UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON AT SEATTLE

ANNA PATRICK, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

DAVID L. RAMSEY, III, et al.,

Defendants.

CASE NO. C23-0630JLR

ORDER

I. INTRODUCTION

Before the court are two motions filed by Plaintiffs:<sup>1</sup> (1) a motion for reconsideration of the court’s order dismissing their unjust enrichment claims with prejudice (MFR (Dkt. # 38); MFR Reply (Dkt. # 50); see 10/12/23 Order (Dkt. # 35)) and (2) a motion for leave to amend their complaint (MTA (Dkt. # 40); MTA Reply (Dkt.

1 # 52)). Defendants David L. Ramsey, III and The Lampo Group, LLC (together, the 2 “Lampo Defendants”) oppose both motions.<sup>2</sup> (MFR Resp. (Dkt. # 49); MTA Resp. (Dkt.
3 # 51).) The court has considered the motions, the parties’ submissions in support of and 4 in opposition to the motions, the relevant portions of the record, and the governing law.
5 Being fully advised,<sup>3</sup> the court DENIES Plaintiffs’ motion for reconsideration and 6 GRANTS in part Plaintiffs’ motion to amend.

7 II. BACKGROUND

8 Plaintiffs are individuals who signed contracts with and paid money to non-party 9 Reed Hein & Associates (“Reed Hein”), doing business under the name “Timeshare Exit 10 Team,” for assistance in “exiting” their obligations with respect to timeshares they owned 11 at various resort properties. (Compl. (Dkt. # 1) ¶¶ 16-66 (alleging facts regarding each of 12 the named Plaintiffs).) Plaintiffs allege that Reed Hein charged them money up front for 13 its services and promised them a “100% refund if they were not relieved of their 14 timeshare obligations.” (Id. ¶ 3; see also id. ¶ 81.) Reed Hein, however, allegedly failed 15 to terminate Plaintiffs’ timeshare obligations, made false statements about its services, 16 and refused to refund Plaintiffs’ money when the “exits” were unsuccessful or resulted in
18

19 <sup>2</sup> Plaintiffs also named Happy Hour Media Group, LLC (“Happy Hour Media Group”) as 20 a Defendant. (See Compl. ¶ 67.) Happy Hour Media Group did not respond to Plaintiffs’ motions. (See generally Dkt.)

21 <sup>3</sup> Neither Plaintiffs nor the Lampo Defendants request oral argument (MFR at 1; MTA at 22 1; MFR Resp. at 1; MTA Resp. at 1) and the court finds that oral argument would not be helpful to its disposition of the motions, see Local Rules W.D. Wash. LCR 7(b)(4).

1 the resort properties foreclosing on Plaintiffs' timeshares. (Id. ¶¶ 3-4; see also id.
2 ¶¶ 81-97 (describing Reed Hein's practices).)

3 On April 28, 2023, Plaintiffs filed this proposed class action against one individual 4 and two business entities that played roles in promoting Reed Hein's services. (See 5 generally Compl.) Plaintiffs allege that Reed Hein hired Defendant Happy Hour Media 6 Group, a Kirkland, Washington-based marketing firm that acts as Reed Hein's "in-house 7 marketing department"; Defendant Dave Ramsey, a nationally-syndicated radio talk-8 show host who offers "biblically based" financial advice; and Defendant The Lampo 9 Group, Mr. Ramsey's wholly-owned company, to promote its timeshare exit services 10 through Mr. Ramsey's popular radio shows, podcasts, seminars, websites, "Financial 11 Peace University," and newsletters. (Id. ¶¶ 5-6, 109-54 (describing Mr. Ramsey's 12 business and his relationship with Reed Hein).) Plaintiffs further allege that Reed Hein 13 paid Mr. Ramsey and The Lampo Group over $30 million "to make false claims and 14 instruct [Mr.] Ramsey's faithful listeners to hire Reed Hein." (Id. ¶ 5.) According to 15 Plaintiffs, Mr. Ramsey "assured his listeners that he had vetted Reed Hein," "promised 16 them that the company was the only trustworthy method to get out of their timeshare 17 contracts," and "made false statements about Reed Hein's knowledge, skill, and ability to 18 get customers out of timeshare obligations." (Id. ¶ 7; see also id. ¶¶ 131-32 (describing 19 statements Mr. Ramsey made when endorsing Reed Hein).) Plaintiffs assert that Mr.
20 Ramsey continued to promote Reed Hein even after listener complaints, lawsuits 21 (including one brought by the Washington State Attorney General), and arbitrations filed 22 against Reed Hein should have placed him on notice that Reed Hein was defrauding his 1 followers. (See, e.g., id. ¶¶ 8, 121-22, 159-64.) By March 2021, Reed Hein started to 2 lose money and stopped paying Mr. Ramsey to promote its services. (Id. ¶¶ 9, 107-08.)

3 Subsequently, Mr. Ramsey stopped recommending Reed Hein’s services to his followers.
4 (Id. ¶¶ 10, 165.) Plaintiffs alleged claims on behalf of themselves and a proposed 5 nationwide class against all Defendants for violation of the Washington Consumer 6 Protection Act, negligent misrepresentation, and conspiracy, and against the Lampo 7 Defendants only for unjust enrichment. (Id. ¶¶ 191 (proposed class definition), 201-215.)

8 On October 12, 2023, the court denied the Lampo Defendants’ motion to strike 9 Plaintiffs’ class allegations and granted in part the Lampo Defendants’ motion to dismiss.
10 (See 10/12/23 Order at 13-14.) In relevant part, the court granted the Lampo Defendants’ 11 motion to dismiss Plaintiffs’ unjust enrichment claim and dismissed that claim with 12 prejudice and without leave to amend. (Id.) The court concluded that dismissal of the 13 unjust enrichment claim was warranted because Plaintiffs failed to plausibly allege the 14 first element of their claim: “a benefit conferred upon the defendant by the plaintiff.”
15 (Id. at 7-9 (quoting Young v. Young, 191 P.3d 1258, 1262 (Wash. 2008)).) The court 16 relied on Lavington v. Hillier, in which the Washington Court of Appeals reviewed 17 multiple cases and concluded that a “plaintiff must confer a benefit on the defendant to 18 satisfy the first element of unjust enrichment.” (Id. (quoting Lavington v. Hillier, 510 19 P.3d 373, 379 (Wash. Ct. App.), rev. denied, 518 P.3d 212 (Wash. 2022) (emphasis in 20 Lavington))); see also Lavington, 510 P.3d at 379 (“The defendant must receive a benefit 21 from the plaintiff for an implied contract to arise.”). The court noted that Plaintiffs 22 alleged that they paid money only to Reed Hein. (10/12/23 Order at 8; see Compl. ¶ 211

1 (alleging that “Plaintiffs conferred upon Defendants an economic benefit by entering into 2 contracts and making payments to Reed Hein” that then “flowed” to the Lampo 3 Defendants); id. ¶¶ 178-90 (alleging that each Plaintiff paid money to Reed Hein).) Thus, 4 because Plaintiffs failed to allege any direct transfer of funds from Plaintiffs to the 5 Lampo Defendants, the court dismissed Plaintiffs’ unjust enrichment claim. (10/12/23 6 Order at 7-9.) The court dismissed the claim with prejudice and without leave to amend 7 based its conclusion that Plaintiffs could “plead no facts consistent with the allegations in 8 their complaint that would enable them to cure their unjust enrichment claim.” (Id. at 9 9 (quoting Cook, Perkiss & Liehe, Inc. v. N. Cal. Collection Serv., Inc., 911 F.2d 242, 247 10 (9th Cir. 1990)).)

11 On October 26, 2023, Plaintiffs timely moved for reconsideration of the portion of 12 the October 12, 2023 order in which the court dismissed the unjust enrichment claim with 13 prejudice and without leave to amend. (See MFR at 2 (stating that plaintiffs “do not 14 request reconsideration on the dismissal of their unjust enrichment claims, but 15 respectfully request the [c]ourt reconsider its order dismissing those claims with 16 prejudice”).) They argued that they could “plausibly allege a direct transfer of 17 ownership” of Plaintiffs’ funds to the Lampo Defendants under the constructive trust 18 doctrine. (Id.; see also id. at 3-5 (setting forth the constructive trust argument).) On that 19 same day, Plaintiffs also filed a motion to amend their complaint to (1) add claims for 20 conversion and constructive trust; (2) add additional factual allegations related to their

1 claims; and (3) correct typographical and formatting errors. (See MTA at 2; Prop. Am.
2 Compl. (Dkt. # 41-1) (showing redlined changes from Plaintiffs’ original complaint).<sup>4</sup>)

3 On October 27, 2023, the court ordered the Lampo Defendants to respond to 4 Plaintiffs’ motion for reconsideration and granted Plaintiffs leave to file a reply in 5 support of their motion. (See generally 10/27/23 Order (citing Local Rules W.D. Wash.
6 LCR 7(h)(3)).) The Lampo Defendants timely responded to Plaintiffs’ motions and 7 Plaintiffs filed timely replies. (See MFR Resp.; MTA Resp.; MFR Reply; MTA Reply.)
8 Plaintiffs’ motions are now ripe for decision.

9 III. ANALYSIS

10 Below, the court first addresses Plaintiffs’ motion for reconsideration and then 11 considers Plaintiffs’ motion to amend their complaint.

12 A. Motion for Reconsideration

13 “Motions for reconsideration are disfavored,” and the court “will ordinarily deny 14 such motions in the absence of a showing of manifest error in the prior ruling or a 15 showing of new facts or legal authority which could not have been brought to its attention 16 earlier with reasonable diligence.” Local Rules W.D. Wash. LCR 7(h)(1).

17 “Reconsideration is an extraordinary remedy,” and the moving party bears a “heavy 18 burden.” Kona Enters., Inc. v. Estate of Bishop, 229 F.3d 877, 890 (9th Cir. 2000).

19 Plaintiffs ask the court to reconsider its decision to dismiss their unjust enrichment 20 claim with prejudice and without leave to amend. (See generally MFR.) They argue that 21 _____

22 <sup>4</sup> Plaintiffs also filed their redlined proposed amended complaint as an exhibit in support of their motion for reconsideration. (See Dkt. # 39-1.)

1 they can plausibly allege a direct transfer from Plaintiffs to the Lampo Defendants based 2 on a constructive trust theory. (Id.) Plaintiffs argue that “[if] a fiduciary” (here, Reed 3 Hein) “takes his or her clients’ funds from trust and gives them to a third-party” (here, the 4 Lampo Defendants), “then that is a direct transfer [from the clients to the third party] 5 because there was no intermediary change of ownership.” (Id. at 2.) Plaintiffs assert that 6 because Reed Hein failed to hold their funds in trust but instead treated their funds as 7 revenue, Reed Hein “held [Plaintiffs’] funds in constructive trust” and, as a result, Reed 8 Hein’s transfer of funds from the “constructive trust” to the Lampo Defendants must be 9 considered a direct transfer of funds from Plaintiffs. (Id.; see also Prop. Am. Compl.
10 ¶ 135 (alleging that “Reed Hein paid The Lampo Group and Dave Ramsey with customer 11 funds which should have been held in trust, but which Reed Hein treated as revenue and 12 spent”).)

13         The court declines to accept Plaintiffs’ novel theory of direct transfer. Plaintiffs 14 ask the court to conclude that when a fiduciary breaches its duty to hold its client’s funds 15 in trust by putting the funds into its own account and then transfers funds from that 16 account to a third party for its own purposes, the role of the breaching fiduciary falls out 17 of the transaction and results in a direct transfer of funds from the client to the third party.
18 They do not cite a single case, however, that supports such a holding. (See generally 19 MFR; MFR Reply.) Moreover, although Plaintiffs cite cases discussing constructive 20 trusts in their motion (see MFR at 5), they appear to have abandoned their constructive 21 trust theory of unjust enrichment in their reply (see generally MFR Reply (including no 22 mention of constructive trusts and arguing instead that because Reed Hein was a

1 fiduciary, it acted as Plaintiffs’ agent when it transferred Plaintiffs’ funds to the Lampo
2 Defendants)). The court concludes that Plaintiffs have failed to show either manifest 3 error in the court’s prior ruling dismissing their unjust enrichment claim without leave to 4 amend or new facts or legal authority which they could not have brought to the court’s 5 attention earlier with reasonable diligence. Local Rules W.D. Wash. LCR 7(h)(1).

6 Therefore, the court denies Plaintiffs’ motion for reconsideration.

7 B. Motion to Amend

8 Having concluded that Plaintiffs’ unjust enrichment claim cannot be revived, the 9 court now addresses Plaintiffs’ motion to amend their complaint to (1) add new claims 10 for conversion and constructive trust; (2) include additional factual allegations related to 11 their claims; and (3) correct typographical and formatting errors. (See MTA at 2.)

12 1. Legal Standards

13 “A party may amend its pleading once as a matter of course no later than: (A) 21 14 days after serving it, or (B) . . . 21 days after service of a responsive pleading or 21 days 15 after service of a motion [to dismiss] under Rule 12(b), (e), or (f), whichever is earlier.” 16 Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(1). “In all other cases, a party may amend its pleading only with the 17 opposing party’s written consent or the court’s leave.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(2). “The 18 court should freely give leave [to amend the complaint] when justice so requires.” Id.

19 Courts consider five factors when assessing a motion for leave to amend: (1) bad 20 faith, (2) undue delay, (3) prejudice to the opposing party, (4) futility of amendment, and 21 (5) whether the party has previously amended its pleading. Allen v. City of Beverly Hills, 22 911 F.2d 367, 373 (9th Cir. 1990) (citing Ascon Props., Inc. v. Mobil Oil Co., 866 F.2d

1 1149, 1160 (9th Cir. 1989)). Futility alone can justify denying leave to amend. Novak v.
2 United States, 795 F.3d 1012, 1020 (9th Cir. 2015) (citing Bonin v. Calderon, 59 F.3d 3 815, 845 (9th Cir. 1995)). A proposed amendment is futile “if no set of facts can be 4 proved under the amendment to the pleadings that would constitute a valid and sufficient 5 claim or defense.” Ralls v. Facebook, 221 F. Supp. 3d 1237, 1245 (W.D. Wash. 2016) 6 (quoting Miller v. Rykoff-Sexton, Inc., 845 F.2d 209, 214 (9th Cir. 1988)).

7 2. Whether Plaintiffs May Amend as a Matter of Course

8 As a threshold matter, Plaintiffs contend that they are entitled to amend their 9 complaint as a matter of course because they filed their motion to amend within 21 days 10 of the day Happy Hour Media Group filed its motion to dismiss and no party has filed a 11 responsive pleading. (MTA at 3 (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(1)); see Happy Hour MTD 12 (Dkt. # 32) (filed on October 5, 2023, and withdrawn on November 1, 2023).) As the 13 Lampo Defendants point out, however, the weight of authority in the Ninth Circuit holds 14 that where the 21-day period has expired as to some defendants but not to others, the 15 plaintiff may amend as a matter of course only as to the defendants for whom the 21-day 16 period has not yet expired. (MTA Resp. at 4-5 (quoting Hylton v. Anytime Towing, No.
17 11CV1039 JLS (WMc), 2012 WL 1019829, at *2 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 26, 2012), and citing 18 additional cases so holding).) Thus, although Plaintiffs have a right to amend their 19 complaint as a matter of course with respect to their claims against Happy Hour Media 20 Group, they do not have that right with respect to their claims against the Lampo 21 Defendants, who served their motion to dismiss in August 2023. (See Lampo MTD (Dkt.
22 # 25) (filed on August 10, 2023).) Therefore, the court grants Plaintiffs’ motion to amend

1 their complaint with respect to Happy Hour Media Group<sup>5</sup> and proceeds to consider 2 Plaintiffs’ motion for leave to amend their allegations and claims against the Lampo
3 Defendants.

4 3. Whether to Grant Leave to Amend

5 Plaintiffs seek leave to amend their complaint to (1) add a new claim for 6 conversion; (2) add a new stand-alone claim for constructive trust; and (3) include 7 additional factual allegations regarding Defendants’ record keeping. (MTA at 3-4.) The 8 court considers each in turn.

9 a. Conversion

10 Plaintiffs seek leave to amend their complaint to allege a new claim against all 11 Defendants for conversion. (MTA at 3-4; see Prop. Am. Compl. ¶¶ 236-42; see also id.
12 ¶¶ 111-14.) The court grants Plaintiffs’ request.

13 “Conversion is the unjustified, willful interference with a chattel which deprives a 14 person entitled to the property of possession.” In re Marriage of Langham & Kolde, 106 15 P.3d 212, 218 (Wash. 2005) (quoting Meyers Way Dev. Ltd. P’ship v. Univ. Sav. Bank, 16 910 P.2d 1308, 1320 (Wash. Ct. App. 1996)). The plaintiff must have a property interest 17 in the allegedly converted chattel. Id. at 219. Money can be converted “only if the 18 defendant ‘wrongfully received’ the money or ‘was under obligation to return the specific 19 money to the party claiming it.’” Davenport v. Wash. Educ. Ass’n, 197 P.3d 686, 695

21 <sup>5</sup> Plaintiffs’ proposed amendments with respect to Happy Hour Media Group include 22 “additional information regarding [its] role in the alleged conspiracy and negligent misrepresentation.” (MTA Reply at 8.)

1 (Wash. Ct. App. 2008) (quoting Pub. Util. Dist. of Lewis County v. Wash. Pub. Power 2 Supply Sys., 705 P.2d 1195, 1211 (Wash. 1985)). A claim for conversion of money is 3 possible only where the money is “is capable of being identified, as when delivered at 4 one time, by one act and in one mass, or when the deposit is special and the identical 5 money is to be kept for the party making the deposit, or when wrongful possession of 6 such property is obtained.” Brown ex rel. Richards v. Brown, 239 P.3d 602, 610 (Wash.
7 Ct. App. 2010) (quoting Westview Invs., Ltd. v. U.S. Bank Nat’l Ass’n, 138 P.3d 638, 646
8 (Wash. Ct. App. 2006)).)

9 Defendants argue that Plaintiffs’ proposed amendments are futile because 10 Plaintiffs’ own allegations show “that Reed Hein mixed customer funds with other 11 money, and treated these comingled funds as general revenue, before ever paying money 12 to the Lampo Defendants.” (MTA Resp. at 9 (citing Prop. Am. Compl. ¶¶ 135, 236).) 13 They cite Brown ex rel. Richards v. Brown for the proposition that “it is impossible to 14 identify ‘specific’ and ‘identical’ money belonging to Plaintiffs, and subsequently 15 received by the Lampo Defendants.” (Id. (citing Brown, 239 P.3d at 610).) Plaintiffs 16 counter that (1) Brown did not use the word “specific” in listing the ways money is 17 “capable of being identified,” (2) they make no allegation that Reed Hein commingled 18 the funds it was supposed to be holding in trust for Plaintiffs with other funds, and (3) 19 even if they did, their claim nevertheless survives because Brown involved comingled 20 funds and a transfer of those funds to a third party. (MTA Reply at 5-6.)

21 The court agrees with Plaintiffs. Brown involved reverse mortgage proceeds 22 belonging to the plaintiff that the plaintiff’s son had wrongfully transferred from a joint

1 bank account to his own personal account, which already had funds in it. Brown, 239
2 P.3d at 610. The son then transferred $20,000 from his account to his girlfriend’s 3 personal bank account, which also already had funds in it. Id. The Washington Court of 4 Appeals reversed the trial court’s grant of summary judgment to the plaintiff on her 5 conversion claim against the girlfriend, concluding that “reasonable minds could differ” 6 on whether the girlfriend’s “retention of the $20,000 constitutes an intentional and 7 wrongful exercise of dominion and control over it.” Id.

8 In so holding, the Washington Court of Appeals noted that “a substantial portion” 9 of the $20,000 transfer was identifiable because this sum was far greater than the original 10 balances in the plaintiff’s joint account with her son and the son’s personal account.
11 Id. n.23. Thus, “even assuming that [the son] used non-equity funds first” when 12 transferring the $20,000 to his girlfriend, the difference between the $20,000 and the 13 original bank balances was identifiable loan proceeds. Id. As a result, Plaintiffs are 14 correct that even if Reed Hein commingled their money with other funds, a conversion 15 claim may nevertheless proceed if Plaintiffs can show that money that Reed Hein was 16 supposed to hold in trust but instead transferred to Defendants remains identifiable.<sup>6</sup>

19 <sup>6</sup> Defendants cite SPUS8 Dakota LP v. KNR Contractors LLC, 641 F. Supp. 3d 682, 700 20 (D. Ariz. 2022), for the proposition that “as a matter of blackletter Washington law, money is not 21 identifiable chattel subject to conversion where an initial converter ‘failed to segregate the 22 specific amounts.’” (MTA Resp. at 9.) Contrary to Defendants’ assertion, that case applies Arizona law and cites only Arizona cases. See SPUS8 Dakota, 641 F. Supp. 3d at 700-01. Thus, it is not authority for “blackletter Washington law.” In any event, SPUS8 Dakota makes clear that “money can be the subject of a conversion claim if the money ‘can be described, identified, or segregated.’” Id. (quoting Hannibal-Fisher v. Grand Canyon Univ., 523 F. Supp. 3d 1087, 1098 (D. Ariz. 2021) (emphasis added)).

1 Because this is a question of fact that cannot be resolved at this stage of the proceedings, 2 the court grants Plaintiffs’ motion to amend their complaint to assert a claim for 3 conversion.

4 b. Constructive Trust

5 Plaintiffs also seek leave to amend their complaint to allege a new claim against 6 all Defendants for constructive trust. (MTA at 3-4; Prop. Am. Compl. ¶¶ 244-48; see 7 also id. ¶¶ 106, 111-14, 135.) The court denies this request.

8 The court agrees with Defendants that Plaintiffs cannot plausibly allege a claim for 9 constructive trust because a constructive trust is a remedy, rather than a substantive 10 claim, and thus amendment would be futile. (See MTA Resp. at 7-8.) The Washington 11 Court of Appeals recently held, in an unpublished case,<sup>7</sup> that “a constructive trust is a 12 remedy, not a substantive claim” and affirmed dismissal of a constructive trust claim 13 where the petitioner did not “allege sufficient facts to establish a substantive claim that 14 could support the remedy.” In re Rule, 23 Wash. App. 2d 1005, No. 83097-0-1, 2022 15 WL 3152591 at *2-*3 (Wash. Ct. App. Aug. 8, 2022) (unpublished) (citing In re Gilbert 16 Miller Testamentary Credit Shelter Tr. v. Estate of Miller, 462 P.3d 878, 883 (Wash. Ct.
17 App. 2020)); see also id. at *3 (holding that petitioner did not state a claim for unjust 18 enrichment because she failed to allege a benefit conferred on the defendant by the

20 21 <sup>7</sup> Although unpublished opinions of the Washington Court of Appeals “have no 22 precedential value and are not binding upon any court,” they “may be accorded such persuasive value as the court deems appropriate.” Wash. Gen. Rule GR 14.1; see also Emps. Ins. of Wausau v. Granite State Ins. Co., 330 F.3d 1214, 1220 n.8 (9th Cir. 2003) (“[W]e may consider unpublished state decisions, even though such opinions have no precedential value.”).

1 plaintiff). The court disagrees with Plaintiffs’ assertion that it should follow two of its 2 prior decisions in which it denied motions to dismiss stand-alone constructive trust 3 claims: Woodell v. Expedia Inc., No. C19-0051JLR, 2019 WL 3287896, at *12-13 (W.D.
4 Wash. July 22, 2019); and Aventa Learning, Inc. v. K12 Inc., No. C10-1022JLR, 2011 5 WL 13100748, at *10 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 28, 2011). (See MTA Reply at 6-7.) These 6 cases pre-date In re Rule, and the court is persuaded by the Washington Court of 7 Appeals’s unequivocal statement in that decision that “[n]o authority . . . supports the 8 position [that] a constructive trust is a substantive cause of action, rather than an 9 equitable remedy.” In re Rule, 2022 WL 3152591, at *2. Therefore, the court denies 10 Plaintiffs’ motion to amend their complaint to add a stand-alone constructive trust claim.

11 c. Additional Allegations

12 Finally, Plaintiffs also seek leave to add new allegations regarding Defendants’ 13 record-keeping related to customer referrals to Reed Hein “to support the plausibility of 14 class certification” and to correct typographical and formatting errors. (MTA at 3-4; 15 MTA Reply at 7-8; see Prop. Am. Compl. ¶¶ 145-53 (record-keeping allegations).) 16 Defendants respond only that Plaintiffs’ proposed factual amendments are unnecessary if 17 the court denies Plaintiffs leave to add or amend their claims. (MTA Resp. at 1 n.1.) 18 Because nothing in the record demonstrates that Plaintiffs’ proposed amendments are in 19 bad faith, unduly delayed, prejudicial to Defendants, or futile, see Allen, 911 F.2d at 373.
20 the court grants Plaintiffs leave to amend to add allegations regarding record-keeping and 21 to correct errors.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the court DENIES Plaintiffs’ motion for reconsideration (Dkt. # 38) and GRANTS in part Plaintiffs’ motion to amend (Dkt. # 40). The court DENIES Plaintiffs’ request for leave to amend their unjust enrichment claim and to add a stand-alone claim for constructive trust. The court GRANTS Plaintiffs’ request for leave to amend (1) with respect to their claims against Happy Hour Media Group, (2) to add a claim for conversion against all Defendants, (3) to add new factual allegations regarding Defendants’ record-keeping, and (4) to address typographical and formatting errors. Plaintiffs shall file an amended complaint that complies with this order by no later than December 15, 2023.

Dated this 5th day of December, 2023.
