No. 2020-M-00630

A/K/A JAMES BROWN

Petitioner

v.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

Respondent

ORDER

This matter is before the Court on the Motion for Authorization to Proceed With Petition U.S.C. 2254 Habeas Corpus From the Court of Appeal filed pro se by James Devon Brown. The filing is in the nature of a petition for post-conviction relief and is considered as such. The Court finds that Brown's previous petitions for post-conviction relief have been denied and that the present filing is successive. Miss. Code Ann. § 99-39-27 (Rev. 2020). The Court further finds that the issues raised in this petition have been considered and rejected in prior proceedings. These claims are barred by res judicata. Miss. Code Ann. § 99-39-21 (Rev. 2020). Notwithstanding the procedural bars, we find that Brown has presented no arguable basis for his claims and that the petition should be denied. See Means v. State, 43 So. 3d 438, 442 (Miss. 2010).

The Court further finds that Brown has previously been warned that future filings deemed frivolous could result in restrictions on his ability to file applications for post-conviction relief in forma pauperis. We find that this application is frivolous and that sanctions are warranted.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the Motion for Authorization to Proceed With Petition U.S.C. 2254 Habeas Corpus From the Court of Appeal filed pro se by James Devon Brown is denied.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Brown is hereby restricted from filing further applications for post-conviction collateral relief (or pleadings in that nature) that are related to this conviction and sentence in forma pauperis. The Clerk of this Court shall not accept for filing any further applications for post-conviction collateral relief (or pleadings in that nature) from Brown that are related to this conviction and sentence unless he pays the applicable docket fee.

SO ORDERED.

TO DENY WITHOUT SANCTIONS: KITCHENS AND KING, P.JJ.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF MISSISSIPPI

NO. 2020-M-00630

James Devon Brown a/k/a James D.
Brown a/k/a James Brown

v.

State of Mississippi

KING, PRESIDING JUSTICE, OBJECTING TO THE ORDER WITH SEPARATE WRITTEN STATEMENT:

¶1. Today, this Court prioritizes efficiency over justice and bars James Devon Brown from its doors. Because the imposition of monetary sanctions against indigent defendants and the restriction of access to the court system serve only to punish those defendants and to violate rights guaranteed by the United States and Mississippi Constitutions, I strongly oppose this Court’s order restricting Brown from filing further petitions for post-conviction collateral relief in forma pauperis.

¶2. This Court seems to tire of reading motions that it deems “frivolous” and imposes monetary sanctions on indigent defendants. The Court then bars those defendants, who in all likelihood are unable to pay the imposed sanctions, from future filings. In choosing to prioritize efficiency over justice, this Court forgets the oath that each justice took before assuming office. That oath stated in relevant part, “I . . . solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich. . . .” Miss. Const. art. 6, § 155. Yet this Court deems the frequency of Brown’s filings to be too onerous a burden and decides to restrict Brown from filing subsequent applications for post-conviction collateral relief. See In re McDonald, 489 U.S. 180, 186–87, 109 S. Ct. 993, 997, 103 L. Ed. 2d 158 (1989) (Brennan, J., dissenting) (“I continue to find puzzling the Court’s fervor in ensuring that rights granted to the poor are not abused, even when so doing actually increases the drain on our limited resources.”).

¶3. Article 3, section 25, of the Mississippi Constitution provides that “no person shall be debarred from prosecuting or defending any civil cause for or against him or herself, before any tribunal in the state, by him or herself, or counsel, or both.” Miss. Const. art. 3, § 25 (emphasis added). Mississippi Code Section 99-39-7 provides that actions under the Uniform Post-Conviction Collateral Relief Act are civil actions. Miss. Code Ann. § 99-39-7 (Rev. 2020). Therefore, this State’s Constitution grants unfettered access in civil causes to any tribunal in the State. The Court’s decision to deny Brown’s filing actions in forma pauperis is a violation of his State constitutional right to access to the courts.

¶4. The decision to cut off an indigent defendant’s right to proceed in forma pauperis is also a violation of that defendant’s fundamental right to vindicate his constitutional rights, for

Among the rights recognized by the Court as being fundamental are the rights to be free from invidious racial discrimination, to marry, to practice their religion, to communicate with free persons, to have due process in disciplinary proceedings, and to be free from cruel and unusual punishment. As a result of the recognition of these and other rights, the right of access to courts, which is necessary to vindicate all constitutional rights, also became a fundamental right.

Joseph T. Lukens, The Prison Litigation Reform Act: Three Strikes and You're Out of Court-It May Be Effective, but Is It Constitutional?, 70 Temp. L. Rev. 471, 474–75 (1997).

As United States Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall stated,

In closing its doors today to another indigent litigant, the Court moves ever closer to the day when it leaves an indigent litigant with a meritorious claim out in the cold. And with each barrier that it places in the way of indigent litigants, and with each instance in which it castigates such litigants for having “abused the system,” . . . the Court can only reinforce in the hearts and minds of our society’s less fortunate members the unsettling message that their pleas are not welcome here.

In re Demos, 500 U.S. 16, 19, 111 S. Ct. 1569, 1571, 114 L. Ed. 2d 20 (1991) (Marshall, J., dissenting). Instead of simply denying or dismissing those motions that lack merit, the Court seeks to punish Brown for arguing his claims.

¶5. Although each justice took an oath to do equal right to the poor and rich, this Court does not deny access to the court defendants who are fortunate enough to have monetary resources. Those defendants may file endless petitions, while indigent defendants are forced to sit silently by. An individual who, even incorrectly, believes that she has been deprived of her freedom should not be expected to sit silently by and wait to be forgotten. “Historically, the convictions with the best chances of being overturned were those that got repeatedly reviewed on appeal or those chosen by legal institutions such as the Innocence Project and the Center on Wrongful Convictions.” Emily Barone, The Wrongly Convicted: Why more falsely accused people are being exonerated today than ever before, Time, <http://time.com/wrongly-convicted/> (emphasis added) (last visited Sept. 9, 2021). The Washington Post reports that the average time served for the 1,625 exonerated individuals in the registry is more than nine years. Last year, three innocent murder defendants in Cleveland were exonerated 39 years after they were convicted—they spent their entire adult lives in prison—and even they were lucky: We know without doubt that the vast majority of innocent defendants who are convicted of crimes are never identified and cleared.

Samuel Gross, Opinion, The Staggering Number of Wrongful Convictions in America, Washington Post (July 24, 2015), http://wapo.st/1SGHcyd?tid=ss_mail&utm_term=.4bed8ad6f2cc.

¶6. Rather than violating Brown’s fundamental rights by restricting his access to the courts, I would simply find his petition for post-conviction relief lacked merit.
