

HONORABLE RONALD B. LEIGHTON

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT TACOMA

NAUTILUS, INC.,

Plaintiff,

v.

ICON HEALTH & FITNESS, INC.,

Defendant.

CASE NO. C16-5393-RBL

ORDER GRANTING LEAVE TO AMEND AND TO TRANSFER

DKT. #46

THIS MATTER is before the Court on Defendant ICON’s Motion [Dkt. #46] for leave to amend its answer. ICON seeks to deny that venue is proper, and asks the Court to transfer the case to Utah, where ICON actually has a place of business.

Plaintiff Nautilus claims ICON’s “FreeStrider Elliptical” exercise machine infringes upon four of Nautilus’s patents for “variable stride technology” in such machines. Nautilus initially alleged (and ICON admitted) that venue was proper in this District, because ICON sells its devices to Washington residents, online.

ICON’s venue motion was triggered by the Supreme Court’s recent holding that venue for a patent infringement case against a domestic corporation is proper only where it is incorporated or where it has committed alleged acts of infringement and has a “regular and

1 established place of business.” TC Heartland LLC v. Kraft Foods Group Brands LLC, No. 16–
2 341, 2017 U.S. LEXIS 3213 (May 22, 2017). It is undisputed that ICON is not incorporated here
3 and does not have an established place of business here. It asks the Court to transfer the case to 4 Utah (where is does have an established place of business) under 28 U.S.C. § 1400<sup>1</sup> (the venue
5 provision for patent cases).

6 DISCUSSION

7 Nautilus sued ICON in May 2016, and TC Heartland was decided a year later. The 8 Markman hearing in this case is scheduled for October 13, and in accordance with the Court’s
9 scheduling order, the parties filed a joint claim chart and pre-hearing statement on August 18—
10 the day after ICON filed this motion.

11 In determining whether to grant leave to amend under Rule 15, the Court considers five 12 factors: “bad faith, undue delay, prejudice to the opposing party, futility of amendment, and 13 whether the plaintiff has previously amended the complaint.” United States v. Corinthian 14 Colleges, 655 F.3d 984, 995 (9th Cir. 2011) (emphasis added). Among these factors, prejudice to 15 the opposing party carries the greatest weight. Eminence Capital, 316 F.3d at 1052.

16 Nautilus argues that ICON unreasonably delayed bringing its motion, noting the passage
17 of time between the opinion and the motion (87 days). It argues that ICON continued to litigate
18 in this district after TC Heartland, waiving the venue defect, and that transfer at this late stage 19 would be unduly prejudicial, because its patents expire in less than four years and moving the 20 case would delay trial by at least a year.

21
23 <sup>1</sup> ICON’s Motion also mentions §1404(a) (transfer for convenience) but its Reply makes clear that the motion is 24 based on TC Heartland and the venue statute it construes—§1400. The gist of the dispute is whether venue is proper, not whether a different proper venue would be more convenient.

1           ICON denies that its conduct or the passage of time amounts to a waiver of its venue
2 challenge. The “litigation” in which it engaged in the interim consisted of stipulations, a request
3 for a case management conference, and its court-required participation in drafting the joint
4 statement. It argues that the impact of TC Heartland was not immediately known (specifically
5 whether it applied retroactively), and that it was at the same time awaiting word from the PTAB
6 about its (unsuccessful) challenge to Nautilus’s patents. Indeed, it had sought a stay while the 7 PTAB process was ongoing.

8           It also argues that in TC Heartland’s wake, a number of cases have held that it was an
9 intervening change of law excusing or precluding waiver, citing opinions from this Circuit, this
10 District, and this Court. It points out that the Oregon District Court recently (September 5)
11 transferred a similar case after the Markman hearing, after dispositive motions, and only ten days
12 before trial, because the defendant did not reside in Oregon, or have a regular, established place
13 of business there. Like Nautilus, the plaintiff there argued that the defendant had waived the 14 venue objection through its litigation conduct and the passage of time. Indeed, the showing of 15 prejudice to the plaintiff there was far greater than Nautilus’s showing here. Nevertheless, under 16 § 1406, the Court held that prejudice to the plaintiff was not a relevant consideration.

17           This Court is not prepared to go quite that far, but it is clear that any prejudice to Nautilus
18 stems not from ICON’s conduct or inaction, but from TC Heartland and the Utah Court’s
19 calendar. The work that was done in the 87 days between the opinion and motion in preparation
20 for the Markman hearing was not wasted; the parties can presumably use the same document in 21 Utah. In any event, the short delay in bringing the motion did not cause a one year delay in the 22 trial.

1 Venue is improper in this District. ICON's Motion to Amend its answer to so allege is
2 GRANTED, and its Motion to Transfer is also GRANTED.

3 The case is TRANSFERRED to the District of Utah, where venue is proper.

4 IT IS SO ORDERED.

5 Dated this 13th day of September, 2017.
