Pro se appellants Robert Jackson and Carmen Jackson filed their notice of appeal in the trial court on May 8, 2013, complaining about the trial court's judgment or order signed April 9, 2013. On June 10, the trial court clerk's office sent a letter stating that the clerk's record would be late but that appellant Carmen Jackson had said that payment for the record would be made soon. On June 20, the Clerk of this Court sent appellants notice that the record was overdue, giving them until July 1 to respond. On July 16, the trial court clerk's office informed this Court that neither payment nor payment arrangements had been made, and as of the date of this opinion, appellants have not responded to our notice or otherwise communicated with this Court. We therefore dismiss the appeal for want of prosecution. Tex. R. App. P. 42.3(b).
