MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Pending are certain motions to remand filed on various dates in each of the above-styled adversary proceedings except for Christian v. Freedom Industries, Inc., 2:14-14861. These motions are subject to a briefing order entered in the bankruptcy court on March 27, 2014.

The assignment of these formerly miscellaneous actions was entered April 10, 2014. On April 16, 2014, the court withdrew the references of the cases to the bankruptcy court. The court presently has under consideration certain administrative steps to achieve the just, speedy, and efficient resolution of the litigation. The purpose of this memorandum opinion and order is to address a limited consolidation of the cases pending the further order of the court.

I.

Freedom is a West Virginia corporation engaged primarily in the production of specialty chemicals for the mining, steel, and cement industries. It is also a leading supplier of freeze conditioning agents, dust control palliatives, flotation reagents, water treatment polymers, and other specialty chemicals. Freedom operates two production facilities in West Virginia, namely, in Nitro ("Nitro Facility") and Charleston ("Charleston Facility").

On January 9, 2014, an apparent leak occurred in one of Freedom's storage tanks located at the Charleston Facility. On January 17, 2014 ("Petition Date"), Freedom petitioned in this district for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101.

At the time of filing of the omnibus motions to withdraw reference, 62 civil actions had been instituted against various defendants relating to the incident. Freedom contends it is foreseeable that, in those cases where it is not named, parties will assert indemnity or contribution claims against it at a later time. On February 21 and 22, 2014, Freedom removed to the bankruptcy court those state actions in which it was named a defendant. On February 24, 2014, West Virginia American

Water Company ("WVAWC") removed to this court as "related-to" cases each of the state actions in which Freedom was not named.¹

The factual allegations in all of the cases arise from the alleged leak. According to Freedom, the claims vary and rely on a range of legal and equitable theories. No one disputes, however, that the plaintiffs assert one or more of four categories of claims as follows: (a) physical personal injury tort claims, such as bodily injury, emotional distress and/or requests for medical monitoring to detect bodily injury in the future; (b) non-physical personal injury tort claims, such as annoyance, loss of enjoyment, nuisance and inconvenience; (c) property-related claims, such as trespass, property damage, and loss of use of property; and (d) financial claims, such as lost income or loss-of-business claims.

¹ Two cases were instituted in the district court invoking federal question jurisdiction. Two more were removed and invoke diversity jurisdiction under the Class Action Fairness Act ("CAFA") and 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2). The remaining actions were instituted in various state circuit courts and removed as adversary proceedings pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334 and 1452(a).

II.

A. The Governing Standard

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 42(a) provides as follows:

(a) Consolidation. If actions before the court involve a common question of law or fact, the court may:

- (1) join for hearing or trial any or all matters at issue in the actions;
- (2) consolidate the actions; or
- (3) issue any other orders to avoid unnecessary cost or delay.

Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 42(a).

Our court of appeals affords broad discretion to district courts in assessing the desirability of consolidation, recognizing the superiority of the trial court in determining how best to structure similar pieces of litigation. See A/S J. Ludwig Mowinckles Rederi v. Tidewater Const. Co., 559 F.2d 928, 933 (4th Cir. 1977) ("District courts have broad discretion under F.R.Civ.P. 42(a) to consolidate causes pending in the same district."). It has, however, provided guidelines for exercising that discretion. See Arnold v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc., 681 F.2d 186, 193 (4th Cir. 1982). Those guidelines essentially balance the specific risks of prejudice and possible confusion with the potential for inconsistent adjudications of common factual and legal issues and the burden on available judicial resources posed by multiple lawsuits. Id. at 193. Efficiency from a time and cost perspective are also considered. Id.

The risk of inconsistent adjudications, substantial expense to the parties, and inefficient use of court resources markedly increases here if the court declines consolidation at least to some extent. Consolidation for purposes of adjudicating the motions for remand, with coordinated and consolidated briefing, would avoid each of those undesirable outcomes and diminish the chances of confusion and prejudice that might otherwise result.

For example, an individual consideration of dozens of sets of remand briefs, with differing arguments by the parties, might lead to remand in some cases but not others depending upon the precise grounds raised by particular plaintiffs seeking a return to state court. The length of time required to resolve each of these actions separately, and the expenses associated therewith, also militate strongly in favor of consolidation as to the remand motions.

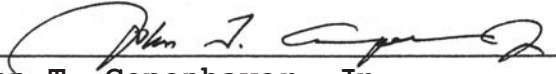

Based upon the foregoing, a limited consolidation is appropriate. Additionally, other initial procedural devices are in order at this time. The court, accordingly, ORDERS as follows:

1. That the above-styled civil actions be, and hereby are, consolidated for purposes of briefing and resolving the matter of remand;
2. That Desimone Hospitality Services v. West Virginia American Water Company, civil action 2:14-14845, be and hereby is, designated as the lead case, with all further filings to be captioned and docketed in that case pending the further order of the court;
3. That counsel for the parties be, and hereby are, directed to designate by agreement no more than three of their number from each the plaintiff and the defendant sides to serve as liaison counsel for purposes of the consultations required below and to notice the designated lawyers on the record on or before May 1, 2014; and
4. That, in lieu of the briefing order entered in the bankruptcy court on March 27, 2014, liaison counsel be, and hereby are, directed to meet and confer no later than May 8, 2014, for purposes of arriving at a proposed stipulated briefing schedule designed to result in a single set of omnibus briefing that addresses all of the arguments for remand found in the pending remand motions.

The Clerk is directed to forward copies of this written opinion and order to all counsel of record.

DATED: April 18, 2014

John T. Copenhaver, Jr.
United States District Judge
