San Antonio, Texas

MEMORANDUM OPINION

No. 04-17-00238-CV

IN THE INTEREST OF S.J.R.-Z., J.C.Z., A.R.Z., L.L.L., K.K.H., and J.G.H. III, Minor Children

From the 166th Judicial District Court, Bexar County, Texas
Trial Court No. 2015-PA-02211
Honorable Martha Tanner, Judge Presiding

Opinion by: Patricia O. Alvarez, Justice

Sitting: Sandee Bryan Marion, Chief Justice
Patricia O. Alvarez, Justice
Luz Elena D. Chapa, Justice

Delivered and Filed: August 9, 2017

AFFIRMED

This is an accelerated appeal of the trial court's order terminating Appellant Mom's parental rights to her children, S.J.R.-Z., J.C.Z., A.R.Z., L.L.L., K.K.H., and J.G.H. III, and Appellant Dad's parental rights to K.K.H. and J.G.H. III. In both appeals, Mom and Dad contend (1) the evidence does not support the trial court's termination based on Texas Family Code subsections 161.001(1)(b)(D), (E), and (O), See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(D), (E), (O) (West Supp. 2016), and (2) the evidence is neither legally nor factually sufficient for the trial court to have found by clear and convincing evidence that terminating Dad's parental rights was in K.K.H.'s and J.G.H. III's best interests, and that terminating Mom's parental rights was in the best interests of her children, see TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(2). Because we conclude the evidence is legally and factually sufficient to support the trial court's findings in both cases, we affirm the trial court's order terminating Mom's parental rights to S.J.R.-Z., J.C.Z., A.R.Z., L.L.L., K.K.H., and J.G.H. III and Dad's parental rights to K.K.H.'s and J.G.H. III.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

On August 10, 2015, the Texas Department of Family and Protective Services received a referral for neglectful supervision following the birth of J.G.H. III, who tested positive for marijuana. Mom admitted drug usage while pregnant. The Department attempted to work with Mom in Family Based Safety Services; however, Mom provided false information in an attempt to mislead the Department. On October 1, 2015, following a home visit, the Department determined the children's safety required removal based on Mom's failure to comply with the safety plan.

On October 20, 2015, the Department filed its Original Petition for Protection of Children, for Conservatorship, and for Termination in Suit Affecting the Parent-Child Relationship. Following an emergency order, the children were placed in the temporary managing conservatorship of the Department. Mom and Dad were ordered to comply with each requirement set out in the Department's service plan during the pendency of the suit. Both Mom and Dad were granted visitation with the children.

On November 13, 2015, the Department filed individual family service plans for Mom and Dad; the plans set forth the services and classes required before the children could return home to either Mom or Dad. After several status and permanency hearings, on February 21, 2017, the trial court called the matter for trial. Although Dad was not present for the first day of the hearing, he testified during the second day. Following a hearing, pursuant to Texas Family Code Section 161.001(b)(1)(O), the trial court terminated Mom's parental rights to S.J.R.-Z., J.C.Z., A.R.Z., L.L.L., K.K.H., and J.G.H. III, and Dad's parental rights to K.K.H. and J.G.H. III. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(O). The trial court further found termination of Mom's parental rights was in the S.J.R.-Z.'s, J.C.Z.'s, A.R.Z.'s, L.L.L.'s, K.K.H.'s, and J.G.H. III's best interests and termination of Dad's parental rights was in K.K.H.'s and J.G.H. III's best interests. See id. § 161.001(b)(2). This appeal ensued.

We turn first to the Department's contention that Dad's failure to assert his paternity is dispositive of his appeal.

FAILURE TO ASSERT PATERNITY

Following the termination hearing, the trial court's order of termination includes the trial court's finding that, by clear and convincing evidence [ ], after having waived service of process or being served with citation in this suit, [Dad] did not respond by timely filing an admission of paternity or by filing a counterclaim for paternity or for voluntary paternity to be adjudicated under chapter 160 of the Texas Family Code before the final hearing in this suit.

See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.002(b)(1); Phillips v. Tex. Dep't of Protective & Regulatory Servs., 25 S.W.3d 348, 357 (Tex. App.—Austin 2000, no pet.) (section 161.002(b)(1) permits trial court to summarily terminate alleged father's parental rights where he fails to assert his paternity).

The evidence is undisputed that Dad was not listed on either K.K.H.'s or J.G.H. III's birth certificate, and he never signed a statement acknowledging paternity of either K.K.H. or J.G.H. III. The Department argues this court need look no further than the trial court's determination regarding Dad's failure to establish paternity. We decline to do so.

This court previously held, “[t]here are no formalities that must be observed when filing an admission of paternity or for such an admission to be effective.” In re J.L.A., No. 04-13-00857-CV, 2014 WL 1831097, at *2 (Tex. App.—San Antonio May 7, 2014, no pet.) (mem. op.); accord In re K.W., No. 02–09–00041–CV, 2010 WL 144394, at *3 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth Jan. 14, 2010, no pet.) (mem. op.). “In fact, by appearing at trial and admitting that he is the child’s father, an alleged father triggers his right to require the Department to prove one of the grounds for termination under section 161.001(1) and that termination is in the best interest of the child.” J.L.A., 2014 WL 1831097, at *2. Here, Dad testified that there was no question he was K.K.H. and J.G.H. III’s father, he was represented by counsel, counsel maintained that Dad was K.K.H. and J.G.H. III’s father, and counsel advocated against termination of Dad’s parental rights. See id. (citing Toliver v. Dep’t of Family & Protective Servs., 217 S.W.3d 85, 105 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2006, no pet.) (holding the trial court erred in terminating parental rights under section 161.002(b)(1), when the alleged father appeared at trial, asserted paternity, and opposed the termination of his parental rights)).

Accordingly, we conclude that Dad’s appearance and participation in the trial court, including his sworn admission that he was K.K.H. and J.G.H. III’s father, was sufficient to trigger his right to have the Department prove one of the grounds for termination listed in section 161.001(b)(1).

We, therefore, turn to the trial court’s involuntary termination of Mom’s and Dad’s parental rights pursuant to section 161.001(b)(1)(O) of the Texas Family Code. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(O).

SUFFICIENCY OF THE EVIDENCE

A. Standards of Review

“Involuntary termination of parental rights involves fundamental constitutional rights and divests the parent and child of all legal rights, privileges, duties, and powers normally existing between them, except for the child’s right to inherit from the parent.” In re L.J.N., 329 S.W.3d 667, 671 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2010, no pet.) (citing Holick v. Smith, 685 S.W.2d 18, 20 (Tex. 1985)). As a result, appellate courts must strictly scrutinize involuntary termination proceedings in favor of the parent. Id. (citing In re D.S.P., 210 S.W.3d 776, 778 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2006, no pet.)).

An order terminating parental rights must be supported by clear and convincing evidence that (1) the parent has committed one of the grounds for involuntary termination as listed in section 161.001(b)(1) of the Family Code, and (2) terminating the parent’s rights is in the best interest of the child. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001; In re J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d 256, 261 (Tex. 2003). “‘Clear and convincing evidence’ means the measure or degree of proof that will produce in the mind of the trier of fact a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the allegations sought to be established.” TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 101.007; J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 264.

“There is a strong presumption that the best interest[s] of the child[ren] [are] served by keeping the child[ren] with [their] natural parent, and the burden is on [the Department] to rebut that presumption.” In re D.R.A., 374 S.W.3d 528, 533 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2012, no pet.). “The same evidence of acts or omissions used to establish grounds for termination under section 161.001(b) may be probative in determining the best interest[s] of the child[ren].” Id.

1. Legal Sufficiency

When a clear and convincing evidence standard applies, a legal sufficiency review requires a court to “look at all the evidence in the light most favorable to the finding to determine whether a reasonable trier of fact could have formed a firm belief or conviction that its finding was true.” In re J.L., 163 S.W.3d 79, 85 (Tex. 2005) (quoting J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266). If the court “determines that [a] reasonable factfinder could form a firm belief or conviction that the matter that must be proven is true, then that court must conclude that the evidence is legally [sufficient].” See id. (quoting J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266). “[A] reviewing court must assume that the factfinder resolved disputed facts in favor of its finding if a reasonable factfinder could do so.” J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266. “A corollary to this requirement is that a court should disregard all evidence that a reasonable factfinder could have disbelieved or found to have been incredible.” Id.

2. Factual Sufficiency

Under a clear and convincing standard, evidence is factually sufficient if “a factfinder could reasonably form a firm belief or conviction about the truth of the State’s allegations.” In re C.H., 89 S.W.3d 17, 25 (Tex. 2002); accord In re K.R.M., 147 S.W.3d 628, 630 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2004, no pet.). We must consider “whether disputed evidence is such that a reasonable factfinder could not have resolved that disputed evidence in favor of its finding.” J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266; accord C.H., 89 S.W.3d at 25. “If, in light of the entire record, [unless] the disputed evidence that a reasonable factfinder could not have credited in favor of the finding is so significant that a factfinder could not reasonably have formed a firm belief or conviction, . . . the evidence is factually [sufficient].” J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266.

B. Testimony Elicited during the Termination Hearing

The trial court terminated the parental rights of each of the different fathers, with the exception of S.J.R.-Z., the only father appealing the termination of his parental rights is Dad, K.K.H.’s and J.G.H. III’s biological father. We, therefore, limit the facts to the necessary witnesses and Mom’s and Dad’s involvement with the Department and their respective children.

1. Department Employees and Service Providers

a. Cecilia Ramirez

Cecilia Ramirez, an investigator for the Department, testified she received the referral in August of 2015, for negligent supervision; J.G.H. III was born with marijuana in his system. At the time, Ramirez reported three major areas of concern: Mom admitted using marijuana during her pregnancy, Mom and Dad had a dispute and he tried to run her over with his vehicle, and Mom’s mental stability—“she did tell me she felt overwhelmed with the children and couldn’t handle them all.” Ramirez and the Department implemented a safety plan wherein Mom’s friend, Abigail Gonzalez, would remain in the house with the children. At the time of the removal, Mom’s six-year-old son, J.C.Z., was residing with the maternal grandmother. The Department, however, subsequently removed the child for negligent supervision related to grandmother's methamphetamine use.

b. Kathleen Batteen

Kathleen Batteen was the original Department caseworker. Batteen testified the family was very evasive. Her first visit to the home, on October 15, 2015, occurred approximately five weeks after J.G.H. III's birth. During the visit, Mom and Dad both admitted marijuana use in the home. Mom described her relationship with Dad as "contentious" and told Batteen "[she] and Dad got into an argument outside and he almost ran her over with a car." Mom further "made admission of multiple personality and depression. . . . [I]n September [of 2015] she was admitted for suicidal ideations."

When asked about the state of the children, Batteen testified that S.J.R.-Z. was at school at the time of her home visit. Batteen testified the home was infested with bed bugs and the children were covered in bug bites and head lice. One-month-old J.G.H. III was in his swing, "he was not buckled while he was in his swing and he was an infant and had a bottle in his mouth. So he was unable to move his face if—if he was choking." Fourteen-month-old K.K.H. was carrying a bottle around the house and had a full diaper. Batteen noted that K.K.H. appeared to have developmental delays and was still unable to walk.

Four-year-old A.R.Z. and two-year-old L.L.L. were running around the home, and also had full diapers. Mom acknowledged used of methamphetamines, marijuana, and opiates during her pregnancy with A.R.Z. and Batteen expressed concern regarding the possibility of developmental delays.

Batteen testified about concerns for domestic violence, substance abuse, mental health issues, and the physical care of the children, resulted in the children's removal. K.K.H. and J.G.H.

III, the two youngest children, were placed with a relative; the other three children were placed with their maternal aunt. The safety plan for the two youngest children only lasted for a couple of days; the relative dropped them off at the Department stating she was unable to continue caring for the children. The Department subsequently placed the two children in a foster home, where they remained during the pendency of the case.

c. Martha Suarez

Martha Suarez was the legal caseworker until the end of August of 2016. Suarez testified that after the children's removal, she personally explained the safety plan to Mom. According to Suarez, Mom completed several of the classes; she reported for some of the drug tests, but proffered a plethora of excuses for others. Yet, even in light of the classes, Suarez testified that Mom was unable to practice the parenting techniques in her visitations. Mom was flustered and could not handle the children. When asked for specifics, Suarez explained that Mom would yell at the children and "parent from the chair;" she did not engage with any of the children; she would sit down and yell at J.C.Z., S.J.R.-Z., and L.L.L.; and she never spoke to them or asked them about their lives.

Suarez further described Mom having the older children care for the younger children. Mom relied on S.J.R.-Z. to retrieve the necessary diapers or bottles. When given a five-minute notice at the end of the visit, Mom would instruct "S.J.R.-Z. go clean this. J.C.Z., get your sister. J.C.Z., go pick up the trash over there. She wouldn't—she would just be overwhelmed." Suarez testified that she tried to provide direction, but Mom did not take her advice.

Suarez also explained the service plan to Dad. She testified that Dad was compliant, but he and Mom had a very tumultuous relationship. At one point, after Mom accused him of watching teen porn on her phone, the Department separated parental visitations with the children. When Mom and Dad reconciled, visitations became joint again. Even after the Department instructed Dad that reunification with his children was only possible if he separated from Mom, he continued in the unhealthy relationship. Suarez acknowledged that Dad was appropriate with the children during visitation.

In August of 2016, ten months after the children's removal, Suarez did not believe the parents were capable of caring for the children. Mom had lost her subsidized housing and was going to have to start paying rent. Additionally, Mom was pregnant with her eleventh child.

d. Jarred Moore

Department caseworker Jarred Moore began working with Mom and Dad in August of 2016. Moore testified that he immediately attempted to address Mom's and Dad's difficulty controlling the children's behavior. Moore arranged for in-home parenting classes to assist in teaching the parents how to maintain the children's behavior during the day and to create routines for the children.

1. Mom

During Moore's initial meeting with Mom, he discussed her inconsistency with individual counseling and visitation with her children. At one point, Mom missed four consecutive weeks. Moore testified that he tried to accommodate Mom's work schedule or other conflicts, but Mom simply did not make an effort. Once again, Moore testified that Mom always had an excuse—Dad would not give her the money for the bus or Dad would not take her.

In October of 2016, S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. were placed back in Mom's home. Moore explained that Mom had completed many of her services and the Department wanted to provide her an opportunity to show that she could maintain the children on her own. Moore arranged for eighteen weeks of in-home classes for Mom and Dad beginning in mid-December; yet, after only a couple of weeks, Mom and Dad failed to continue with the classes. Moore testified that he had several conversations with Mom regarding her lack of compliance with her service plan. In fact, he visited Mom's home weekly; reminded them of services that they needed to complete, and discussed the children's needs.

Moore explained that he instructed Mom to continue six-year-old S.J.R.-Z.'s therapy. Prior to the Department's attempted reunification, S.J.R.-Z. attended weekly therapy. Per Mom's request, Moore arranged for S.J.R.-Z.'s continued therapy at Strictly Therapy. Yet, during the three months in Mom's care, Mom never arranged appointments or took S.J.R.-Z. for counseling. Moore also testified that three-year-old L.L.L. was supposed to be receiving speech therapy. Once again, Moore provided Mom with all of the information for L.L.L.'s service; but Mom failed to schedule appointments or take L.L.L. for the necessary therapy.

Moore testified that he specifically instructed Mom that, due to methamphetamine use, the children were not allowed at the maternal grandmother's home. He explained that Mom could visit her mother, but the children could not be present. Yet, the children were consistently located or reported to be at the maternal grandmother's residence.

Moore further testified that, in the short time the children were in Mom's home, S.J.R.-Z. missed approximately fifteen days of school. Mom explained the missed days were the result of moving. Mom removed S.J.R.-Z. from her elementary school, but failed to reenroll her at another school. Moore testified he arranged for S.J.R.-Z. to be reenrolled at the school she had been attending, but Mom failed to follow through.

Moore testified that when S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. were removed from the home in January of 2017, the children appeared dirty and they were hungry; it was eight o'clock in the evening and the children had not yet eaten dinner. Moore relayed he took the girls to McDonald's on their way to placement.

With regard to placement, Moore testified that J.C.Z. was residing at Guiding Light, a residential treatment center where he was receiving specialized treatment for outward sexual behavior toward his siblings and other individuals. Moore did not believe that Mom could meet J.C.Z.'s needs. J.C.Z. was in the process of transitioning to live with a relative; J.C.Z. had met the relatives and would be the only child in the home.

L.L.L. actually has two different relatives that are willing to raise her and Moore was working on the placements.

A.R.Z.'s father had been incarcerated since 2008 for an assault on Mom; his release date was scheduled for March 25, 2021. A.R.Z.'s paternal grandmother, with whom he was currently living, was willing to raise him. A.R.Z. was doing better in school and he was receiving the therapy that he needed. Additionally, A.R.Z. was taking medication for his ADHD. A.R.Z. has also acted out sexually, touching both his grandmother and brother inappropriately; the grandmother reports his behavior has improved with the medication.

S.J.R.-Z. was in the process of being placed with her biological father's sister until the Department has had an opportunity to work with her biological father on services.

Moore recommended the trial court terminate Mom's parental rights to each of the children involved in the case. He further testified that termination of Mom's parental rights was in the best interest of each of the children. Moore opined that Mom has been given several opportunities to complete services and classes; he believed that he and the Department went above and beyond; he spoke to Mom and Dad late at night; he went to the house weekly; he talked to them on the phone; and he texted them. Mom simply refused to take action to have her children returned to her care or to implement the safety plan or directions of the Department.

2. Dad

Moore testified that Dad was not in compliance with his service plan. Dad also missed visitation with the children. Moore estimated that Dad attended only half of the available visitations. Moore also testified regarding Dad's admission to illegal drug use following his failure to take his medication. Moore instructed Dad that he could not be around the children without taking a drug test; Dad refused to submit for the test. Moore also expressed concern regarding the on-again off-again relationship between Dad and Mom. One month, Dad would report he was moving out and the next month, he and Mom were together again. Dad also failed to participate in the in-home parenting classes, he had not yet provided a copy of his lease, and he had not provided copies of his current medication or proof that he was taking the medication appropriately.

Moore recommended the trial court terminate Dad's parental rights to K.K.H. and J.G.H. III and that termination was in both children's best interests. Moore explained that Dad has been off his medication during the pendency of the case and admitted to using methamphetamines. In Moore's opinion, the home environment was not safe for two adults, much less several small children.

e. Lorraine Shipmon

Lorraine Shipmon, a fraud investigator with the San Antonio Housing Authority, testified that she received a report that the Department had removed the children from the home. In August of 2015, Mom failed to report the change in her housing needs as required by the Housing Authority. The report also indicated that Dad, an unauthorized tenant, was living in the home and there was evidence of drug use. Shipmon sent Mom a letter of intent to terminate, which provided Mom an opportunity to explain or contest the Housing Authority's findings; Mom did not respond. The Housing Authority terminated Mom's assistance on August 31, 2016.

f. Luvia Coruna

Luvia Coruna, the manager at the Cielo Apartment complex, testified that Mom and Dad failed to make the rent payments in November and December of 2016. Although the complex generally evicts tenants after missing rent for one month, Coruna testified that she really tried to work with Mom and Dad. The complex served the eviction notice on January 3, 2017, and Mom and Dad moved out on January 12, 2017.

g. Sarah Quintanilla

Sarah Quintanilla, an investigator with the Department, received a report on January 10, 2017 regarding medical neglect of S.J.R.-Z. When Quintanilla met with Mom, S.J.R.-Z.'s prescription bottle was empty. Mom opined that "while they were removing their belongings from one place to another that the pill bottle must have been opened and the pills fell out." Also of concern was S.J.R.-Z. missing an excessive number of school days. Quintanilla finally located Mom and the children at the maternal grandmother's residence. Mom insisted they were not staying there, but that they were staying with an aunt; Mom would not provide the address.

On January 31, 2017, the Department removed S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L.; Quintanilla staffed the case and the Department subsequently moved for removal of two-month-old J.R.Z., the child born during the pendency of this case and not part of these proceedings. When Quintanilla arrived at the apartment, she asked Mom to open the refrigerator and there was no food. Quintanilla reported the refrigerator was completely empty; it was concerning because S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. had stayed the night before; J.R.Z. did not have a crib and she was sleeping in a car seat.

h. Janisa Hodges

Janisa Hodges, the department supervisor with Child Protective Services, testified she supervised this case beginning in August of 2015. Originally, the Department's primary concern was the stability of the parents' relationship and their ability to meet the children's needs. Hodges testified that Mom does not have the financial means to support the children; she is completely dependent on Dad for rent and food. This relationship creates problems because one minute Dad is supportive and the next he is not.

At the beginning of the case, Mom received housing assistance; but the Housing Authority terminated her assistance due to fraud. As a result, Mom's rent escalated from $50.00/month to $990.00/month. Mom did not have a steady job; she had insufficient funds to keep a roof over the children's heads or to meet their basic needs. After Mom lost her housing, she falsely reported that she was making rent payments; the complex eventually evicted her. However, because Mom was not qualified to receive further housing assistance, there were no funds available to pay the rent. After only making one or two rent payments, the complex evicted Mom and Dad for failure to make rent payments in November or December, 2016.

Hodges also expressed concerns about Mom's ability to manage all six children. When S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. were returned to Mom and Dad's care, a safety plan was enacted that provided for Lydia, a relative, to help with the children. The plan specifically allowed for Lydia to assist, but only at Mom's house. Hodges testified that each of the caseworkers was very clear the children were not to be at the maternal grandmother's home because J.C.Z. had already been removed for methamphetamine use in the home.

Hodges also expressed concern regarding S.J.R.-Z.'s attendance at school. The Department placed the two girls in Mom's care on October 15, 2016; the Department removed the girls for a second time on January 31, 2017. During that time, the children were out of school for both Thanksgiving and winter break and S.J.R.-Z. still missed at least fifteen days of school during that period. Hodges also testified that L.L.L. was not attending the necessary speech therapy appointments. When asked, Mom insisted she was trying to set up the appointments, but Hodges testified that Mom never arranged the appointments.

Hodges further testified that Mom had been involved with the Department since 2006, over ten years. The children involved in this case were continuously involved with the Department for their entire lives; they have not had any normalcy or permanency in their lives. Mom's lack of a support system was very problematic; Mom was unable to provide names of family members the Department could approve to assist in the children's care. Additionally, the Department was very clear that the children were not to be at the maternal grandmother's house, but Mom continued to take the children to her mother's home.

Hodges recommended the trial court terminate Mom's parental rights. Mom failed to demonstrate the ability to care for the children; she has not provided a period of consistency which would suggest her inability to do so in the future; the children have not had any stability in their lives; and Mom cannot meet even their basic needs, much less their developmental needs. K.K.H. and J.G.H. III, along with the newborn, who is not a part of the suit, were in a foster-to-adopt home that had expressed a willingness to adopt all three children and willingness to maintain contact with the siblings. After the recent completion of a home study, J.C.Z. was transitioning into a relative placement. A.R.Z. was placed with his paternal grandmother, who is willing to adopt him. S.J.R.-Z.'s paternal aunt came forward and the Department was in the process of completing the home study. Finally, for L.L.L., the maternal aunt, and adoptive parent to another one of Mom's children, came forward and agreed to take L.L.L. and move toward adoption.

When asked about Dad, K.K.H. and J.G.H. III's father, Hodges testified that her biggest concern was during the pendency of the case when Dad stopped taking his medication and began using methamphetamine. When Hodges spoke with Dad, he admitted the behavior, but refused to submit to the requested drug test. Hodges testified that Dad reported that he was back on his medications and that he showed her his prescriptions.

Hodges testified she was recommending Dad's rights be terminated to K.K.H. and J.G.H. III. Hodges testified that Dad has shown a pattern of inconsistency in being able to meet the children's basic needs. She expressed further concerns about Dad's mental health stability; Dad conceded that he is manic and "does things he shouldn't do."

i. Carolyn Jurecko

Carolyn Jurecko, a licensed professional counselor, testified that she had been working with Mom and Dad since November of 2015. Mom admitted prior marijuana use, but was apparently drug free. Jurecko also testified that Mom completed her services, and although she has a history of domestic violence going back to 2007, it was not currently Jurecko's major concern. Jurecko expressed concerns regarding Mom's financial instability. She did not believe Mom could care for all six children. Mom showed difficulty with bonding and attachment to both K.K.H. and J.G.H. III. Mom's relationship with her children was very chaotic; although Jurecko believed she exhibited a bond with S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L., she did not engage with all of the children. Jurecko also expresses concern regarding Mom's refusal to follow the Department's mandate that she not take the children around the maternal grandmother.

Jurecko testified that Mom missed several counseling appointments due to her pregnancy; Dad also missed several appointments when he and Mom were separated. Mom's reasons for inconsistency varied: she did not have money, she did not have a ride, the doctor told her she cannot attend due to pregnancy, or Dad was unwilling to bring her.

Jurecko also expressed concerns regarding Dad's medication. Dad was currently stabilized, but it had only been for one month prior to the hearing. When Dad was on his medication, Jurecko testified that he was nurturing with the children and his employment was steady and excellent; but when he stopped taking his medications, he started using illegal drugs again.

Finally, Jurecko testified that this case has been pending for almost eighteen months and the two youngest children were very bonded to their foster parents and were not bonded to either Mom or Dad.

j. Ida Lopez

Ida Lopez, a parent educator for Family Services Association, testified that she received a referral to provide in-home parenting classes for Mom and Dad beginning on December 14, 2016. Mom attended three sessions out of eighteen, but Lopez had not heard from Mom since January 4, 2017.

2. Family Members

a. Mom

Mom testified she was the mother of eleven children, six of whom were at issue in this proceeding. Mom's children who are not involved in this case include: J.S., ten-year-old male, and F.S., nine-year-old female, live with their biological father; M.[E].Z., seven-year-old female, adopted by a non-relative caregiver; and M.[A].Z., three-year-old female, was in the process of being adopted by Mom's sister.

At the time of the removal, six of Mom's children were involved in this case. Five of the children were living with Mom and Dad: S.J.R.-Z., seven-year-old female, A.R.Z., four-year-old male, L.L.L., two-year-old female, K.K.H., one-year-old female, and J.G.H. III, two-month-old male. Additionally, J.C.Z., six-year-old male, was living with the maternal grandmother. Only K.K.H. and J.G.H. III were Dad's biological children. During these termination proceedings, Mom became pregnant, and on December 1, 2016, she gave birth to a little girl, J.R.Z. The Department removed J.R.Z when she was only two-months-old.

Mom testified that she and Dad were living together as co-parents in a three-bedroom, two-bath townhome. Dad did not attend the hearing on the first day. When asked about his absence from court, Mom relayed she thought he was asleep at the apartment. Mom testified that she completed her service plan; she completed the drug class, the anger management class, the domestic violence class, and a parenting class. According to Mom, the only remaining issue was the individual therapy sessions.

Mom testified that S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. were returned to her custody on October 7, 2016. She averred that S.J.R.-Z. only missed school for doctor appointments. In January of 2017, the Department removed the children again. Mom acknowledged her biggest issue was keeping a roof over the children's heads. Mom further testified that she was expecting a large tax refund and that she would be able to purchase items for the children. When asked, Mom conceded that she claimed all seven children even though none of the children were in her care between October of 2015 and October of 2016.

b. Joe S.

Joe S. is the biological father of Mom's two oldest children. Joe testified F.S. and J.S. have been in his custody since they were one-year-old and two-years-old, respectively. He testified that, at the beginning, Mom saw the children. Joe further explained Mom saw the children approximately five times, but when the children indicated they did not want to go back to her house, the visits stopped. Joe testified that Mom had not seen the children in over a year and a half.

c. Dad

Dad testified that he is the father of K.K.H. and J.G.H. III. He currently earns approximately $1300.00 every two weeks. Dad testified that he completed several classes, including domestic violence, parenting skills, and anger management. Dad was adamant that he had never been arrested for domestic violence or running Mom over with the car—"no proof of anything of that happening."

Dad explained that he was currently on medication for bipolar disorder. He testified that he lost his medication for a week in November. He believes that he and Mom are good at co-parenting. Dad acknowledged living illegally in the subsidized housing and being evicted for not paying rent; he explained that he had other things for which he needed to pay. Dad contends that he takes full responsibility for his actions and acknowledged that he was arrested for robbery in 2007 and possession in 2009. He further acknowledged missing a few visits with the children, but he denied ever telling anyone that he used methamphetamines; denied being hospitalized for methamphetamines—he was adamant that he did not tell caseworker, did not tell therapist, and did not tell Mom. Finally, Dad opined the Department is being “nitpicky” about the kids.

TERMINATION BASED ON STATUTORY VIOLATION

A. Statutory Violations under the Texas Family Code

The trial court found that both Dad and Mom failed to comply with the provisions of a court order under section 161.001(b)(1)(O). See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(O). Section 161.001(b)(1)(O) allows termination of the parent-child relationship when a parent has failed to satisfy the conditions of her Family Service Plan. See id. Specifically, a trial court may order termination of the parent-child relationship if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that a parent has:

failed to comply with the provisions of a court order that specifically established the actions necessary for the parent to obtain the return of the child who has been in the permanent or temporary managing conservatorship of the Department of Family and Protective Services for not less than nine months as a result of the child’s removal from the parent under Chapter 262 for the abuse or neglect of the child.

“Texas courts generally take a strict approach to subsection (O)’s application.” In re C.A.W., No. 01-16-00719-CV, 2017 WL 929540, at *4 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] Mar. 9, 2017, no pet.) (mem. op.) (citing In re D.N., 405 S.W.3d 863, 877 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 2013, no pet.)); accord In re A.M.M., No. 04-15-00638-CV, 2016 WL 1359342, at *3 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Apr. 6, 2016, no pet.) (mem. op.). The burden of complying with the court order is on the parent. See D.N., 405 S.W.3d at 878. Courts do not measure the “quantity of failure” or “degree of compliance.” Id. at 877. Subsection O does not provide a means to evaluate “excuses” or “partial compliance.” Id.; see also In re J.S., 291 S.W.3d 60, 67 (Tex. App.—Eastland 2009, no pet.) (holding subsection (O) does not intend evaluation of parent’s partial achievement of plan requirements); In re T.N.F., 205 S.W.3d 625, 631 (Tex. App.—Waco 2006, pet. denied) (holding any excuse for failure to complete family service plan is only relevant to best interest determination). In other words, “substantial compliance is not the same as complete compliance.” A.M.M., 2016 WL 1359342, at *3.

B. Arguments of the Parties

Dad contends the evidence is legally and factually insufficient to support the trial court’s findings that he failed to comply with the Department’s family service plan. Dad asserts he completed the out-patient drug treatment program and was negative on all random drug tests. He further contends he completed parenting classes, domestic violence classes, and anger management classes. Dad asserts he never missed an appointment with his individual counselor.

Similarly, Mom contends that absent completion of her parenting classes, she completed all of the tasks contained within the Department’s service plan. Specifically, Mom argues she completed the drug abuse classes, anger management classes, domestic violence classes, and parenting classes. She also attended individual therapy and maintained full-time employment for the three-months prior to the hearing.

C. Analysis

While it is undisputed that both Mom and Dad completed certain classes in their family service plans, neither one completed all of the tasks called for in the court-ordered plans. Although Mom attended the classes, she failed to exhibit an ability to implement the lessons learned. The evidence is undisputed that Mom failed to obtain stable housing or visit the children regularly as required by the Department's service plan. Mom acknowledged during her testimony that she failed to complete her individual counseling or her in-home parenting classes, both requirements of her service plan. Even further, despite constant warnings, Mom continued to allow the children to be at the maternal grandmother's residence. Department representatives testified that Mom regularly offered excuses for her failure to comply with Department requirements. Section 161.001(b)(1)(O) does not "make a provision for excuses" for the parent's failure to comply with the court-ordered services. See J.S., 291 S.W.3d at 67 (quoting T.N.F., 205 S.W.3d at 631).

Dad also acknowledged failing to complete the individual counseling and failing to attend several of the visitations. The evidence conclusively shows that Dad did not comply with all of the requirements of the court-ordered service plan. See In re M.C.G., 329 S.W.3d 674, 675 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2010, pet. denied) (determining that parent's failure to complete one requirement of her service plan supports termination). Additionally, although he denied the accusations during his testimony, several witnesses testified that during the pendency of this case, Dad stopped taking his medication and used illegal drugs.

"It is well established that, in a bench trial, the judge as the trier of fact weighs the evidence, assesses the credibility of witnesses and resolves conflicts and inconsistencies." In re D.D.D.K., No. 07-09-0101-CV, 2009 WL 4348760, at *6 (Tex. App.—Amarillo Dec. 1, 2009, no pet.) (mem. op.). Here, the trial court was free to believe the Department's witnesses over both Mom and Dad. The Department presented clear and convincing evidence the children's removal was due to abuse or neglect and that the children had been in the Department's care for over nine months. Substantial or partial compliance, by either Mom or Dad, is insufficient to stave off termination. See A.M.M., 2016 WL 1359342, at *9.

Reviewing all of the evidence in the light most favorable to the termination findings, we conclude that a reasonable fact finder could have formed a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the termination findings under subsection (O). See J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266. Consequently, we hold that the evidence is legally and factually sufficient to support the trial court’s finding under Section 161.001(b)(1)(O). See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(O); J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 278 (“[S]poradic incidents of partial compliance do not alter the undisputed fact that the parties violated many material provisions of the trial court’s orders.”).

BEST INTERESTS FINDINGS

A. Arguments of the Parties

Both Mom and Dad contend the evidence before the trial court was insufficient to overcome the presumption that keeping the children with a parent is in the children’s best interest.

B. The Holley Factors

The trial court is the sole judge of the weight and credibility of the evidence, including the testimony of the Department’s witnesses. See In re H.R.M., 209 S.W.3d 105, 108 (Tex. 2006) (per curiam) (requiring appellate deference to the factfinder’s findings); City of Keller v. Wilson, 168 S.W.3d 802, 819 (Tex. 2005). Some factors used to ascertain the best interest of the child were set forth in Holley v. Adams, 544 S.W.2d 367, 371–72 (Tex. 1976); accord In re E.N.C., 384 S.W.3d 796, 807 (Tex. 2012) (reciting the Holley factors). The Holley Court warned that “[t]his listing is by no means exhaustive, but does indicate a number of considerations which either have been or would appear to be pertinent.” Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 372; accord E.N.C., 389 S.W.3d at 807 (describing the Holley factors as nonexclusive). “The absence of evidence about some of these considerations would not preclude a factfinder from reasonably forming a strong conviction or belief that termination is in the child’s best interest, particularly if the evidence were undisputed that the parental relationship endangered the safety of the child.” C.H., 89 S.W.3d at 27. In fact, evidence of only one factor may be sufficient for a factfinder to reasonably form a firm belief or conviction that termination is in a child's best interest—especially when undisputed evidence shows that the parental relationship endangered the child's safety. See id.

In addition to consideration of the Holley factors, courts remain mindful that “the prompt and permanent placement of the child in a safe environment is presumed to be in the child's best interest.” TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(a) (West Supp. 2016); In re B.R., 456 S.W.3d 612, 615 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2015, no pet.). There is also a strong presumption that keeping a child with a parent is in the child's best interest. In re R.R., 209 S.W.3d 112, 116 (Tex. 2006) (per curiam). In determining whether a parent is willing and able to provide the child with a safe environment, courts should consider the following statutory factors set out in section 263.307(b) of the Code, which include the following:

- (1) the child's age and physical and mental vulnerabilities;
- (2) the frequency and nature of out-of-home placements;
- (3) the magnitude, frequency, and circumstances of the harm to the child;
- (4) whether the child has been the victim of repeated harm after the initial report and intervention by the department;
- (5) whether the child is fearful of living in or returning to the child's home;
- (6) the results of psychiatric, psychological, or developmental evaluations of the child, the child's parents, other family members, or others who have access to the child's home;
- (7) whether there is a history of abusive or assaultive conduct by the child's family or others who have access to the child's home;
- (8) whether there is a history of substance abuse by the child's family or others who have access to the child's home;
- (9) whether the perpetrator of the harm to the child is identified;
- (10) the willingness and ability of the child's family to seek out, accept, and complete counseling services and to cooperate with and facilitate an appropriate agency's close supervision;
- (11) the willingness and ability of the child's family to effect positive environmental and personal changes within a reasonable period of time;
- (12) whether the child's family demonstrates adequate parenting skills; . . . and

- (13) whether an adequate social support system consisting of an extended family and friends is available to the child.

TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b); see In re G.C.D., No. 04-14-00769-CV, 2015 WL 1938435, at *4 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Apr. 29, 2015, no pet.) (mem. op.) (citing In re A.S., No. 04-14-00505-CV, 2014 WL 5839256, at *2 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Nov. 12, 2014, pet. denied) (mem. op.)); B.R., 456 S.W.3d at 616.

When determining the best interest of a child, a court “may consider circumstantial evidence, subjective factors, and the totality of the evidence as well as the direct evidence.” B.R., 456 S.W.3d at 616 (citing In re E.D., 419 S.W.3d 615, 620 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2013, pet. denied)). A factfinder may also measure a parent’s future conduct by his or her past conduct to aid in determining whether termination of the parent-child relationship is in the best interest of the child. Id. Finally, the grounds on which the trial court granted termination, pursuant to section 161.001 of the Code, “may also be probative in determining the child’s best interest; but the mere fact that an act or omission occurred in the past does not ipso facto prove that termination is currently in the child’s best interest.” In re O.N.H., 401 S.W.3d 681, 684 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2013, no pet.) (citation omitted).

I. Desires of the Children

The children were between the ages of one-year-old and seven-years-old. None of the children testified during the hearing. As stated by the Fourteenth Court of Appeals, “When children are too young to express their desires, the fact finder may consider that the children have bonded with the foster family, are well-cared for by them, and have spent minimal time with a parent.” In re J.D., 436 S.W.3d 105, 118 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2014, no pet.).

Mom’s individual counselor testified that Mom had failed to bond with either K.K.H. or J.G.H. III. No evidence indicates any of the other children expressed a desire to return to either their mother's or their father's care. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b)(13); Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 371–72; see also C.H., 89 S.W.3d at 28 (holding placement plans and adoption evidence are relevant to best interest determination).

2. Emotional and Physical Needs of the Child Now and in the Future and the Emotional and Physical Danger to the Child Now and in the Future

“The need for permanence is the paramount consideration for the child’s present and future physical and emotional needs.” Dupree v. Tex. Dep’t of Protective and Regulatory Servs., 907 S.W.2d 81, 87 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1995, no writ). This court considers a parent’s conduct before and after the Department’s removal of the child. See In re S.M.L.D., 150 S.W.3d 754, 758 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 2004, no pet.). Additionally, the children’s young ages render them vulnerable if left in the custody of a parent who is unable or unwilling to protect them or attend to their needs. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b)(1); Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 371–72; In re J.G.M., No. 04-15-00423-CR, 2015 WL 6163204, at *3 (Tex. App.—San Antonio Oct. 21, 2015, no pet.).

The testimony supports that this case began when J.G.H. III tested positive for marijuana at his birth. When the investigator arrived at the home, the children were covered with bed bug bites, were suffering from lice, and the younger children were all wearing dirty diapers. J.G.H. III, only a month old at the time, was found in a baby swing, unbuckled, with a bottle positioned for him to drink from. Several witnesses testified regarding Mom’s extensive history with the Department and her inability to stop using illegal drugs, especially while pregnant. Prior to the start of this case, Mom no longer had custody of four children—the two oldest children were in the custody of their biological father, and Mom agreed to the adoption by different individuals, one relative and one non-relative, regarding two other children. During this case, Mom gave birth to her eleventh child. In January of 2017, the Department also removed the newborn due to neglect.

As Mom contends, she completed several of the classes required under the service plan. We note that attendance, without implementation, provides no benefit. When the Department attempted reunification, Mom again exhibited an inability to care for S.J.R.-Z. or L.L.L. When asked by the Department investigator why S.J.R.-Z.'s prescription medication bottle was empty, Mom explained the pills must have fallen out at some point during their move. S.J.R.-Z. also missed over fifteen days of school during the same short three-month period. Even in light of the referrals and assistance provided by the Department, Mom failed to arrange therapy for either S.J.R.-Z. or L.L.L. Additionally, regardless of the Department's requirements, Mom refused to prevent the children's access to the maternal grandmother's residence. See S.M.L.D., 150 S.W.3d at 757–58. Finally, when the investigator arrived to pick up S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L., the children were dirty and unfed. See id.

Similarly, Dad's history of illegal drug use is problematic. When the Department attempted to place two of the children in Mom's care, Dad stopped taking his medication and, ultimately, required hospitalization following his use of methamphetamine. Dad was also inconsistent in his visitations and made excuses for times that he did not attend.

Despite the Department's intervention and services, the domestic abuse and tumultuous relationship continued between Mom and Dad. Their on-again, off-again relationship was clearly "dysfunctional." During the case, there were accusations of physical abuse and Dad attempting to run Mom over with his vehicle. Although several witnesses testified that domestic abuse was no longer the greatest concern, the trial court could have relied on the parents' previous behavior and determined neither was capable of providing a safe environment for their children.

Although the children are not all together in one foster home, the Department was working diligently toward permanent placements for each of the children. Mom's and Dad's prior and continuing choices portend future instability, thereby endangering the children. See B.R., 456

S.W.3d at 616. The trial court was entitled to infer from their not so distant past conduct, that similar conduct would recur. See id. For example, Dad had only been on his medication approximately a month and had relapsed when S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. were placed with Mom. Additionally, Mom continued to allow the maternal grandmother to have contact with the children, in direct violation to the Department's instructions.

The trial court could have formed a firm belief or conviction that the Department's original concerns regarding the children's living conditions and surroundings, which endangered the children's physical and emotional well-being, and that Mom and Dad were unable or unwilling to protect them or attend to their needs. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b)(1); Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 371–72; J.G.M., 2015 WL 6163204, at *3

3. Parenting Abilities and Services Available

Neither parent consistently visited the children. The evidence further suggests that both Mom and Dad were overwhelmed with the children. Several witnesses described Mom as “parent[ing] from the chair.” The visits were “chaotic” and she would “yell at the kids” instead of “actually speak[ing] to them” and Mom relied on the other older children to care for the younger children. Mom's inability to maintain financial stability was also a concern. Shortly before S.J.R.-Z. and L.L.L. were returned to Mom's care, the housing authority terminated Mom's housing assistance based on fraud. Although the apartment complex tried to accommodate the family, Mom was unable to meet the monthly rental requirements and she and Dad were evicted a couple months later. The trial court could have reasonably determined the continuous history of instability and ongoing abusive relationship outweighed any positive intentions.

Although Mom and Dad attended many of the classes, neither was able to implement the lessons learned. Mom's individual counselor opined that Mom was unable to meet the children's needs. Each parent made intermittent improvements, but ultimately resorted to the destructive behaviors exhibited prior to the Department's intervention. See In re J.O.A., 283 S.W.3d 336, 346 (Tex. 2009) (concluding short duration improvements do not necessarily negate long history of irresponsible choices). A parent is not simply expected to complete the service plan, but to attain service plan goals by "demonstrat[ing] an understanding of services." See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b)(10), (11); Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 371–72. The parent must show an ability to protect the children, develop healthy relationships, and make good decisions. The evidence indicates neither Mom nor Dad were able to learn from the classes in which they participated. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b)(10), (11); Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 371–72.

The goal relating to parental ability was particularly important in this case. Mom's past history with the Department, regardless of the Department's assistance, allowed the trial court to determine that Mom was unable to care for any of her eleven children. Mom and Dad also exhibited a history including drug use and domestic violence. Several Department workers testified that Mom repeatedly provided excuses for her behaviors. Finally, both Mom and Dad minimized the Department's concerns, were not always cooperative with the Department, and expressed resentment at the Department's involvement. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(b)(10), (11); Holley, 544 S.W.2d at 371–72.

Accordingly, based on the evidence presented, the trial court could have formed a firm belief or conviction that, even in light of Mom and Dad's participation in several of the court-ordered services, both Mom and Dad failed to work with the Department and did not fully comply with the terms of their service plans. See J.L., 163 S.W.3d at 85; J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 261.

4. Stability of the Home or Proposed Placement

"The goal of establishing a stable, permanent home for a child is a compelling interest of the government." See Dupree, 907 S.W.2d at 87. After completing many of the court-ordered services, the Department attempted reunification between Mom and two of the children. The trial court could have reasonably concluded that even with only two children in her care, and the Department caseworker calling regularly, making weekly house calls, and attempting to provide assistance where possible, Mom was unable to provide a safe and stable environment for the two children. See id.

5. Any Excuse for the Acts or Omissions of the Parent

As the record reflects, both parents attended several of the classes required by the service plan. Yet, neither parent was able to implement the lessons learned. Several witnesses testified regarding the excuses offered by both Mom and Dad. One of the frustrated caseworkers relayed that Mom had an excuse for everything. Similarly, although Dad believed the Department was being “nit-picky” and denied drug use, the overwhelming testimony suggested that during the pendency of the case, Dad relapsed and his illegal drug use required hospitalization. The trial court could have reasonably formed a firm belief or conviction that neither Mom nor Dad was excused for their acts or omissions exhibited during the case.

C. Trial Court’s Determination That Termination of Mom’s and Dad’s Parental Rights Was in the Children’s Best Interests

The trial court found that Mom and Dad both “failed to comply with the provisions of a court order[ed service plan]. . . .” See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(O). The trial court’s determination regarding Mom and Dad’s terminations under section 161.001(b)(1) are properly considered in its findings that termination of each parent’s rights is in the best interests of the children and is, in fact, probative in determining the children’s best interests. See C.H., 89 S.W.3d at 28 (holding the same evidence may be probative of both section 161.001(b)(1) grounds and best interest); O.N.H., 401 S.W.3d at 684.

We remain mindful that the trial court is the sole judge of the weight and credibility of the witnesses. Here, the trial court heard from numerous witnesses and also reviewed several reports filed with the court during the pendency of the case. In making its determination, the trial court is called upon to determine the children's best interests; above all, the court must consider the children's placement in a safe environment. See TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 263.307(a); B.R., 456 S.W.3d at 615.

Reviewing the evidence under the two sufficiency standards, and giving due consideration to evidence that the trial court could have reasonably found to be clear and convincing, we conclude the trial court could have formed a firm belief or conviction that terminating Appellant Dad's parental rights to K.K.H. and J.G.H. III and Appellant Mom's parental rights to her children, S.J.R.-Z., J.C.Z., A.R.Z., L.L.L., K.K.H., and J.G.H. III. was in the children's best interests. See J.L., 163 S.W.3d at 85; J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266; see also H.R.M., 209 S.W.3d at 108. Therefore, the evidence is legally and factually sufficient to support the trial court's order terminating Mom's and Dad's parental rights. See J.F.C., 96 S.W.3d at 266; see also H.R.M., 209 S.W.3d at 108.

CONCLUSION

The trial court found Mom and Dad each committed one statutory ground supporting termination of their parental rights, see TEX. FAM. CODE ANN. § 161.001(b)(1)(O), and that termination of each parent's rights was in the children's best interests, see id. § 161.001(b)(2).

Based on a review of the entire record, we conclude the evidence is legally and factually sufficient to support the trial court's finding, by clear and convincing evidence, that termination of Appellant Dad's parental rights to K.K.H. and J.G.H. III and Appellant Mom's parental rights to her children, S.J.R.-Z., J.C.Z., A.R.Z., L.L.L., K.K.H., and J.G.H. III is in each of the children's best interest. See id. § 161.001(b)(2).

Accordingly, we overrule both Mom's and Dad's appellate issues regarding the trial court's termination of their parental rights.

Patricia O. Alvarez, Justice
