STATE OF MAINE

v.

MANLEY DAVIS,

Defendant

ORDER ON DEFENDANT'S
MOTION TO DISMISS

BACKGROUND

The defendant seeks a dismissal of the indictment dated 11/18/09 based on the State's failure to provide discovery. The defendant is alleged to have committed arson and conspiracy to commit arson on or about 1/1/08 and arson and conspiracy to commit arson on or about 9/16/05.

The court has, finally, obtained transcripts and listened to tapes of the various hearings and docket calls in this case. The defendant's motions for discovery were heard on April 8, 2010. The motion to disclose inducements was granted without objection. The motion for access to evidence was granted without objection. The motion to provide enclosures referred to in the report of the Office of State Fire Marshall was granted without objection. The motion for discovery was granted without objection regarding the requests in paragraphs 1-3 and 5-12. The request in paragraph 4 was withdrawn but the State agreed to provide whether any money had been paid as part of any inducements.

On 6/10/10, docket call for the June 2010 trial list was held. Defense counsel had not received discovery. The State's attorney was checking to determine whether the discovery requested existed. The presiding justice inquired whether the case could proceed on the June trial list and both attorneys agreed the case could not proceed. The justice said the case would be continued to the July trial list and said to tell the Fire Marshall's office to "get moving."

On 7/8/10, the State's response to the motion for discovery was discussed on the record with the court and attorneys. The material requested in paragraph 1 had been provided and the material requested in paragraph 2 did not exist. The material requested in paragraph 5 had not been provided. Defense counsel indicated he needed the tapes as well as transcriptions. The court inquired where the tapes were located. The State's attorney stated the tapes were at the Fire Marshall's Office and had been requested by the State "a week ago." Defense counsel asked if this could be looked into and if the State could "let [defense counsel] know ASAP." Defense counsel also had not received the material requested in paragraphs 8, 10, and 12.

The defendant's motion to dismiss was filed on 9/7/10. Hearing was scheduled for 9/9/10 but the State's attorney familiar with the case was unavailable. The defendant did not object to rescheduling the motion but the parties agreed that, for the purposes of the motion to dismiss, the dispositive date for the State's providing discovery would be 9/9/10. (Tr. of 11/3/10 at 14.) At the rescheduled hearing on 11/3/10, defense counsel stated that he still had not been given some of the tapes and other discovery. Some of the CDs produced were inaudible. (Tr. of 11/3/10 at 14, 16-17.) The State admitted that some of the material listed in paragraphs c, d, and e of the motion to dismiss had been provided after the 9/9/10 date. (Mot. to Dismiss at 2; Tr. of 11/3/10 at 24-25.)

Absent the failure to provide discovery and the resulting motion to dismiss, this case could have been tried in June, July, September, and November 2010 and January 2011.

CONCLUSIONS

A defendant's "access to materials to be used against him at trial and in possession of the state is governed by Rule 16(a), M.R.Crim.P." State v. Buzynski, 330 A.2d 422, 429 (Me. 1974). "The basic premise behind Rule 16 is that discovery can have the same beneficial effects in criminal cases that it has in civil actions and should, therefore, be permitted. It can eliminate concealment and surprise; thereby destroying the 'sporting' aspects of a criminal trial. It can assist in the fair and expeditious disposition of cases prior to trial. It can eliminate any imbalance which exists between the parties as to the means and ability to secure evidence. Finally, it can assure a fuller presentation of the evidence to the trier of fact." Glassman, Maine Practice: Rules of Criminal Procedure Annotated, § 16.1 (1967); see also 1 Cluchey & Seitzinger, Maine Criminal Practice § 16.1 at IV-86 (Gardner ed. 1995). The Law Court has determined that the rule "should be liberally interpreted and applied." State v. Cloutier, 302 A.2d 84, 87 (Me. 1973).

Rule 16(d) allows the following action for the State's failure to provide discovery: "requiring the attorney for the state to comply, granting the defendant additional time or a continuance, relieving the defendant from making a disclosure required by Rule 16A, prohibiting the attorney for the state from introducing specified evidence and dismissing the charges with prejudice." M.R. Crim. P. 16(d). The court has the authority to decide whether any sanction for a Rule 16 violation is required and, if so, which sanction should be applied. State v. Landry, 459 A.2d 175, 177 (Me. 1983). "The primary test is whether the ruling was in furtherance of justice." Id.; 1 Cluchey &

Seitzinger, Maine Criminal Practice § 16.6 at IV-99 to IV-100 (Gardner ed. 1995) (“The basic test for the appropriateness of a sanction will be whether it is in furtherance of justice and so long as the trial justice has not abused his or her discretion the choice of sanction will not be set aside on appeal.”)

In order to establish that the trial justice abused her discretion, the defendant must show that “he was, in fact, prejudiced by the discovery violation despite the court’s effort to nullify or minimize its consequences, and that the prejudice rose to the level of depriving him of a fair trial.” State v. Sargent, 656 A.2d 1196, 1199 (Me. 1995). Prejudice may rise to the level of a deprivation if the defendant is “[s]o unfairly surprised or prejudiced that the admission of the [evidence] constitute[s] an abuse of discretion.” State v. Sapiel, 432 A.2d 1262, 1268 (Me. 1981).

This is not the typical case in which evidence is not produced in a timely way and then is used at trial. See e.g., State v. Graham, 2010 ME 60, ¶ 10, 998 A.2d 339, 341 (no abuse of discretion when defendant had the chance to introduce the exculpatory portions of a report and the defendant had access to the same information elsewhere); Sargent, 656 A.2d at 1199 (no abuse of discretion when the State provided lineup report after mistrial but twenty months before second trial); Landry, 459 A.2d at 177-78 (no abuse of discretion in allowing use of letter for impeachment when defendant was aware of letter before testifying); Sapiel, 432 A.2d at 1268 (no abuse of discretion in admitting photographs of stolen property already discovered by the defendant); State v. Rich, 395 A.2d 1123, 1130-31 (Me. 1978) (no abuse of discretion allowing witnesses to testify when defense counsel was aware of their probable appearances seven days prior to trial); State v. LeClair, 382 A.2d 30, 33 (Me. 1978) (no abuse of discretion allowing photographs with officer’s notes of bullet holes when defendant had access to bullet holes and prosecutor showed photographs to defense counsel prior to trial); Buzynski, 330 A.2d at 429 (defendant knew test results existed, did not ask for them, and made no showing of prejudice to his defense by not having test results); Cloutier, 302 A.2d at 89 (denial of defendant's request for release of drug not abuse of discretion). This case involves evidence that existed at or significantly before the time of indictment and simply has not been provided,¹ in spite of many court proceedings in which the State was strongly encouraged to do so.² Although the State has offered explanations for the failure to provide discovery, the State has offered no valid justification for that failure. (Tr. of 11/3/10 at 31-32.)

Every goal to be achieved by providing discovery in a criminal case has been thwarted in this case. See Glassman, Maine Practice: Rules of Criminal Procedure Annotated § 16.1 (1967). Justice will not be furthered by condoning neglect with regard to providing discovery. The delay in the defendant's ability to investigate the case and determine whether to proceed to trial has been significant, unnecessary, and prejudicial. (Tr. of 11/3/10 at 20-22.)

Clearly a Rule 16(d) sanction is required. In this case, the attorney for the State has been told numerous times to comply with discovery requests. Several continuances and additional time have been granted. The court is not aware that any automatic or requested disclosure from the defendant is relevant to this case and no disclosure from the defendant has been ordered. Prohibiting introduction of unseen and potentially exculpatory evidence could ultimately prejudice the defendant. See M.R. Crim. P. 16(d). Accordingly, the suggested sanctions in Rule 16, except for dismissal, have been imposed or are not appropriate. Id. Based on the history of this case, the court has no expectation that additional time or admonishment would resolve the impasse.

¹ This is also not a situation involving delay because, for example, testing must be performed at the State laboratory and there is a backlog.

² The court does not in any way suggest bad faith on the part of the State's attorney in this case. The good faith of the State's attorney is immaterial to a determination of a Rule 16 violation, although it may be relevant to determining a sanction. Landry, 459 A.2d at 177.
