Upon the for	regoing documents, it is Defendant's	s motion to dismiss the second cause of act	tion and for sanctions is	s denied. Plaintiffs' cross-motio	n for sanctions is also denied. The parties	agree that defendant lo	paned plaintiffs' children (an	d in-law's) $230,000, that $150,000 was e	evinced by a promissory	y note of which $100,000 wa	as guaranteed by plaintiffs and secured by	a $100,000 mortgage of	on plaintiffs' residence. T	The first cause of action seeks a declaration	n that the mortgage is v	oid and unenforceab	ole. The second cause of action seeks a dec	claration that to the ext	ent the mortgage is not void and	d is enforceable, that it only be subject to a	maximum of $38,000	due to payments of $68,000 on 1	the loan. The guarantee states "[A]nything	g in this guaranty to the	e contrary notwithstand	ding, the guarantors' liability to the lender	under the terms of this	guaranty shall not exceed the f	irst one hundred thousand ($100,000) doll	ars due under the prom	iissory note, inclusive of	pro-rated accrued interest/ and attorneys' a	attorneys' fees." Accor	ding to plaintiffs, the $230,000	0 was all one loan and according to defend	lant the guarantee was	given on one of a payments to either loan as the creditor sees fit. Here, he claims to have applied the payments to the $80,000 for which there was no note and which was not secured by the mortgage. On this basis, defendant seeks dismissal of the second cause of action. Plaintiffs do not dispute that a creditor would have such right but argue that there was only one loan as demonstrated by defendant consistently referring to the $230,000 as a loan or debt in the singular, and defendant only claiming for the first time on this motion that there were two loans. Because of the clear language of the guarantee, plaintiffs also seek sanctions for the filing of the instant motion. In opposition to the sanctions cross-motion, defendant points out that the debtor in this case filed an affidavit where he describes the transaction as an initial $150,000 loan memorialized in a promissory note, followed by an additional $80,000 loan, which is undocumented.

As the parties clearly dispute whether the $230,000 was part of a single loan or multiple loans, and giving plaintiffs all favorable inferences, the motion to dismiss is denied. If this were a single loan evinced in part by the promissory note, the limitation in the guarantee would limit plaintiffs' liability. Defendant only argues that he could allocate the payments to the debt he sees fit in the instance of multiple loans and does not advance an argument that it could similarly do so if the $230,000 was one single loan. He does not argue that he could allocate within the same debt to the portion that is not secured rather than the secured portion. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that defendant's motion to dismiss and for sanctions is denied.; and it is further ORDERED that plaintiffs' motion for sanctions is denied as this Court does not find that defendant has engaged is frivolous practice in filing the instant motion.
