

1 Wausau does not oppose the City's motion, but filed a "clarification." Doc. 644. According to 2 Wausau's clarification, its anticipated motion involves whether any privilege afforded by the 3 Allocation's agreement has been waived. Id. Defendant Providence Washington Insurance 4 Company ("Providence") opposes the City's motion, arguing that the City does not have the 5 requisite significant protectable interest relating to the insurance policies at issue in this case. Doc.
6 645. Additionally, or alternatively, Providence argues that any hypothetical interest of the City is 7 adequately protected by Plaintiff King County. Id. The City, in response, asserts that it has a 8 protectable interest in maintaining the confidentiality of the Allocation documents. Doc. 646.
9 Further, the City maintains, its interest is not protected by Plaintiff because if the Allocation fails,
10 Plaintiff's insurers would have to "pay the costs for cost-contribution litigation," while the City
11 has no such insurance, and therefore, will have to litigate at its own expense. Id. The Court agrees.
12 See Wilderness Soc. v. U.S. Forest Service, 630 F.3d 1173, 1179 (9th Cir. 2011) ("In evaluating 13 whether Rule 24(a)(2)'s requirements are met," courts should "construe the Rule broadly in favor
14 of proposed intervenors...because a liberal policy in favor of intervention serves both efficient 15 resolution of issues and broadened access to the courts") (internal quotations omitted). Thus, the 16 Court GRANTS the City's motion [635]. The City shall be permitted to file a brief in opposition 17 to Defendant Wausau's anticipated motion, as well as any motion subsequently brought by any 18 another Defendant concerning the confidentiality of the documents assembled during the 19 Allocation. SO ORDERED.
