DECISION AND JOURNAL ENTRY

Dated: August 19, 2009

DICKINSON, J.

INTRODUCTION

{¶1} A jury convicted Thomas D. Sommerville II of felonious assault. He has appealed, arguing that the trial court incorrectly allowed the State to impeach him with evidence of a perjury conviction that was more than ten years old and that his conviction is against the manifest weight of the evidence. Because the trial court made a mistake regarding post-release control at Mr. Sommerville’s sentencing hearing and in its sentencing entry, the sentencing entry is void. This Court, therefore, exercises its inherent power to vacate the void judgment and remands for a new sentencing hearing.

POST-RELEASE CONTROL

{¶2} Mr. Sommerville’s felonious assault conviction is a felony of the second degree. The trial court sentenced him to seven years in the custody of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction and to five years of post-release control.

{¶3} Under Section 2967.28(B) of the Ohio Revised Code “[e]ach sentence to a prison term for a felony of the . . . second degree . . . shall include a requirement that the offender be subject to a period of post-release control imposed by the parole board after the offender’s release from imprisonment.” For a felony of the second degree that is not a felony sex offense, the period is three years. R.C. 2967.28(B)(2). Under Section 2929.14(F)(1), “[i]f a court imposes a prison term . . . for a felony of the second degree, . . . it shall include in the sentence a requirement that the offender be subject to a period of post-release control after [his] release from imprisonment . . . .” In addition, Section 2929.19(B)(3)(c) provides that, “if the sentencing court determines . . . that a prison term is necessary or required, [it] shall . . . [n]otify the offender that [he] will be supervised under section 2967.28 of the Revised Code after [he] leaves prison if [he] is being sentenced for a felony of the . . . second degree . . . .”

{¶4} At the sentencing hearing, the trial court told Mr. Sommerville that it was imposing on him five years of post-release control. Similarly, in its journal entry, it wrote that, “[a]fter release from prison, the Defendant is ordered to serve Five (5) years of post-release control.”

{¶5} In State v. Simpkins, 117 Ohio St. 3d 420, 2008-Ohio-1197, the Ohio Supreme Court held that, “[i]n cases in which a defendant is convicted of, or pleads guilty to, an offense for which postrelease control is required but not properly included in the sentence, the sentence is void . . . .” Id. at syllabus. The Supreme Court reasoned that “no court has the authority to substitute a different sentence for that which is required by law.” Id. at ¶20. It concluded that “a sentence that does not conform to statutory mandates requiring the imposition of postrelease control is a nullity and void [and] must be vacated.” Id. at ¶22.

{¶6} In State v. Bedford, 9th Dist. No. 24431, 2009-Ohio-3972, at ¶11, this Court held that, if “[a] journal entry is void because it included a mistake regarding post-release control . . . there is no final, appealable order.” Accordingly, this Court does not have jurisdiction to consider the merits of Mr. Sommerville’s appeal. Id. at ¶14. It does have limited inherent authority, however, to recognize that the journal entry is a nullity and vacate the void judgment. Id. at ¶12 (quoting Van DeRyt v. Van DeRyt, 6 Ohio St. 2d 31, 36 (1966)).

CONCLUSION

{¶7} The trial court’s journal entry included a mistake regarding post-release control. It, therefore, is void. This Court exercises its inherent power to vacate the journal entry and remands this matter to the trial court for a new sentencing hearing.

Judgment vacated,
and cause remanded.
