11 Plaintiff,

12 v.

13 ASTENJOHNSON, INC., et al.,

14 Defendants.

CASE NO. C17-0597JLR

ORDER AWARDING
ATTORNEYS' FEES

15 I. INTRODUCTION

16 On July 24, 2017, the court granted Plaintiff Geraldine Barabin's motion to 17 remand the case to King County Superior Court and additionally granted Ms. Barabin's 18 request for fees and costs, due to the lack of an objectively reasonable basis for 19 Defendant Scapa Dryer Fabrics, Inc.'s ("Scapa") removal of the case. (7/24/17 Order
20 (Dkt. # 33) at 6-7.) The court ordered Ms. Barabin to submit a brief detailing her
21 reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. (Id. at 7.) Before the court now is Ms. Barabin's
22 unopposed brief in support of reasonable attorneys' fees. (Br. (Dkt. # 35).) Having

1 considered the briefing, the balance of the record, and the applicable law, the court
2 AWARDS Ms. Barabin a total of $7,702.50 in reasonable attorneys' fees.

3 II. BACKGROUND

4 Ms. Barabin brought this action against Defendants Scapa and AstenJohnson, Inc.
5 (collectively, "Defendants") in King County Superior Court, alleging various counts of 6 wrongful death, fraud, and other tortious conduct stemming from Defendants'
7 involvement with asbestos and asbestos-containing products. (See generally Compl.
8 (Dkt. # 4-1).) Scapa removed the case from state court on April 17, 2017. (Not. of Rem.
9 (Dkt. # 1).) The court had previously remanded this action once before. See Barabin v.
10 AstenJohnson, Inc., No. C14-0557JLR (W.D. Wash.) (6/30/14 Order (Dkt. # 51) at 13.)
11 Ms. Barabin moved to remand and simultaneously moved for attorneys' fees and costs.
12 (Mot. (Dkt. # 23) at 2-4.)

13 In its July 25, 2017, order, the court granted Ms. Barabin's motion and remanded
14 the case pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1446(c)(1). (7/24/17 Order at 6.) The court also noted
15 that Scapa relied upon "untenable argument[s]" and "inconsistent positions in an effort to 16 keep this action in federal court." (Id. at 6-7.) Because Scapa "lacked an objectively
17 reasonable basis for removal," the court granted Ms. Barabin's request for fees and costs.
18 (Id.) The court instructed Ms. Barabin to submit a brief detailing her reasonable
19 attorneys' fees and costs and permitted, but did not require, Defendants to file responsive
20 briefing. (Id. at 7.) Ms. Barabin submitted briefing per the court's instructions (see Br.),
21 and Defendants did not file a response (see Dkt.).

1 See Kerr, 526 F.2d at 70; Moore v. James H. Matthews & Co., 682 F.2d 830, 838 (9th
2 Cir. 1982).

3 Ms. Barabin requests a total of $7,702.50 in attorneys' fees, which represents 23.7
4 hours of work billed at an hourly rate of $325.00. (See Good Decl. (Dkt. # 35-1) at 2.) In
5 support of its motion, Ms. Barabin submits a declaration of counsel detailing the fees
6 attributable to the motion to remand. (See generally Good Decl.) Upon review, the court
7 concludes that Ms. Barabin is entitled to the fees she requests.

8 Turning first to the hourly rate, the record shows that the billing attorney Meredith
9 Good charged $325.00 per hour. (Id. at 2.) Defendants have not objected to this hourly
10 rate. Given the lack of objection, and based upon the court's familiarity with the rates
11 charged by attorneys with similar qualifications in the Seattle legal community, the court
12 finds that the rate is reasonable. Turning next to the number of hours, the court 13 determines that 27.3 hours constitute a reasonable amount of time expended on the 14 motion to remand. None of the tasks documented appear excessive, redundant, or 15 otherwise unnecessary. See Van Gerwen v. Guarantee Mut. Life. Co., 214 F.3d 1041,
16 1045 (9th Cir. 2000). The total hours reported reasonably reflect Ms. Good's efforts not 17 only in researching and arguing the removal issue, but also in preparing the supplemental 18 briefing that the court ordered on the issue. (See Good Decl. at 1-2; see also 7/11/17
19 Order (Dkt. # 29).) Having considered the record in detail, the court concludes that this 20 lodestar calculation is reasonable and that there is no need for further adjustment.

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 Accordingly, the court AWARDS Ms. Barabin attorneys' fees in the amount of 3 $7,702.50.

4 Dated this th15 day of September, 2017.
