51. Respondent has a prior record of discipline consisting of an Informal Admonition administered on November 9, 1992 and a one year and one day Suspension ordered on August 31, 1995. The basis for the Suspension was Respondent's repeated failure to remit $150.00 to a stenographer, which monies he originally received from his client for this purpose.

III. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

By his conduct as set forth above, Respondent violated the following Rules of Professional Conduct:

1. RPC 1.3 - (Failing to act with reasonable diligence and promptness in representing a client);
2. RPC 1.4 (a) - (Failing to keep a client informed about the status of a matter and failing to promptly comply with reasonable requests for information);
3. RPC 1.4 (b) - (Failing to explain a matter to the extent necessary to permit a client to make informed decisions regarding the representation); and
4. RPC 1.15(b) - (Failing to promptly deliver to a client or third person any funds or other property that a client or a third person is entitled to receive and, failing to promptly render a full accounting regarding such property, upon request by a client or third person).

IV. DISCUSSION

This matter is before the Board on a Petition for Discipline filed against Respondent on the basis of his actions in a medical malpractice case brought on behalf of [] and [] [A]. The record indicates that Respondent began work on the case in 1985 and pursued it diligently until approximately August 1990. He conducted discovery by way of depositions of both the [A] and defendant doctors. Interrogatories had been submitted and answered by various parties. After that time, he stopped working on the case. He failed to answer a third set of Interrogatories and Requests for Production, and failed to acknowledge receipt of those pleadings or review them with his clients. He failed to appear in court to defend motions filed by the defense as a result of Respondent's inactivity. Sanctions were obtained against Respondent which resulted in prejudice to his clients' case. Respondent failed to account for the disposition of monies supplied to him for expenses, although he was requested to do so by his clients. Respondent's actions violated Rules 1.3, 1.4(a), 1.4(b) , and 1.15 (b) .

The Committee determined that Respondent violated the above Rules; however, it decided that since Respondent was currently on suspension for violations in a separate case, it would not impose a separate discipline. Instead, the Committee recommended that if Respondent is reinstated from the one year and one day suspension, he should serve a six month period of probation and take an ethics course as a sanction for the instant case. The Committee's attempt to craft a considerate sanction is well-meaning, but such sanction is not appropriate under the Rules of Disciplinary Enforcement. In effect, the Committee is conditioning Respondent's discipline in this matter on his future reinstatement.

Two problems arise pertinent to this recommendation. The first issue is that conditional reinstatement is not provided for by the Rules of Disciplinary Enforcement. The Rules do not permit this because when an attorney is granted reinstatement, he or she has already shown moral fitness, competence and learning in the law and is fit to practice law in Pennsylvania. A requirement of probation or an ethics class after reinstatement negates the previous demonstration of fitness to practice. Also, the language of the Committee's recommendation is such that Respondent may never be sanctioned for his violations in the instant case if he decides not to petition for reinstatement or his reinstatement is denied.

The second issue is that the Committee attempted to dovetail discipline in this case with a sanction imposed in a separate and distinct matter. While the Committee appropriately considered Respondent's suspension in In re Anonymous No. 81 DB 93, 29 Pa. D. & C. 4th 101 (1995) as an aggravating circumstance, it was not appropriate to combine the sanctions. The circumstances of the case in which Respondent was suspended have nothing to do with the facts of the instant case. To make Respondent's reinstatement in that case provisional on receiving probation for this case, even if such a scheme was permitted under the Rules, is not logical. Since the Committee found that Respondent violated Rules of Professional Conduct, it should have recommended separate discipline for his misconduct.

There are several prior cases addressing misconduct similar to that in the instant case. In the case of In re Anonymous No. 24 DB 89, 8 Pa. D. & C. 4th 207 (1990), an attorney failed to take any action in an estate matter and misrepresented the status of the case to the client. The attorney had a prior history of discipline, including a two year suspension that had been imposed during the pendency of No. 24 DB 89. The Board recommended a one year suspension consecutive to the two year suspension. The Supreme Court affirmed this recommendation. The facts of the cited case are more egregious than the instant case, as Respondent herein proceeded accordingly on the case for five years, then stopped. Also, the attorney in the cited case violated Rules involving misrepresentation and conduct adversely reflecting on his fitness. Respondent herein was not charged with any similar violations. In the case of In re Anonymous No. 128 DB 91, 23 Pa. D. & C. 4th 360 (1994), an attorney failed to keep the client informed about the case, failed to transfer the file, failed to provide an accounting, and failed to return the unearned portion of the retainer fee. The attorney had a prior history of discipline consisting of three informal admonitions, one private reprimand, and a six month suspension. After considering these factors, the Board recommended and the Court approved a six month period of suspension. In the case of In re Anonymous No. 47 DB 91, 18 Pa. D. & C. 4th 418 (1993), an attorney failed to act with diligence in pursuing a case and failed to return entrusted property after termination of representation. She had a prior history of two private reprimands and one informal admonition. She presented very strong character testimony at her hearing. The Board imposed a private reprimand. The cited case is less serious than the instant case, as the attorney's prior history was less serious.

Review of the case law suggests that many of the cases resulting in suspension involve violations of Rules 8.4, which subsections address misrepresentation, dishonesty, conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice, and criminal acts that reflect on the attorney's fitness as a lawyer. A finding of a Rule 8.4 violation demonstrates the presence of more serious misconduct and increases the severity of the resulting disciplinary sanction. The instant case does not involve such misconduct. A case involving violations of Rules 1.3, 1.4(a), 1.4(b), and 1.15(b), with no aggravating circumstances, would normally warrant a less severe sanction than a suspension, perhaps private discipline. Respondent's prior history of a one year and one day suspension and an informal admonition aggravates the circumstances of this case and changes the nature of it.

The totality of the circumstances in this matter warrant a sanction of a public censure. This is an appropriate sanction considering the misconduct involved and Respondent's prior history.

V. RECOMMENDATION

The Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania recommends that the Respondent, [], receive a Public Censure from the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

It is further recommended that the expenses incurred in the investigation and prosecution of this matter are to be paid by the Respondent.
