v.

ORDER ON MOTION FOR
SUMMARY JUDGMENT

SADDLEBACK, INC.

Defendant

Before the court is defendant Saddleback, Inc.'s motion for summary judgment. Plaintiff Kathy Raithel's complaint alleges two counts, including one count of negligence and one count of premises liability against the defendant ski resort. She alleges that she suffered injuries as a result of the defendant's failure to properly supervise the chairlift loading area and stop the chairlift in a timely manner. Saddleback has moved for summary judgment on the grounds that Raithel's claim requires expert testimony to establish the standard of care, and Raithel has failed to designate an expert in this case. For the following reasons, defendant's motion is granted in part and denied in part.

FACTS

The following facts are presented in a light most favorable to plaintiff as the non-moving party. Raithel was skiing at Saddleback ski resort on March 23, 2013. (Def.'s Supp. S.M.F. ¶ 1.) She suffered injuries when she entered the skier loading area of the Kennebago quad chairlift and was struck by a moving chair. (Def.'s Supp. S.M.F. ¶ 2.) Raithel prematurely skied across the "wait here" line when there were already skiers standing at the "load here" line where skiers board the chairlift. (Def.'s Supp. S.M.F. ¶¶ 2, 6.) At the time of the accident, two Saddleback employees were standing next to the “load here” line to help skiers onto the chairs. (Def.’s Supp. S.M.F. ¶ 7.) One of the lift operators shouted at Raithel to stop and back up when she entered the loading area. (Def.’s Supp. S.M.F. ¶ 8.) Raithel did not see the chair until she entered the loading area and was struck by the chair. Music was playing through external speakers at the Kennebago lift at the time of the accident. (Pl.’s Add. S.M.F. ¶¶ 18, 42.)

Normally on weekends at Saddleback there is a lift attendant at the “wait here” line to ensure that skiers do not move into the loading area until it is their turn to board a chair. (Pl.’s Add. S.M.F. ¶¶ 1-2.) At the time of the accident, however, the lift attendant assigned to the “wait here” line was eating lunch inside the lift shack. (Pl.’s Add. S.M.F. ¶¶ 3-4.) Saddleback’s Mountain Manager James Quimby admitted that one reason Saddleback has an employee working the “wait here” line is that occasionally skiers prematurely ski past the line. (Pl.’s Add. S.M.F. ¶ 39.)

Raithel alleges that Saddleback should have had an attendant working at the “wait here” line, that the attendants in the load zone were distracted by the music playing through external speakers, and that the employees failed to timely turn off the lift after she was struck. Raithel filed her complaint on March 19, 2014. Saddleback moved for summary judgment on January 7, 2015.

DISCUSSION

1. Summary Judgment Standard

“Summary judgment is appropriate if the record reflects that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Dussault v. RRE Coach Lantern Holdings, LLC, 2014 ME 8, ¶ 12, 86 A.3d 52 (quoting F.R. Carroll, Inc. v. TD Bank, N.A., 2010 ME 115, ¶ 8, 8 A.3d 646). “A material fact is one that can affect the outcome of the case, and there is a genuine issue when there is sufficient evidence for a fact-finder to choose between competing versions of the fact.” McIlroy v. Gibson’s Apple Orchard, 2012 ME 59, ¶ 7, 43 A.3d 948 (quoting N. E. Ins. Co. v. Young, 2011 ME 89, ¶ 17, 26 A.3d 794). “Even when one party’s version of the facts appears more credible and persuasive to the court, any genuine factual dispute must be resolved through fact-finding, regardless of the nonmoving party’s likelihood of success.” Lewis v. Concord Gen. Mut. Ins. Co., 2014 ME 34, ¶ 10, 87 A.3d 732. If facts are undisputed but nevertheless capable of supporting conflicting, plausible inferences, “the choice between those inferences is not for the court on summary judgment.” Id.

2. Necessity of Expert Testimony

Saddleback argues that Raithel’s failure to designate an expert witness is fatal to her claim because, without an expert, she cannot establish the standard of care for a lift operator. “Where a court imposes a duty in a negligence case, that duty is to conform to the legal standard of reasonable conduct in the light of the apparent risk.” Reid v. Town of Mount Vernon, 2007 ME 125, ¶ 15, 932 A.2d 539 (internal quotation omitted). “Although deviation from the standard of care must ordinarily be established by expert testimony, an exception will lie where the trier of fact can readily determine without expert assistance whether the defendant’s conduct departed from the standard of care.” Dep’t of Human Servs. v. Earle, 481 A.2d 175, 179 (Me. 1984). The parties cannot identify any Maine authority that governs this issue.

Courts from other jurisdictions have concluded “that in negligence cases against ski resorts and related industries with specialized equipment and operations, expert testimony is required because an average person would not have knowledge of standards of care in those industries and thus would be forced to speculate about how a reasonable [ski resort operator] would act.” Callister v. Snowbird Corp., 337 P.3d 1044, 1050 (Ct. App. UT 2014) (internal quotation omitted). These cases, however, primarily concern the mechanical operation of a ski lift. See also Cowan v. Tyrolean Ski Area, Inc., 506 A.2d 690, 693 (N.H. 1985) (“[T]he mechanics of ski lifts are outside common experience, and jurors would need the benefit of expert testimony before they could reasonably eliminate all probable causal negligence but that of the defendant-operator.”); see also Willink v. Boyne, USA, Inc., 987 F. Supp. 2d 1082, 1084 (D. Mont. 2013) (“Whether or not a chairlift complies with current standards . . . in terms of construction and operation is not readily ascertainable to a lay person.”).

Raithel’s claim that Saddleback should have had another employee monitoring the “wait here” line at the lift does not involve any scientific or technical knowledge. Expert testimony will likely not be required on this issue. See O’Brien v. Ski Sundown, Inc., 2002 WL 31304179, at *1 (Conn. Super. Ct. 2002). Saddleback may renew its motion for judgment as a matter of law at trial if Raithel fails to introduce sufficient evidence regarding the standard of care.

Raithel’s claim that the lift operators failed to timely shut down the lift, however, does require technical knowledge. That claim goes to the operation of the lift itself, which involves knowledge beyond that of an ordinary juror. For example, the lift may require time to come to a complete stop after a lift attendant presses the button, in which case it would not have been possible to prevent the chair from colliding with Raithel. Without expert testimony explaining how the lift actually operates, Raithel will not be able to prove the lift operators acted negligently. Accordingly, defendant's motion is granted with respect to that allegation only.

The entry is:

Defendant's motion for summary judgment is granted as follows: plaintiff is precluded from arguing that defendant negligently failed to shut down or otherwise operate the lift. Defendant's motion is otherwise denied.
