UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT SEATTLE

DIANA NICHOLS, 100 EVERGREEN
HILL RD., FAIRFIELD, CT, 06824,

Plaintiff,

v.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE
COPORATION, A RECEIVER FOR WASHINGTON MUTUAL BANK,

Defendant.

Case No. C14-1796RSM

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT’S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment.¹ Dkt. #56. Defendant argues that all of Plaintiff’s claims arising out of a prior loan with Washington Mutual Bank should be dismissed as a matter of law. Id. Pro Se Plaintiff opposes the motion, asserting that there are genuine disputes as to the material facts of this case, and therefore judgment as a matter of law is not appropriate. Dkt. #58. Oral argument was held on April 28, 2017. Dkt. #70. The parties held a mediation soon thereafter. However, the matter did not resolve. Dkt. #74.

¹ Defendant has since filed Motions In Limine, and Plaintiff has filed a Motion to Supplement the Record and an Emergency Motion to Strike the Trial Date and Allow Plaintiff to Join Additional Parties. Dkts. #68, #73 and #75. The Court also resolves those motions herein.

1 As the Undersigned stated during oral argument, the courts of this District are all too
2 familiar with the failure of Washington Mutual Bank, and the devastating effect it had on 3 vulnerable home owners who were victims of its questionable loan practices. See Dkt. #71 at 4 22:7-13. Plaintiff alleges that she is one such victim. Without reaching the same conclusion, the 5 Court does acknowledge that Plaintiff has suffered a number of personal hardships over the last 6 decade, which impacted her financially and motivated her to enter into certain agreements and 7 loans. While the Court is sympathetic to Plaintiff's situation, it is also constrained by the law in 8 resolving the issues now before it. Accordingly, for the reasons discussed herein, the Court
9 GRANTS Defendant's motion and dismisses Plaintiff's claims.
10

11 II. BACKGROUND

12 On November 22, 2014, pro se Plaintiff, Diana Nichols, filed a Complaint against 13 Defendant Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC") as Receiver for now-defunct
14 Washington Mutual Bank ("WaMu"), alleging, inter alia, breach of contract, negligence, fair
15 lending violations and fraud. Dkt. #1. Plaintiff served the FDIC in Washington, D.C., in March 16 of 2015. Dkts. #3 and #4, Ex. 1. According to Plaintiff, in April of 2015 she received a letter
17 via e-mail from an attorney at the law firm Miller, Nash, Graham and Dunn, stating that she 18 represented the FDIC in the instant suit and admonishing Plaintiff for improperly performing 19 service. Dkt. #4 at 3. However, that attorney had not appeared in this Court on behalf of 20 Defendant at that time. As a result, Plaintiff moved for default judgment against Defendant, 21 which the Court denied on the basis that Plaintiff had not completed service. Dkt. #15. Plaintiff
22 apparently completed service at some point thereafter, and Defendant appeared in this case and 23 filed an Answer to the Complaint. See Dkts. #12, #13, #14, #16, #17, #18, #19 and #20.
24

27
28

1 Plaintiff is a resident of the State of Connecticut who entered into a home mortgage loan
2 with WaMu in July of 2005. Dkts. #1 at ¶ 1 and #57-1 at 7:19-21. She alleges that the loan was 3 misrepresented to her both as to the nature and to the material terms of the loan. Dkts. #1 at ¶ 13
4 and #58 at 2-5. She alleges that these misrepresentations effectively increase the amount of her
5 loan principle over time, because the loan has been structured such that her monthly payment
6 never fully covers the interest being generated on the loan. Id. at ¶ ¶ 16-29. In other words,
7 Plaintiff entered into a negatively amortizing loan.² Plaintiff alleges that, as a result, she will 8 never fully pay off the loan.³ Dkt. #1 at ¶ ¶ 16-29. Plaintiff also alleges that she was coerced
9 into consummating this loan at a particularly vulnerable time in her life, of which the loan officer
10 was aware. Id. at ¶ 43. and Dkt. #58 at 2-5.

13 Defendant admits that Plaintiff entered into a home loan with WaMu on or about July 13,
14 2005. Dkt. #20 at ¶ ¶ 1 and 12. Defendant also admits that on September 25, 2008, the Director
15 of the Office of Thrift Supervision closed WaMu and appointed the FDIC as Receiver. Id. at ¶ 3.
16

17 After WAMU closed, JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. (“Chase”), became the subsequent 18 servicer of Plaintiff’s loan. Dkts. #1 at ¶ 60 and #56 at 5, fn. 21. In January 2012, Plaintiff
19 requested a modification of her loan under the Making Home Affordable Program. Dkt. #57-1 20 at 174:-177:24 and Ex. 28 thereto. In June 2012, Chase informed Plaintiff that it had reviewed
21 her request for a loan modification and proposed a Loan Modification Agreement. Id. at 178:18-22 179:6 and Ex. 29 thereto. In July 2012, Plaintiff and Chase entered into a Loan Modification 23

25 ² Neither party disputes that Plaintiff’s loan had a negative amortization component. Dkt. #63 at 26 3.

27 ³ As further referenced below, Plaintiff makes these allegations despite the fact that she has since 28 entered into a Loan Modification agreement with the current loan servicer which does not contain an adjustable rate, and therefore is no longer negatively amortizing. See Dkt. #57-1 at 174:-
177:24, 178:18-179:6, and 182:8-183:25 and 187:7-23, and Exs. 28-31 thereto.

1 Agreement, modifying the loan originally made by WAMU. Id. at 182:8-183:25 and 187:7-23
2 and Exs. 30 and 31 thereto. According to Plaintiff, she has since defaulted on the modified
3 payment agreement, but admits that it is still “technically” in place. Dkt. #71 at 5:4-6. The 4 record indicates that payments on the loan modification ceased in February 2013.⁴ Dkt. #69-1, 5 Ex. B at DIANAN6000006.

7 In June and July of 2014, Plaintiff apparently sought to file a late claim with the FDIC-
8 Receiver. Dkt. #1 at ¶¶ 5-6. On July 23, 2014, Plaintiff received a letter stating that the FDIC
9 had accepted her claim under the late-filed claims exception. Id. at ¶ 7. On September 25, 2014,
10 Plaintiff received a letter stating that her claim had been disallowed, and that she could file a 11 lawsuit within 60 days of receiving the letter. Id. at ¶ 8. The instant lawsuit followed. Plaintiff
12 alleges the following claims for relief, all in relation to the original WaMu Note and Mortgage 13 (which was a cashout refinance of a prior loan): 1) breach of contract and the covenant of good 14 faith and fair dealing; 2) negligence; 3) violation of TILA and Regulation Z; 4) 15 Unconscionability; 5) unjust enrichment; 6) fraud in the factum; and 7) duress. Dkts. #1 at ¶¶ 16 64-121 and #57-1, Exs. 19-20. It appears that Plaintiff seeks monetary damages and an Order
17 declaring the original Note & Mortgage to be Null & Void. See Dkt. #1 at ¶¶ 70-72, 80, 96, 110, 18 113 and 121.

21 III. DISCUSSION

22 A. Legal Standard

23 Summary judgment is appropriate where “the movant shows that there is no genuine 24 dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed.
25 R. Civ. P. 56(a); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247 (1986). In ruling on 26

27
28 ⁴ Although not entirely clear in the record, it appears that Plaintiff’s loan, as modified, is now being serviced by Select Portfolio Servicing (“SPS”). Dkt. #69-1, Ex. C.

1 summary judgment, a court does not weigh evidence to determine the truth of the matter, but
2 “only determine[s] whether there is a genuine issue for trial.” Crane v. Conoco, Inc., 41 F.3d
3 547, 549 (9th Cir. 1994) (citing Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. O’Melveny & Meyers, 969 F.2d
4 744, 747 (9th Cir. 1992)). Material facts are those which might affect the outcome of the suit
5 under governing law. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248.

7 The Court must draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party. See
8 O’Melveny & Meyers, 969 F.2d at 747, rev’d on other grounds, 512 U.S. 79 (1994). However, 9 the nonmoving party must make a “sufficient showing on an essential element of her case with 10 respect to which she has the burden of proof” to survive summary judgment. Celotex Corp. v.
11 Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). Further, “[t]he mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in 12 support of the plaintiff’s position will be insufficient; there must be evidence on which the jury
13 could reasonably find for the plaintiff.” Anderson, 477 U.S. at 251.

14 15 B. Motion to Accept Untimely Arguments

16 As an initial matter, Plaintiff has moved the Court to “allow and accept Plaintiff to submit 17 additional argument in opposition to Defendant’s motion for summary judgment.” Dkt. #73.
18 Plaintiff argues that because she became emotional during oral argument, she was unable to 19 answer the Court’s questions effectively or present her points in opposition to summary
20 judgment. Id. She asserts that after reviewing the transcript of the oral argument in this matter, 21 she prepared additional responses she would like the Court to hear. Id. The Court DENIES the 22 motion. The Court appreciates that Plaintiff is proceeding pro se in this matter; however, Plaintiff
23 was provided an opportunity to argue her opposition to the Court, and the Court needs no further 24 argument to analyze the record or address the legal issues in this matter. Moreover, some of the 25 arguments Plaintiff now desires to present are simply duplicative of those already contained in 26
27
28

1 her initial brief in opposition to summary judgment, and the remainder are not supported by any
2 additional Declarations or other evidence in the record. For these reasons, the Court will not 3 consider Plaintiff's supplemental arguments. Accordingly, the Court now turns to the merits of 4 this case.

5 C. Loan Modification and Implied Waiver

6 The Court first examines the effect of Plaintiff's Loan Modification on her claims.⁵ Each
7 of Plaintiff's claims in this matter relates to conduct pertaining to the original loan WaMu loan.
8 See Dkt. #1. Nowhere in her Complaint does Plaintiff make any assertions with respect to the 9 validity of the subsequent Loan Modification agreement between her and Chase. Indeed, 10 although she entered into the agreement more than two years prior to filing her suit, she alleges 11 in this suit that "every month she makes a payment" effectively less than what could cover the 12 interest on the loan, and that results in a loan she can never pay off. See id. at ¶ 21. These 13 allegations are stated in the present tense, thus purporting to be true at the time she filed her
14 Complaint. However, after the July 13, 2012, Loan Modification her payments were governed
15 by new terms. Dkt. #57-3 at 59. The new payments began August 1, 2012, in a lower amount 16 and at a fixed interest rate. Id. at 47-61. Plaintiff acknowledges that she entered into such 17 modification agreement. Dkts. #57-1 at 182:8-183:25 and 187:7-23 and Exs. 30 and 31 thereto
18 and #71 at 5:4-7.

21
22
23
24 ⁵ The Court has noted its disappointment that Plaintiff's Complaint failed to mention she had 25 entered into a Loan Modification agreement two years prior to bringing her lawsuit, and has 26 alleged claims based on loan terms that apparently no longer exist. See Dkts. #1 and #. Because 27 of Plaintiff's failure to set forth the existence of the Loan Modification in her Complaint, the 28 FDIC-Receiver had no knowledge of the agreement until two years after this case was filed on September of 2016. Dkt. #64 at ¶¶ 3-4. This lack of information precluded the parties and the Court from addressing this important issue earlier in this case, which may have preserved numerous resources.

1 Plaintiff benefitted from the modification. The agreement reduced interest rates and the 2 monthly payments. Dkt. #57-3 at 51 and 54. In exchange for those modifications, Plaintiff
3 agreed, inter alia, that she was not a party to any litigation (which was true at the time) involving 4 the Loan Documents (defined as the WaMu Note and Mortgage now at issues in this case), to 5 pay the amounts she owed under the agreement, and specifically warranted that the original Loan 6 Documents “are composed of valid, binding agreements, enforceable in accordance with 7 their terms and are hereby reaffirmed.” Dkt. #57-3 at 53-55 (emphasis added). She further
8 agreed that all terms and provisions in the Loan Documents remained in full force and effect,
9 except as modified by the Loan Modification agreement. Id. at 55. There is no evidence in this 10 record demonstrating, or even suggesting, that these terms have not been fulfilled by either her 11 or Chase. Further, Plaintiff’s Complaint neither addresses, nor calls into question, the validity of 12 the agreement, and Chase is not a party to this lawsuit.⁶ See Dkt. #1. As a result, the Loan 13 Modification agreement appears to be a binding contract.

16 Under similar circumstances, at least one other court in the Ninth Circuit has found that 17 a plaintiff waives his or her causes of action on the original Note and Mortgage when those 18 documents are reaffirmed by a subsequent loan modification. See, e.g., Merritt v. Countrywide
19 Fin. Corp., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 125284, *82 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 17, 2015) (explaining that the 20 plaintiffs had impliedly waived their fraud-based claims against the Countrywide defendants by 21 signing a subsequent loan modification); see also Quinto v. JP Morgan Chase Bank, 2011 U.S.
22
23
24
25
26
27

28 ⁶ Plaintiff attempts to explain why she failed to include information about her loan modification in her now-pending motion to join additional parties. Dkt. #75. That motion is addressed below.

1 Dist. LEXIS 21149, *6-8 (N.D. Cal. Mar 2, 2011). While not binding on this Court, the Court
2 believes these cases demonstrate a logical approach to situations such as the instant one.⁷

3 The Court does recognize that courts in other jurisdictions have held that TILA rights 4 cannot be waived by subsequent agreements because those rights can only be waived in very 5 narrow circumstances. For example, in Mills v. Home Equity Group, Inc., 871 F. Supp. 1482
6 (D.D.C. 1994), the plaintiff entered into a loan agreement which was secured by a deed of trust
7 on her residence. Id. at 1484. After failing to meet her monthly payment obligations, the 8 plaintiff, who was represented by pro bono counsel, entered into a purported settlement
9 agreement which restructured the loan and included a release of any potential TILA claims she 10 “had, have or might have against Lender arising out of or relating to the Original Loan
11 documents[.]” Id. The plaintiff later defaulted on the restructured loan and foreclosure
12 proceedings ensued. Id. The plaintiff then sent the defendants a notice of rescission, which was 13 within the three-year period for rescinding the loan. Id. In response to the defendants’ assertion
14 that Plaintiff’s right to rescission had been waived, the court held that the waiver was ineffectual
15 because the right to rescind cannot be released or waived absent the narrowly drawn 16 circumstances found in TILA for such waiver, and those had not been met. Id. at 1486. Relying
17 on Mills, the United States District Court for the District of Oregon also found that the plaintiff
18 could not waive her TILA rescission rights in a subsequent agreement. Bakker v. Wells Fargo
19 Home Mortg., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 151055, *9-12 (D. Or. June 26, 2012).

20 However, the instant matter presents circumstance which are factually distinguishable
21 from Mills and Bakker. Indeed, as Defendant notes, Ms. Nichols’ right to rescind the WaMu 22

23
24
25
26
27 ⁷ To find otherwise would undermine the incentive for those entities that have acquired 28 questionable loans to assist consumers with terms that will ultimately allow them to stay in their homes.

1 loan expired in 2008, and neither Mills nor Bakker addresses the ability to waive the right to
2 rescind after the right has already expired. In fact, in In re Divittorio, 670 F.3d 273 (1st Cir.
3 2012), the First Circuit Court of Appeals addressed the situation where a plaintiff attempted to 4 rescind the transaction more than six years after the consummation of the transaction and was 5 not seeking to invoke his TILA right of rescission within the three-year statute of limitations.
6 DiVittorio, 670 F.3d at 285-86. Because the plaintiff’s right of rescission under TILA had long 7 expired, the court determined that “his ability to waive any rescission right was not cabined by 8 the requirements of’ TILA or its regulations. Id. at 285. The First Circuit distinguished Mills on 9 that ground. Id. n.9. With respect to the plaintiff’s argument that recognizing his waiver would 10 thwart TILA’s policies, the First Circuit observed that circumstances suggested that his waiver
11 was knowing and voluntary. Id. at 286-88. As further discussed below, there is no admissible
12 evidence before this Court on which the Court could question Plaintiff’s knowing and voluntary
13 entry into the Loan Modification with Chase. Thus, the Court finds that by entering into a Loan
14 Modification in 2012, in which Plaintiff reaffirmed the validity of those documents, she impliedly
15 waived any subsequent claims related to the WaMu loan documents. See In re Welfare of S.V.B., 16 75 Wn. App. 762, 770, 880 P.2d 80 (1994) (“the claimed act of waiver must be inconsistent with 17 any other intent as intent will not be inferred from ‘doubtful or ambiguous factors.’” (citing 18 Wagner v. Wagner, 95 Wn.2d 94, 102, 621 P.2d 1279 (1980))).
19
20
21

22 Plaintiff argues that Defendant may not rely on the Loan Modification and reaffirmation 23 contained therein because Defendant never raised reaffirmation as an affirmative defense, and 24 has therefore waived such a defense. Dkt. #58 at 6-8. However, reliance on the loan modification
25 is not one of the required defenses enumerated in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(c), and is 26 therefore not waived under Rule 12(h). Moreover, nothing precludes Defendant from relying on 27
28

1 facts learned through discovery to refute Plaintiff's claims. Further, to the extent Plaintiff asserts
2 she was prejudiced by Defendant's reliance on the Loan Modification, Plaintiff fails to 3 demonstrate such prejudice when she herself has been aware of the modification and the 4 circumstances surrounding agreement since long before she filed her Complaint.

5 Finally, Plaintiff suggests that the Loan Modification is also void because she lacked 6 capacity to enter into the agreement due to her suffering a brain aneurysm just months prior to 7 signing the agreement. Dkt. #58 at 8-9. Plaintiff asserts that this creates a genuine issue of 8 material fact precluding summary judgment. Id. Plaintiff is incorrect. Plaintiff has not put the 9 Loan Modification agreement at issue in this matter. Indeed, as noted herein, she failed to allege 10 the very existence of the agreement in her Complaint. Moreover, she has failed to support her
11 assertions with any admissible evidence. She does not produce any medical records evidencing
12 that she suffered a brain aneurysm, when she suffered it, and what affect it may have had on her 13 capacity to enter into contracts. She does not offer any affidavit or declaration from herself or 14 others discussing her ability or inability to enter into contracts in July of 2012. See Dkt. #58.
15 While she has since offered evidence that she had subsequent disputes with Chase related to the 16 loan modification, the context and results of those disputes have not been made clear in the 17 record. See Dkt. #69-1. Likewise, she has not offered any evidence at all with regard to Chase
18 and the formation of the Loan Modification agreement at the time it took place in 2012.
19 Significantly, she does not refute the authenticity of the Loan Modification documents or the 20 terms of those documents. As a result, she fails to demonstrate that there are any genuine issues
21 of material fact in dispute. See Bias v. Moynihan, 508 F.3d 1212, 1218-19 (9th Cir. 2007)
22 (granting summary judgment against pro se plaintiff for the failure to support an opposition with 23 evidence).
24
25
26
27
28

1 For all of these reasons, the Court finds that the reaffirmation of the WaMu Note and 2 Mortgage precludes Plaintiff's claims. Accordingly, they will all be dismissed.

3 D. Motion to Join Additional Parties

4 Plaintiff has filed an "emergency" motion for "entry of an Order: (1) adjourning the bench
5 trial currently scheduled for May 22, 2017; (2) granting Plaintiff leave to join JPMorgan Chase
6 Bank, N.A. ("Chase") and Deutsche Bank National Trust Co. ("Deutsche") as party-defendants
7 in this action; and (3) granting Plaintiff related relief, including leave to amend her complaint to 8 assert claims for, inter alia, declaratory judgment against Chase and Deutsche consistent with the 9 relief sought by Plaintiff in her initial complaint in this case filed on November 22, 2014." Dkt.
10 #75. Plaintiff argues that at the inception of her case, Defendant took the position that this case
11 is a "two-party dispute," not requiring the addition of subsequent holders/servicers of Plaintiff's
12 mortgage, Chase and Deutsche, even though Plaintiff sought judgment that her mortgage is void
13 or void ab initio. Dkt. #75 at 2. Plaintiff further argues that it was not until moving for summary
14 judgment that Defendant asserted for the first time that Plaintiff's claims must be dismissed
15 because Chase and Deutsche had not been joined, and that it was not until mediation on May 9, 16 2017, that she understood this Court might dismiss all of her claims because she had failed to 17 join those to parties. Id. As further discussed below, Plaintiff misconstrues the briefs to which 18 she cites.
19
21

22 The parties filed a Joint Status Report ("JSR") in this matter on November 2, 2015. Dkt.
23 #25. In setting forth the "complexity" of the case, the parties disagreed. Defendant stated that
24 the case was not complex, as it was a "two-party dispute," meaning that there was one plaintiff
25 and one named defendant. Dkt. #25 at 3. Nowhere did Defendant assert that the matter was 26 limited to only two parties, or that it took a position that no parties could be joined. See id. On 27
28

1 the other hand, Plaintiff took the position that the matter was complex, because it was not clear
2 who owned her mortgage loan. Id. at 1-3. However, in discussing the ownership issue, she never 3 acknowledged that she had entered into a loan modification with Chase. See id.

4 With respect to joinder, Plaintiff asserted that she should have no deadline for the joinder
5 of Chase and Deutsche banks, because whether they were real parties in interest needed to be 6 determined. Id. at 3. Defendant stated that it did not intend to join any additional parties, and 7 asked for a firm joinder deadline. Dkt. #25 at 3. Again, nowhere did Defendant assert that 8 Plaintiff could not or should not join additional parties.

10 After reviewing the parties' JSR, the Court issued a Scheduling Order on November 4, 11 2015, and set various pre-trial deadlines, all of which have now passed except for the pre-trial
12 conference, pre-trial order, trial briefs, and proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law.
13 Dkt. #26, #38 and #43. The deadline for joining additional parties was December 2, 2015. Dkt.
14 #26. No additional parties were ever joined. A bench trial in this matter is currently scheduled
15 for May 22, 2017. Dkt. #43. The Court would be required to extensively modify the scheduling
16 order to allow Plaintiff to add new parties, which would essentially require this three-year old 17 case to start over from the beginning.
18

20 "A schedule may be modified only for good cause and with the judge's consent." Fed.
21 R. Civ. P. 16(b)(4). Whether good cause exists to modify a scheduling order rests on whether 22 the party seeking the modification has been diligent. See Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, 975
23 F.2d 604, 609 (9th Cir. 1992). Here, the Court finds that Plaintiff has not been diligent in seeking 24 amendment to join new parties. While Plaintiff argues that Defendant is to blame for her failure
25 to join Chase and Deutsche banks, the JSR belies that assertion. Nowhere does Defendant state
26 that Plaintiff was restricted in any way in joining those entities. Moreover, Plaintiff explicitly 27
28

1 stated that she planned to seek discovery as to who owned her loan, and the chain of title of her
2 loan. Dkt. #2-5. Plaintiff recognized as early as November 2, 2015, that those two entities may 3 be necessary Defendants in this action, but she failed to ever present that issue to the Court. She 4 takes no accountability now for her own actions in this matter. Further, Defendant has never 5 asserted that Plaintiff cannot bring her claims because she failed to join Chase and Deutsche 6 banks to this action. See Dkts. #56 and #63. Rather, they argue that she reaffirmed the terms of 7 her WaMu loan through a loan modification, as discussed above.

9 Accordingly, nothing that Plaintiff presents now persuades the Court that Defendant
10 either led her to believe that she could not join additional parties, or caused her to delay almost 11 two years before seeking to join additional parties and amend her complaint. Therefore, the 12 Court denies her motion to join and dismisses this case for the reasons set forth above.
13

14 IV. CONCLUSION

15 Having reviewed Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, Plaintiff's opposition 16 thereto, and Defendant's Reply in support thereof, along with the remainder of the record, the 17 Court hereby finds and Orders:
18

- 19 1. Plaintiff's Motion to Supplement the Record with untimely argument in opposition to 20 summary judgment (Dkt. #73) is DENIED.
- 21 2. Plaintiff's Motion to Join Additional Parties (Dkt. #75) is DENIED.
- 22 3. Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment (Dkt. #56) is GRANTED, and Plaintiff's 23 Complaint is dismissed in its entirety.
- 24 4. Defendant's pending Motions In Limine (Dkt. #68) is stricken as MOOT.
- 25 5. This matter is now CLOSED.
