “status update,” has moved the Court to strike assertions made by KFI regarding the execution (or 26 lack thereof) of its own Letter Rogatory in Italy. See Dkt. # 1080. As KFI promptly filed a correction to these contested statements, Dkt. # 1081, Cascade’s request is moot.

1 Article 23 reservations will not frustrate a policy of this Court, which has already deferred to the 2 foreign tribunals on this issue. Nor is such consideration vexatious or oppressive. In the unlikely
3 event that the foreign tribunals were to reconsider their discovery orders, they would be doing so
4 in accordance with their own national laws and policies.

6 The Court is not unsympathetic to Cascade's concerns that KFI's actions in Spain and 7 Italy may be unduly delaying disposition of the underlying matter in this Court. The Court has 8 oft instructed the parties to work together to ensure the efficient production of discovery pursuant
9 to its issuance of Letters Rogatory in order to avoid the need to once again reschedule the trial
10 date in this matter. However, an anti-suit injunction is not the proper resolution to what is 11 essentially a discovery dispute. For the time being, the Court trusts that both parties will respect
12 the decisions of the Italian and Spanish authorities on document and witness production and 13 allow this case to proceed on target toward its long-delayed resolution on the merits.

16 CONCLUSION

17 For the reasons stated herein, the Court hereby ORDERS that Cascade's Motion for 18 Temporary Restraining Order and Anti-Suit Injunction (Dkt. # 1073) is DENIED.
